But this was nothing to the Number of Scatch and Iri/h Lords the King made, from English private' Gentlemen, who had Ambition enough to purchafe thofe Titles, in order to get a Step higher than the new Degree of Baronets, created allo in this Reign. This gave great Difguft to the English Peerage; and near Forty of that Order joined in a Petition to the King, to remonstrate the Inconvenience of fuch Proceedings. Which Petition had fuch Effect, That though it did not derogate from the Dignity of those already created, yet the King willingly reftrained himself for the Time to come (a). Vol. VI. A

The

Ad. 21. James I. 1623.

The Parliament being affembled on the 12th Day of February, they were, by Commission, adjourned to the 16th, and from thence, by another Commission, to the 19th of the fame Month. These short Adjournments, we are told, by the Writer of this Reign, were occafioned by the fudden' Death of the Duke of Richmond, who was found dead in his Bed, by his Lady (c), in the Morning of the first Meeting of the Parliament. This Nobleman, being a near Relation of the King's and a great Favorite, he was fo ftruck with the Accident, that he put off the Solemnity of going and appearing in Parliament, as abovefaid. However, on the 19th, being all met again and the Commons called up, the King was pleafed to make the following Speech to them (d).

My Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and you that are Gentlemen of the House of Commons of this present Parliament.

The King's Speech at opening the Seflion.

T is a true Saying uttered by the Spirit of God, That the Glory of a King stands in the 6 Multitude of bis People : And I am fure it is as 6 true, That the Strength of a Kingdom, stands 6 next and immediately after God's Protection, in ' the Hearts of the People. That you may fee and have a Proof that I have not this only in my Tongue, but have it likewife fettled in my " Heart, (as God can bear me Record every Way) "I have called you at this Time to fpeak my " Mind freely to you; for, remembering the Mifunderstandings between me and you before, I am 6 now come hither with an earnest Defire to do the Duty which God hath called me unto, by de-

(d) This Speech is much curtailed and abridged in Wilfon and Rufbworth, for what Reafon we know not; but it flands in this Manner in the Journals. The Doctrinal Part of it was agreeabler to the Cant and outward Piety of the Times; for fcarce a Member of Parliament made a Speech then, without beginning with a Text, or interlarding of it with many Quotations out of Holy Writ.

OF ENGLAND.

declaring unto you the Verity of this which God An. 21. James I. ' hath put into my Heart, and to manifest my "Actions to be true by my Words. I remember • very well, that it is a very fit Similitude for a "King and his People to be likened to a Hufband and Wife; for, even as Chrift, in whofe Throne ' I fit in this Part of the Earth, is the Husband to " the Church and the Church his Spoule, fo I · likewife defire to be your Husband, and you " fhould be my Spoule; and, therefore, as it is the . Husband's Part to cherifh his Wife, to entreat . her kindly, to reconcile himfelf towards her, and ⁶ procure, by all Means, her Love, fo it is my · Part to do the like to my People.

" There are but two Ways for a King to fhew ' his Love to his People; one, in the constant " good Government of them during his Life; the 6 other, by his Behaviour to their Reprefentative 6 Body in Parliament. For the first, God knoweth, I defire my Government may be performed, with an honeft, juft, true and fincere Heart; • and there is none of you that fee or hear me this · Day but have found the Fruit of it, one Time or other. For the other Part, belonging to the · Reprefentative Body, which is now the Caufe of · calling you together, what greater Evidence can • there be to fhew Love between you and me, and · between me and you, that are the Reprefentative · Body, in a right Understanding, than, out of my ' own Mouth and Direction, to give you a Tafte ' of my Love and Care of you all.

" The Properties and Caufes of calling a Parlia-' ment, (and fo go the Writs) are to confer with • the King, and give him their Advice in Matters . of greatest Weight and Importance. For this ' Caufe I have now called you together, that ye ' may have Proof of my Love and of my Truft, ' and give me your Advice, in the greatest Matter ' that ever could concern a King; a greater De-· claration of my Truft in you I cannot give. ." I have been thefe many Years upon Treaties,

' as far as I thought (and God is my Witnefs I ne-

In these Treaties I went long on, but finding ⁶ them to have flower Success than I expected, or ' had Reafon to do, I was willing, (and efpecial-' ly in one Thing concerning the Eftate of my Grand-Children) to fee a good and fpeedy End. " In this, finding as great Promifes as I could " wish, and yet finding their Actions quite con-* trary, it ftirred up my Son to offer himfelf to " make that Journey; and I thank God, having · him now here, I have no Caufe to repent of it. · For, being of full Age and Ripenefs for Mar-* riage, he urged me to know the Certainty, in a " Matter of fo great Weight, that he might not be • put off with long Delays; for Delays, in fuch · a Cafe, are more dangerous than Denials.

' In it I was content (as a rare Example) to grant his Defire; and with him I, only, fent the . Man whom I most trusted, Buckingham; com-" manding him never to leave him nor return "Home without him. I thank God for it, it hath · learn'd me Wildom; for, in Generalibus ver fatur . Dolus. I had general Hopes before, but Particu-· lars will refolve Matters when Generals will not; and, before this Journey, Things came to me as • raw as if I had never heard of them before. I. " was as far difappointed of my Ends as if I had been wak'd out of a Dream; now I have • put it into a Certainty; and, whereas I walked in a Mift before, I have now brought it to · Light. Now,

My Lords,

· For the Particulars, they are gone fo far as, · both in the Treaty of the Match and of the Pa-· latinate, that I know the utmost. I am refol-• ved upon what I am like to obtain, and have had " Promises and Projects, and some of them lately. But, to fhew the Truft that I put in you, I am · content that my Secretaries, from the Information and Affurance of my Son and Buckingham, fhall relate unto you all: And when you have · heard

OF ENGLAND.

⁶ heard all, fuper totam Materiam, I fhall then en-An. 21. James I.
⁶ treat your good and found Advice, for the Glo⁶ ry of God, the Peace of the Kingdom, and the ⁶ Good of my Children.

Never King gave more Truft to his Subjects than to defire their Advice in Things of this Weight. For, I affure you, ye may freely advife me, feeing, of my princely Fidelity, ye are intreated thereto. Never Subjects had better Hearts and Experience to give me good Advice than you; of which I make no Doubt, for, if you love yourfelves, you will give it me, your own Felicity depending upon it.

• One Particular I muft remember you of, be-• caufe it hath been much talked of in the Coun-• try, that I fhould be flack in my Care of Religion • for other Things.

My Lords, and you Gentlemen all,

I pray you judge me charitably, as you would be judged; for, I never made public or private Treaties, but I always had a direct Refervation for the Public-Weal and the Caufe of Religion, for the Glory of God and Good of my Subjects.
I only thought good fometimes to wink and connive at the Execution of fome penal Laws, and not to go on fo rigoroufly as at other Times, but not to difpenfe with any, or to forbid or alter any that concern Religion. I never promifed or yielded, I never did think it with my Heart, nor fpoke it with my Mouth.
I t is true, a fkilful Horfeman doth not always ufe the Spur; but fometimes the Bridle, and fometimes the Spur: So a King, that governs wifely, is not bound to carry a rigorous Hand over his Subjects, upon all Occafions; but may fometimes flacken the Bridle, yet fo as his Hands be not off the Reins.

So much for that Point, to be cleared upon all Occafions. Now albeit it be a great Matter to require your Advice, yet, in this, I pray remem-

⁶ bet the Weight of the Bufinefs. I cannot limit ⁶ you Hours nor Days, but your own Heatts muft

An. 21. James I. 6 do it; for every Man, by Nature, thinks the " Time long here, according to his own Occafions s at home. Therefore confider the State of Chriftendom and the State of my Grand-Children, " my own Estate and the State of my Kingdom, the Treaties and all.

My Lords.

It is not enough, altho' you are never fo wil-٤ f ling to give me your Advice ; for to plant will not ferve the Turn, if I, like a good Gardener, as " well as plant, do not weed away from the * Roots, and remove the Obstacles that hinder your fo good Advice : Of which, the whole Weed s and manifest Hindrance that can be, is your Jea-! louly of me : Free me from that, and, for my Actions, I dare avow them before God and his Angels. But Jealoufy hath a deep Sting, take a-' way that, and nothing can do me Harm : You are my Wife, and Jealousy is subject to a Wife; therefore remove it, and be not jealous of me.

· For Matters of Privileges, Liberties, and Cuftoms, be not over curious; I am your own kindly King. Ye never shall find me curious in these SThings: Therefore do what you ought, and no more than your lawful Liberties and Privileges will permit, and ye shall never fee me curious to the contrary. I had rather maintain your Li-⁶ berties than alter them in any Thing. Shew a . Truft in me, and go on honeftly as you ought to do, like good and faithful Subjects; and, what s you have Warrant for, go on with, and I will ' not be curious, unleis you give me too much · Caufe.

' The next Thing is, to beware that you take ' not in Hand the maintaining of idle Queftions f among you; which spoils good Business. Remember, beware of Genealogies and curious Oueflions, as St Paul fpeaks; and do you keep to the Ground and Gravity of the great Bufinefs for which I called you; and next, for all other • Things that are for the great and good Governing f of the Kingdom. Let not any ftir you up to · Law

Jercks; but continue yourfelves in that honeft
Modefty, whereby you may have my Prayers to God for you, and procure the Love of me, and an happy End to this Parliament.

"God judge me, I speak as a Christian Prince, e never Man, in a dry and fandy Defart, where no . Water is, did thirst more in hot Weather for ⁶ Drink, than I do now for a happy Conclusion of ⁴ this Parliament. I now hope, after the Mifcarriage ⁶ of the laft, that this may prove happy : I am nei-⁶ ther curious nor captious enough to prevent it. · Eschew all Occasions of curious Questions, which " may hinder you in this great Caufe for which I ⁴ have called you; and remember, That fpending • of Time is fpoiling of Bufinefs. And I hope in God, and that by a Faith in God, that, by your · Actions this Parliament, I fhall clearly fee your "Hearts; and that you are the true Reprefentative Body of my Subjects: For you know in your · Confcience, that of all the Kings that ever were, · I dare fay never was King better beloved by his · Subjects than I am,

Therefore, be you true Glasses and Mitrours of their Faces, and be fure you yield the true Reflections and Representations as you ought to do.
And, this doing, I hope you shall not only find the Blessing of God; but also, by these Actions, procure the Thanks and Love of the whole People, for being such true and faithful Glasses. Lastly,
you shall never find me desire any Thing of you, but what shall tend to the common Good and Weal of the Kingdom.³

His Majefty having ended his Speech, the Lord Keeper (e), by his Commands, directed the Commons to repair to their own Houfe, and choofe a Speaker. The Names of Receivers and Tryers of Petitions, according to antient Cuftom, being alfo read, the Parliament was adjourned to Saturday the 21ft of February.

 An. 21. Jomes I. On that Day the Commons prefented to the 1623. King Sir Thomas Crew, Knight, Sergeant at Law, for their Speaker; whofe Excufe, for Infuf-Sir Thomas Crew ficiency, & being not allowed of, he was conchofen Speaker. firmed accordingly. Then the Speaker addreffed himfelf to the Throne, in bac Verba:

Most Gracious Sovereign,

His Speech to the Throne.

CInce I cannot bring an Olive-Branch in my 6 Mouth, as a Sign of my Peace; and that God, ' (in whofe Hands are the Hearts of Kings) without " whofe Providence a Sparrow doth not fall to the · Ground, whom no Man can refift, hath inclined · your Majefty to caft your Eye of Grace on me. ⁶ and to confirm me in this Place: I am taught in · the best School, that Obedience is better than Sacrifice; and will only fay with a learned Father, Da Domine quod jubes, & jube quod vis : Otherwife I · have great Caufe to be afraid of fuch a Charge, to be executed before fo great a Majefty, and in • fo great an Affembly; but that I hope your Majefty will extend your Scepter of Grace, as Aha-· fuerus did, to fustain me in my Fainting.

Your Majefty is Princeps Hæreditarius, defcended from both the Rofes, and hath united both the Kingdoms. At your firft Entrance you wrought a Wonder in the Tumult of our Cares, and Cloud of our Fears, happening upon the Death of the late Queen, by the bright Beams of your Sunfhine; which a Poet elegantly express'd, Mira cano, Sol occubuit, Nox nulla fecuta eft.

⁶ There was a David in Hebron, and no Ifbhofheth ⁶ to dilurb your peaceable Entrance; but the Ac-⁶ clamations of all your Subjects and Commons, ⁶ concurring to express their great Contentment. ⁶ This was no fudden Flash of Joy, but a constant ⁶ Blessing, by the Continuance of the Gospel and ⁶ true Religion, maugre the Malice and hellish In-⁷ vention of those, who would have blown up all ⁶ at once; but God laughed them to Scorn, and ⁶ they fell into their own Trap. These Things I ⁸ leave to your Majesty's Royal Remembrance, as

· Since my Defignment to this Place, I called to Mind these Statutes of late Times, and find two of efpecial Note: The first of 32, Henry VIII. " which was called Parliamentum doctum, for the " many good Laws made for the fettling of Pof-' feffions (f). The other, 39, Elizabeth; which, ' by a Reverend Divine, was called Parliamentum • pium; becaufe the Subjects were enabled to found · Hospitals without Licence of Mortmain, or Ad · quod damnum, and other charitable Laws, which ⁴ I omit, being not perpetual (g). And I likewife · called to Mind many glorious Offers made by your · Majefty, and other good Provisions at the last two Meetings. Now your Majefty hath ftretched forth your Scepter to call us to you again, and hath made Declaration, that all Jealoufies and ⁶ Distractions might be removed, and the Memo-⁶ ry of Parliament-Nullities might be buried. And, for perfecting this Work, the good Bills againft Monopolies, Informers, and Concealers, may now pafs, and receive Strength, with General, Liberal, and Royal Pardon, according to the Bounty of the late Queen; that fo this Parliament may be called, Felix, Dostum, & Pium; which will be good to your Subjects, and no Diminution to your Revenue, or Derogation to your Prerogative; which, in your Majefty's Hands, is a Scepter of Gold; but, in other Hands, is a Rod of Iron. I need not fpeak in the Praife of the

Secondly, For the King; we cannot deny God's

After this laft Harangue was ended, which must be allowed very extraordinary for an Extempore one, the House was adjourned to Monday the 23d of February.

On which Day, after the Houfe was called, and aConference confeveral Proxies admitted, the Lords took into Concerning the Spa- fideration the great Bufiness for which his Majefty nifh Match and had fummoned this Parliament, and which he had the Palatinate. Their Lordships agreed to defire a Conference with the Commons, for the expediting thereof, by the following Meffage:

⁴ Whereas his Majefty, in his Speech, had faid, ⁴ That he defigned the Prince and the Duke of Buckingham to fignify to both Houfes the Particulars of the laft great Negotiation, and his Secretaries to fhew the Letters and Papers concerning the fame: ² Their Lordfhips being defirous to expedite this great Bufinefs, and hold fair Correspondency with them, do pray, if their Occasions to permit, a Conference to be had between both Houfes, in the Painted Chamber, To-morrow, at Two in the Afternoon. And, And if, upon Doubt of any of the Particulars then An. 21. James I. related, any of them move any Queftions, they 1623. fhall be fully and clearly fatisfied therein."

This Meflage being fent, the House highly approved of the Prince's own Offer to affift the Duke in his Relation to both Houfes; and also that the Secretaries should attend with their Papers, and produce them as the Narration shall require. The Lords then proceeded to appoint a Committee to take into Confideration the Cuftoms and Orders of that Houfe, with the Privileges of the Peers of this Kingdom, or Lords of Parliament.

Feb. 24. On a Motion of the Prince, another, Meffage was fent to the Commons, importing, That the Painted Chamber being appointed for the intended Conference that Afternoon; their Lordfhips now defire that the faid Meeting might be in the Hall, at Whitehall; that Room being better accommodated for Ease and Hearing. Also to acquaint them with his Highness's Resolution to affist the Duke in his Narration. The Commons readily affented to the first, and declared themselves much fatisfied with the Prince's Defign.

Feb. 25. The now Duke of Buckingham; feven Earls, one Viscount, and three Barons, were introduced into the Houfe of Lords, to their feveral Places, with the ufual Ceremonies. On the Prince's Motion, the Report which was to be made this Day, by the Lord Keeper, of the Duke's Narration of Yesterday, was deferred to the 27th.

At which Time the Lord Keeper removed from the Wool-Sack to his Place on the Earls Bench, in order to make his Report; the faid Narration having been made to a Committee, and not to the House. This Report, being very long, is much abridged in Rubworth; but, fince the Lords four-E + B'2 + . .. nol

The Lord Keeper told the Lords, That

The Lord Keeper's Report of the Duke of Buckingham's Negotiations in Spain. THE Duke of Buckingham began with a threefold Preface :

• The first concerning himself.

" The fecond concerning the Prince's Highness.

• And the third concerning the Subject whereof . he was to treat.

'As touching the firft, he craved Pardon of both Houfes, if, in the Difcharge of this great Burden, which his Majefty had imposed on him, he did not proceed in that Order and Method, (which left in the Memory a fure Dint and Imprefilion) which the Bufiness required; and defired them to confider how unufual it was for him to speak in fo great and judicious an Auditory.'

⁶ As touching the fecond, he did acknowledge, that, among many great ones, this was none of the leaft Favours his Majefty had laid upon him, to put him at this Time under the Wings and Protection of the Prince his Highnefs; without whole Help and Affiftance, he was as unable to govern himfelf in the Parts of the Relation, as formerly in the Paffages of the Negotiation.²

• For the third, he noted his Misfortune to fall upon a Subject of fuch a Nature as thall afford little Honour to the Relator, of what Affection or Difpofition foever he be; for if he be well affected thereunto, and thall fpeak the Truth, he must either bluth or wrong his Modefty; if otherwife, (as all true-hearted Englishmen must be affected otherwife) he is fure, by laying out all Things in their true Co.

And this was the Effect of his Grace's Preface.

In the NARRATION itfelf his Grace used indeed a clofe, but yet an exact and perfect Method: A Man might observe therein fix distinct and several Parts.

The first was the Motives of the Prince's Tourney to Spain.

The fecond was the Treaty of Marriage fet a Foot in Spain, feverally, and by itfelf.

- The third was the Treaty of the Marriage, and Restitution, united together by a reciprocal Subordination.
- The fourth was the Prince's Return from Spain. The fifth was his Majefty's fublequent Proceedings in both the Treaties fince the Return.

And the last was the stating the Question, super totam Materiam. - And therein both the Houses were to offer to his Majesty their humble Advice and Counfel.

Of these Parts his Grace spoke very distinctly and orderly.

I. The MOTIVES of the Prince's Journey to Spain.

His Grace acquainted us with this Method, which was to open Things.

' First, in the general, and to leave Particulars to fhew themfelves, he took it for granted that he need not begin any higher than the Negotiation of Mr. 1623.

An. 21. James I. Chancellor of the Exchequer with the Arch-Duch-1623. efs; which ministred unto his Majefty the first Occafion of Jealoufy, and made a Kind of Discovery of their indirect Dealing with this Eftate: And then my Lord told us we should see a Dispatch, written from Hampton-Court upon Mr. Chancellor's Return; and after be acquainted with Mr. Porter's Relation; which was, in very Truth, the Motive of the Prince's Journey.'

Here was read the KING's Letter of the 3d of Oslober, 1622, to the Earl of Briftol, viz.

Right Trufty and right Well-beloved Coufin and Counfellor, we greet you well,

THere is none knows better than your felf, how we have laboured ever fithence the Beginning of thefe unfortunate Troubles of the Empire, notwithstanding all Opposition to the contrary, to merit well of our good Brother, the King of Spain, and the whole Houfe of Austria; by a long and lingring Patience, grounded still upon his Friendship and Promises, That 'Care should be had of our Honour, and of our Childrens Patrimony and Inberitance. We have acquainted you alfo, from Time to Time, fince the Beginning of the Treaty of Bruffels, how crofty Things have there proceeded, notwithflanding the fair Professions made untous, both by the King of Spain, the Infanta, and all his Miniflers; and the Letters written by him to the Emperor, and then effectually, at least as they endeavoured to make us believe : But what Fruits have we of all this, other than Diffeonour and Scorn? Whilft we are treating, the Town and Caffle of Heidelberg taken by Force, our Garrifon put to the Sword, Mainheim befreged, and all the Hoftility used that is within the Power of an Enemy; as you will see by the Relation which we have commanded our Secretary to send you. Our Pleasure therefore is, That you Thall immediately, as foon as you can get Audience, let that King understand how sensible we are of these Proceedings of the Emperor towards us; and, withall, are not a little troubled to fee, That the Infanta having

Seeing therefore that, merely cut of our extraordinary Respect to the King of Spain, and the firm Confidence we ever put in the Hopes and Promiles which he did give us; desiring nothing more than, for his Caule principally, to avoid all Occasions that might put us into ill Understanding with any of the House of Austria, we have hitherto proceeded with a ftedfast Patience; trusting in the Treaties, and neglesting all other Means which might probably have fecured the Remainder of our Childrens Inheritance,

(those Garrisons which we maintained in the Palatinate, being rather for Honour's Sake to keep a Footing untill the General Accommodation, than that we did rely so much on their Strength as upon his Friendship) and, by this Confidence and Security of ours, are thus exposed to Dishonour and Reproach : You shall tell that King, that feeing all those Endeavours and good Offices, which he hath u/ed towards the Emperor in this. Business, on the Behalf of our Son-in-Law, (upon Confidence whereof that our Security depended) which. he continually, by his Letters and Ministers, hath here laboured to beget and confirm us in, have not forted to any other Use, than to a plain Abuse, both of his Trust and ours; whereby we are both of us highly injured in our Honour, tho' in a different Degree: We hope and defire, that out of a true Senle of this Wrong offered to us, he will, as our dear loving Brother, faithfully promise and undertake, upon his Honour confirming the fame and alfo under his Hand and. • Then his Grace defiring us to take for Truth whatfoever he fhould fay, granted and attefted by the Prince's Prefence, he fhewed that this Letter was not put home to the utmost by the Earl of Briftol; whom, notwithstanding, his Grace excufed for the Point of his Return, because he had, in another Letter, fome private Directions to ftay untill his Majesty was advertised from that Place; howsoever he gave out his coming away.

· Mr Porter carried this Letter, with a peremptory Direction to return homeward after the ten Days Stay; the which Time being now expired, and no Ditpatch prepared, Mr. Porter stept to the Conde d'Olivares, whole Servant and Creature he had formerly been, and defired him to fpeed his Difpatch, that he might have fome good Anfwer to carry home with him. The Conde afked him what he would have? to which he answered, No more than had been promifed by the King of Spain; which was, that if a Restitution was not made of the Palatinate, by way of Mediation, that then he would join in Arms with the King of Great Britain to recover the fame, and give Paffage for the King's Forces to come at it. The Conde answered, That this Demand was very exorbitant: What! His Master to affift with Arms against his Uncle, against the Catholic League, against the Head of his Houfe? He would never do it."

' Mr. Porter forthwith rejoined, and afk'd him, What Hope he could give him about the Match? To which the Conde anfwered, That for the Match he knew nothing of it, nor would he understand what it meant.—And here give me Leave to weave in two of these Supplements, which the Lord Keeper imparted from their Lordships to the House of Commons, out of the two several Letters of the Earl of Briftol's, that the Match was originally pro-

An. 21. James J. proposed by Spain, and not by us; namely, by the 1623. Duke of Lerma; and that the King of Spain had directly promised Affistance by Arms, in case Mediation could not prevail for the Restitution of the Palatinate.

> " Mr. Porter acquainting my Lord of Briftol with these Answers, observed his Lordship at the first to be much mov'd, and to fay in Anger, That he would call Olivares to account if he held this Language with him; and would make him underftand that an Earl of England was as good a Man as a Conde of Spain: But fending for Mr. Porter next Morning, this Choler was abated; and he himfelf confessed that he had chang'd his Refolution, and concluded to carry the Bufinefs more calmly; for that having foon after fpoken with the Conde for being fo referv'd, his Anfwer was, That he did not think it proper to impart these Mysteries with that Freedom to him, who was not qualified as a public Minister. Mr. Porter, mov'd herewith, expostulated with the Conde for denying that to his old Servant, which he had imparted to both the Ambafladors; with that the Conde fell into a Rage, and fwore Voto a Dios que in ententos Embaxadores nil Veras, si ellos assi dichos; but, faith the Conde, I have Reason to take it ill at your Hands (whom I ever favour'd and tender'd as my Child) for communicating that to the Earl of Briftol. which I had told you as a Secret. Mr. Porter anfwer'd, That, being a Servant of the King's, he could do no lefs than acquaint his Ambaffador therewithall. But the Truth is, that the Conde was highly difpleas'd with Mr. Porter, infomuch that the Duke of Buckingham coming into Spain, he fpake it openly, that he hated the Ground which Mr. Porter trod upon. Mr. Porter returning with a Difpatch fraught with Generalities, without any one Particular or Certainty at all, made his Relation to the Prince his Highness; who, thereupon, took his Refolution to go in Perfon to Spain, and gave, himfelf, thefe Reafons for that Enterprize. He faw his Father's Negotiation deluded; Matters

Cafe more and more desperate; that this was the Way to help Things off or on; that this particular Delay was worfe than a plain Denial; and that according to the usual Proverb, A defperate Difease must have a desperate Remedy. This Resolution the Duke, by the Prince his Command, made known to the King; who, after he had confulted of it together with them, at the laft, commands the Duke to accompany his Highnels in this Journey.'

And here ends the first Part of the NARRA-TIVE, the Motives of the Prince his Journey.

II. The. TREATY of the MARRIAGE Severed and by itfelf.

"When the Prince had arriv'd at Madrid, and immediately difcover'd himfelf to the Earl of Briftol, the Duke fent the next Day to offer a Vifit unto the Conde, who was fo complemental as he refused to receive him in his own House, but gave him a Meeting in a Garden. Here the Conde magnify'd exceedingly the Prince his Journey; amplify'd the Obligations his Highness had put upon that King and his Kingdoms; faid, that now without all peradventure it must be a Match, and we must part and divide the whole World between us. This Complement was very apt (quoth the Duke,) and proper to proceed from them, who had long fithence in their Imagination fwallowed up the World as their own; but not to be fo eafily believed by us, as being no fmall Offer to part thus fuddenly with the one Half at a Blow; however, the Ambaffador's took an Occafion hereupon to move his Grace, That now having heard this good Affection of the Conde, he would write to the King to justify them in their former Dispatches in this Kind : Nay, foftly, anfwer'd the Duke, thefe are but Generals, when I find the Particulars tuneable hereunto, I shall be ready to relate it to his Majefty."

Why? the Means (quoth the Conde) is very eafy: It is but the Conversion of the Prince, which we cannot conceive but his Highness intends upon his Resolution of this Journey. His Grace answer'd forthwith; That with Freedom they came thither, and with Freedom they would return again : They. were no Jugglers, neither came they to Spain to make new Bargains; the Prince was fettled in his Religion, his Confcience was troubled with no Scruple in that Kind; if they ftruck any more on that String they would marr the Harmony: Then faid the Conde, There is no Way, but to fend to Rome to haften the Difpensation: To the which Motion his Grace affented, faying, The fooner they did it, the better it was.'

"Whereupon the Conde wrote his Letter to the Cardinal Lodovico, the Pope's Nephew, which being fhew'd to the Duke, feem'd to him to be very heavy and ineffectual: His Grace defiring therefore to quicken it with fuch a Poftfcript, That now the Prince being arriv'd must not be fent back without his Wife; that Delay to a Suitor is a Kind of Refufal; that clogging Instructions would amount to a Denial, and new Conditions to an abfolute Breach; the Conde fell into Choler, and faid directly, It could not be done. [This the Prince affirmed to be acted in his Prefence.] Of this Carriage of the Conde, Sir Walter Alton made a doubtful, the Earl of Briftol a more benign Construction; but the Duke a downright Conclusion that these People never intended either Match or Reftitution; and fo wish'd his Highness fairly at Home again, and thus the Meffenger was difpatch'd to Rome."

In the mean Time, the Duke hearing that it was refolv'd in Council, that this Vifit fhould be put off, until the Return of the Difpenfation, he afk'd plainly of the Conde, If it were fo? who confess'd as much in effect, and gave his Grace this Reafon for it, That much Scandal had already been taken in the Court, that the Prince was permitted to have feen the Infanta fo publickly in the open Streets, and that the Lady fhould be thus divulg'd and profan'd.'

"The Duke reply'd, He fhould have done well to have dealt freely with the Prince, and to have acquainted him with fo much before: After this, his Highnefs obtain'd a Vifit, but a very ftrange one, and fuch a Vifit as was never heard of before; he was not fuffered to fpeak to her, but as if he had been upon a Stage; his Part ready conn'd, and nothing elfe, in fo many Words and Syllables as they had dictated the fame to him. Here the Prince was pleas'd to acquaint us with the Reafon they alledg'd for dealing fo meafuredly and fparingly with his Highness; they were not Aftrologers to forefee the Event of this Marriage; they were uncertain whether it should take Effect or no, and therefore they refolv'd to admit him as a Prince only, but not as a Suitor. This Reafon was juftly diflik'd, and this Courfe much fufpected by his Highness, as himfelf now alledg'd, yet the Conde falv'd it up with this Complement, That if the Difpenfation were once return'd, he should lie with her even that very Night; nay, have her he fhould. upon any Terms, if he could not be qualified to enjoy her as a Wife, yet he should have her as a Miftrefs ? An. 21. James I. ' And now, in part, to entertain the Prince. but principally to prevent more Vifits, his Highnefs is carried to a Country-Houfe, call'd Aranviez. Here he is prefs'd again to change his Religion, but, being deaf and averfe to fuch a Motion, he is fet upon by the Conde, to this Effect, Yet, Sir, be a Friend to our Religion: To the which his Highnefs anfwer'd, He was no Enemy to their Religion nor to them that profess it. Soon after, riding in a Coach, it was urg'd again by the Conde. That the Infanta was of a tender Confcience, and if the thould come into England, and find the Prince an Enemy unto her Religion, it would quite dishearten her; his Highness was therefore, mov'd to promife to hear the Lady fpeak upon that Theme; to this his Highness willingly confented; and told us his Reafon, which was very probable, becaufe, his Highness was as like to convert her, as the was to pervert him. Not long after, a Conference with fome learned Divines is prefs'd upon his Highness; which the Prince declin'd for these Reafons:

First, 'If his Highness should be reported in this his, first Entrance into the Theatre of the World, to be fickle in his Religion, and to carry thefe Scruples in his Confcience, it would prove much to his Difhonour in all Parts of Christendom.

Secondly, ' Altho' his Highnefs (as he profefs'd) was not afraid to confer with any Divines ; yet, if after Difputation, they fhould not prevail against a young Man, they would remain much difgusted and ill-affected to the whole Negotiation." . . .

Six Weeks after the Prince his Arrival, arriv'd the Dispensation; which, contrary to many former Professions, was four or five Days conceal'd from his Highness : At the laft, the Duke having Intelligence thereof did call for it, and fo a Committee is appointed to treat thereof, and the Prince attended the Business in Person; but, upon the first Opening of Particulars, the Conde was put to School, and fhew'd himfelf to underftand never 2 Word either of the Match or of the Restitution of the Palatinate : The Articles being propounded to the Prince his Confideration, his Highness most judicioufly refused to treat, unless he might have Affurance they should be all cleared and accommodated upon the Place, without fending to Rome to new-mould them; becaufe his Highness understood from Rome, by Mr. Gage his Letter, that the Difpenfation was return'd much clogg'd in Matter and Manner; and, efpecially, with that annex'd new Condition, That the King of Spain, before the receiving of the Dispensation, was to take an Oath to fee all the Articles, whereupon the Faculty was iffued, really perform'd; or elfe to make War, in cafe of any Failure, upon the King of England: A very odd Conjunction with Matters of Alliance, as the Prince well obferv'd. 1623.

An. 28. James I. upon the Prince fignified to them his Refolution, that he neither could nor would alter any Thing in the first Articles fent from England. on which the Treaty began.-And here the Duke made a Remonstrance unto us, That if any Thing concerning Religion might feem to be added, (for the Prince faid, that nothing was fo added indeed) wherewith his Majefty was not formerly acquainted, that it was not the Prince nor his Grace's Fault: Nay, in one of the Articles fought by the Pope, and comprehended in the Prince his private Promife, a great Contestation arofe between the Earl of Briftol and the Duke ; wherein his Grace faid, he shewed himself resolute, which the Earl term'd Opinionastre, alledging, That the Point in Queftion was already agreed upon, at leaft, in Intention, between the two Kings. This the Duke deny'd, and was fithence justified in his Denial by the King's Majefty."

And now the Juncto of Divines are met together, to refolve the Cafe of Confcience upon that Preparation and Predifpolition of Things and Actions, whether their King might fafely take the Oath ? At this his Highness enquir'd, What that meant? But Answer was made, That it was only for Form Sake, and fhould not delay the Bufinefs the Length of one Hour; as the Prince was pleas'd to tell us: But the Truth is, this Committee was the Conde's Wheels, wherewith he fet the whole Frame of the Bufinefs backward and forward at his own Pleafure."

" By this Time, the Prince hath gone thro' all the Articles together with the reft of the Committee, and leaving three undecided, That of the Church; that of the Nurfe; and that of the Education of the Children; which his Highnefs referved until he fhould fpeak with the King himfelf ; and going with the Conde in his Coach, he acquainted him with his Refolution for those three Particulars; which, the Conde writing down in a Pair of Table-Books, faid, That now the Bufinefs E.C. W was was in a better Way than ever: It was a Match, An. 21. James I. and, without more ado, fhe was his Wife.' 1623.

⁶ But, the very next Morning, came the Marquis of Montes Claros and the Conde de Gondamore; and fpake to the Prince of the fame Match, as of a new Thing; and told him plainly, That unlefs his Highnefs came to all the Conditions of the Difpenfations, as they were fent from Rome, clearly and entirely, nothing would be done; for they had no Power to remove or alter fo much as a Word of falfe Latin: Whereupon his Highnefs was juftly diffafted, and offered to break; for, as himfelf told us, this was the firft Time he faw clearly they wanted to juggle with him; for the which Alteration and Change of Councils all the Excufe they offered was this, That they were Beafts, and blind; and could not read their own Language.'

' The Prince, thus refolv'd to take his Leave, the Conde stays him with a double Proposition : Either to fend to Rome to have the Articles, as they were agreed upon; confirmed by the Conclave; or elfe to fend to England, that the King our Master might be drawn unto them, Word for Word, as they came from Rome: To the which his Highness return'd this Answer, That he accepted of both Offers, as in due Form and Manner; that they fhould fend to Rome, and himfelf would repair into England, to dispose his Father to this Effect, and to facilitate the Negotiation. And here the Prince declared his Refolution to procure either a fair Breach or a speedy Dispatch. The Conde, finding this to amount to a Breach, thereupon made a new Proposition, That the Prince would be pleafed to ftay twenty Days, until our Master's Answer might be had from England."

'Here the Prince told us how the Earl of Briftol had faid unto him, That this was but a mere Punctilio; and that he receiv'd it from very good Hands, that if his Highnefs made Shew to yield unto this Proposition, he should not be tied thereunto; but (faid his Highnefs) when I had once de-Vol. VI.

An. 21. James I. termined to ftay, I never heard more of the Punc-1623. tilio, but was fast bound to real Performance.'

· After this the Conde and the Earl defir'd the Prince to fpeak no more of his Return in this Sort : for if he did, they would quarrel with it as amounting to a kind of Menace or Threat; whereupon the Duke anfwered, That this they could not do, becaufe the Prince bare himfelf as too well fatisfied with the Journey, and no way diffasted at all with any Occurrences in Spain; but troubled only with that clogging of Articles which happen'd in Rome. But the Earl of Briftol replied, That he knew from good Hands, that if his Highness stay'd, they would prefently fall to Bufinefs. The Prince then refolv'd to ftay, upon Condition, that Sir Francis Cottington might be difpatch'd away within two Days; and a Courier might overtake him with the Articles that should be fent after, as foon as ever they could be made ready, which his Highnefs well hoped might have been the very next Day; his Highness took Care hereby, left the Health of his Secretary. upon whom the Difpatch of the Bufiness wholly depended, might be impair'd with any extraordinary Riding : This Condition of his Highnefs, although the Conde (to gain more Time) much oppos'd, and would have Sir Francis ftay'd there untill the Articles should be perfectly digested; yet, by the Prince's fix'd and conftant Refolution, the Contrary was at the laft obtain'd. And now the Articles are laid upon the Anvil again, and the two Days of their Hammering fpun out to twenty; at the End whereof they brought them in with new Additions and Alterations, hoping that his Highnefs, through Hafte or Unadvifednefs, would fhut his Eyes, and fup them up without more ado. But the Prince read them, found out the Alterations, and upbraided them with the Practice; and when they excufed themfelves, as ignorant of the Form, the Prince offer'd to help them with a Precedent, viz.'

Treaty between King Philip and Queen Mary, and and adding to it each Article agreed upon, they An. 21. James I. might draw it up accordingly; whereupon they fnatch'd the Paper out of the Prince's Hand, as refolv'd to purfue this Direction ; but, a Sevennight after, brought them back again, as raw and untoward as ever they were; fo as the Prince was fain to take them in Hand himfelf; who, by the Mihiftry of the Earl of Briftol, fram'd them up in a few Hours, to the full Approbation of all the Cominittee; but (as the Duke observ'd) it was not the Difpatch of the Bufinefs, but the Approach of the Heats, and, confequently, the Stay of the Prince, which was the principal Object of the Spanifo Counfellors.'

The Articles being at the laft fent into England, the Juncto of Divines delivered their Opinions, that the Infanta could not be fent over before the Spring enfuing : But the Prince remembering a former Promise, that the Juncto should not retard his Negotiation for one Hour, refolv'd once more to break the Treaty upon this Occasion. This put the Conde to his Invention again, and caus'd him to make to the Duke and Sir Walter Afton, another Proposition; That if the Prince would stay till their Ambassiadors should certify out of England, that the Articles were affented to by our King; and put in Execution; then the Lady fhould go over with his Highness, this Vote of the Divines notwithstanding. His Grace answer'd to this Propofition, That it was yet worfe in Substance than the other, for the Ambaffadors may be finisterly affected ; befides, it was a Bufinefs of no fmall Importance to connive at fo many Laws as were pointed at in theArticles; many Occasions of Complaint might intervene hereupon, in the large Circuit of England, Scotland and Ireland; the Ambaffadors might take a falle Alarm thereby, and return their Certificate accordingly; and fo the Prince's Stay fhould be fruftrated and made of no Effect. Then the Conde defired the Duke to go in unto the Commissioners, who were fitting hard by, and to afk them their Opinions, how the Dif-CI

An. 21. James I. ficulties might be facilitated; the Duke replied, That he knew it was but loft Labour to go from him, the proper Oracle, to these Commissioners for the Afloyling of that Riddle; yet the Conde prefied his Grace to do fo; and the Duke stepping forwards, towards the Committee-Chamber, was called back by the Conde, and defired to put the Queftion after this Manner : What Requital or Satisfaction shall the King of Spain return for the Favour the Prince had done him by undertaking this Journey? To which his Grace replied, That now the Oueftion was varied, and the State of it alter'd; Yet (quoth the Conde) for my Sake, make your first Approach upon them with this Question. The Duke to fatisfy the Conde, went in unto them, who wonder'd much to fee him; he told them, he came by the Perfuation of the Conde, to probound this Question to them, What Reguital or Satisfaction, &c.'

"They look'd one upon another; and, in the End, one of them gave him Anfwer, That he fhould return to the Conde, and take from him Satisfaction to his Question.'

'And fo the Duke went back to the Conde, who prefently required what Answer he had received; the Duke told him, Such a one as he expected, and if they had given him any other, they had not fo well deferved that great Truft and Employmentin the State, which the King had most prudently impos'd upon them. Why, quoth the Conde, What was their Anfwer? Surely, faid the Duke, to hold you no longer, it was this, That I should return back again to you to know it. With that, the Conde rapp'd with his Staff, and, calling in the Chancellors, he fpake unto them in fuch a perplexed Stile, as though he would have them understand his Meaning (but yet for fear the Duke fhould do fo too) by any Thing rather than by his Words. At the last, the Bishop of Seyovia antwer'd his Grace to this Effect. He had heard fomewhat of the Eftate of our Kingdom, and had receiv'd it from good Hands, That our King could not make a Toleration tion without a Rebellion ; and he eafily believ'd it, An. 21. James I. because the King of Spain is not able in his Domi-1623. nions to effect the like Enterprize, without incurring the like Danger'; and therefore concluded it was unfafe to fend the Lady thither at this Time; becaufe we having granted as much, in effect, as a Toleration, it was very probable fhe fhould be welcomed with a Rifing and Rebellion. To the which the Duke replied, That if the Favours, which the King his Mafter had extended to his Catholics, at the Mediation of that King and the Advice of that very Committee, be of fo dangerous a Confequence, it feemed their Lordships, who gave their Advice for the Articles; then knew they portended Rebellion. But you must know (quoth the Duke) that if his Highness had been of my Lord Bishop's Opinion, that those Connivances had amounted to a Toleration, he had never accepted of these Articles to have gained any Alliance in the whole World: This wasbut a temporary. Sufpension of penal Laws, but no Toleration; which was never offered to be thruft upon the State of England, but by Confent of Parliament. Then they all look'd wifhfully at Gundamore, as the Surveyor General of England, and Author of that Intelligence; fo that, being eyed by them all, and in a Manner pointed out, he faid, I must confess, the King of England is a very learned King, hath govern'd long, and is very rich in the Hearts of his Subjects; yet do I not hold it fitting to fend the Infanta thither before the Articles be perfectly put in Execution; nay, Sir, you know very well, that I have formerly dealt very plainly and freely herein with the King of Great Britain. To this the Duke replied, That now he had provok'd him very far, for he had been acquainted with the Treaty from the Beginning, and never yet heard a Word fall to that Purpofe; nay, on the contrary Side, the Conde de Gundamore offer'd to our King the Daughter of Spain, and begg'd this Alliance merely for the Alliance Sake, without any Prejudice to the prefent Government, or the Religion establish'd. C 3

An. 21. James I, And that when we objected the Difadvantage of treating with the Catholic King, because of that back Door, to flip in and out at, at his Pleafure, (to wit) the Pope's Confistory; Gundamore replied, The Pope durft not but difpenfe with this Match, if Spain fo required; and, for Proof, alledged divers Inftances of Bufinefs refolv'd in Spain, though difliked by the Pope; to which notwithstanding his Holinefs gave his Confent for mere Fear left his Affent fhould not be expected or required. The. Conde de Gundamore took this very offenfively at the Duke's Hands, to be told of those Stories in Spain, which he had provided for the Meridian of England; and did his Grace no good Offices from that Time forward, which the Duke little regarded; yet one of his Requitals is very memorable, that at the very fame Inftant, he infus'd into the Prince's Highness that the Duke was in Heart (as he faid all his Kindred were) a Roman Catholic; and, to a Jefuit of great Account and Zeal in those Parts, that he was a most obstinate, perverse and refractory Puritan, which bred his Grace much Hatred among the Zealots in those Parts.'

"About this Time it was reported, that his Highness made some Provision to steal out of the Country fecretly; and it is very true that Ways were laid to intercept him, and in fuch a Cafe to detain him openly and avowedly as a Prifoner. Hereupon, my Lord Duke was fent unto them with this brave Remonstrance, That altho' they had ftolen thither out of Love, they would never fteal from thence out of Fear; and, however, others were guilty of thinking, they two fhould never be guilty of taking fo poor and unworthy a Courfe.'

"And the Prince making about that Time a Dispatch unto his Father, fent unto him this Meffage, by Mr Graymes, That if his Majefty should receive any Advertisement that he was detained by that State as a Prifoner, he would be pleas'd, for his Sake, never to think upon him any longer as a Son; but to reflect, with all his Royal Thoughts, upon the Good of his Sifter, and the Safety of his Kingdom; neverthelefs, the Prince commanded An.21. James T. Graymes not to deliver this Meflage, unlefs he heard that his Highnefs was there detain'd.

King-

⁶ And thus far extended the fecond Part of the NARRATIVE, The Treaty of the Match, as it flood fevered and divided.²

III. The TREATY of the MATCH and RESTITU-TION reciprocally fuberdinated.

"When the Prince had refus'd the former Propolition of the Conde, to expect the Certificate from the Spanish Ambassiadors, and was resolv'd to ftay no longer; the Conde betakes himfelf to his last Anchor, and offer'd to his Highness, in case he would accept of the Time of the Infanta's going at the Spring, in a blank Paper to fet down his own Conditions for the Restitution of the Palatinate. To this his Highness began to listen, as well remembering his Father's Commandment laid upon him at his Departure, that, together with his Alliance, he fhould endeavour to the utmoft of his Power, the Peace of Christendom ; he therefore fent the Duke and Sir Walter Afton to the Conde, to know whether he meant ferioufly and really in this Offer.' 1 3"

Here it is fit to obferve this Paffage, which is the Thing upon which all his Highnefs's fubfequent Actions are turned and moved : He had never flaid a Se'nnight longer in Spain, he had never left any Proxy with the Earl of Briftol, he had never taken any Oath at the Efcurial, or fo much as ever written a Let-

An, 21. James I, a Letter of Compliment to the Lady; but that he had ftill before his Eyes as his Land-Mark, the Promife made by the Conde for the Refitution of the Palatinate. This one Obfervation will ferve as a Torch, to caft not only a Light, but a Luftre, upon all his fubfequent Actions.

> • At this Stay of the Prince's, there appear'd generally in the Court, great Alacrity, fuch Careffes and Expressions of Joy, as the Duke professed he never faw the like.'

··· · His Grace laying hold upon this good Humour. thought it beft ftriking when the Iron washot; and begun to caft about how to fhorten these Months. and to haften the Delivery of the Lady. ' He prefented unto the Conde, how his Mafter was now in Years, the Prince was his only Son, and he long'd to fee Iffue by him. That his Highnefs would fuffer much in his Honour and Reputation, to return Home without his Wife; that the Infanta coming in his Company would open to her a wide Paffage into the Hearts and Affections of all the People ; that this would kill, in the very Root, the Practices of other Princes to divert this Alliance; and laftly, this would put an eternal Obligation upon the Duke himfelf, and a glorious Lustre and Repute upon his prefent Journey and Employment.'

• The Conde faid hereupon, That he was bewitch'd with these Reasons, and affur'd the Duke his Motions should take Effect, only the Prince must not be acquainted therewith; but himself would fuddenly prepare for the Voyage, and would needs have the Prince name a Day for his Departure, which accordingly was defign'd and appointed.'

⁴ This News either came indeed, or was pretended to have come, to the Infanta. She is fuppos'd to take it exceedingly ill; and the Condella d'Olivares, who hath the Care of her Education, fent unto the Prince, that it became him not to forfake the Company of such a Lady, for the gaining of a poor Circumstance of Time, after fo many and fo fo extraordinary Expressions of Love and Affection; An. 21. James I. 1623. and upon her Aflurance that no Advantage fhould be taken of that Promife, prevail'd on his Highnet's to return this Compliment, that rather than give her Highnels any Difgust, he would stay for her feven Years. The Conde (who winked thro' his Fingers at these Actions of his Wife) being press'd to prepare for the Infanta's going (according to that Enchaptment the Duke had caft upon him) burft out into Oaths; and demanded, If they thought he had nothing elfe to do with his Mafter's Money, but to throw it out of the Windows in this kind: And when the Prince replied again, That if he were fo careful a Steward for his Mafter, his Highnefs himself would defray the Preparations; he refused the Offer, and faid, his Master expected no such Supplies. By this Time Sir Francis Cottington arriv'd with all Things perfected by the King, and Letters of good Satisfaction from the Ambaffadors. and a Command from our King unto his Highness, to make his Return within one Month after the Reception of thefe Letters. When the Prince expected to have found them wrapt in an Extafy of Joy, they were in much Diforder at the Hearing of the News; and infinitely troubled that his Majefty had fo well and fo quietly overcome fo many Particulars. Here the Duke made his Annotation, That he did not politively affirm they meant to have bred any Stirs in England; but this he well remembered, that when the Prince, to difpute them out of their unreasonable Demands in Matters of Religion, objected against them, this Danger of Rebellion, they replied again, That if he fear'd any fuch Thing, he fhould be waited upon into England with a good and ftrong Army to decide all Controverfies in Religion: A Courtefy, as the Lord Keeper obferv'd in reporting the fame, better understood in Milan, Naples, and Germany, than hitherto (God be thank'd) in this Island; but the Prince told us his own Anfwer to this Compliment of theirs was, That the Remedy was worfe than the Difeafe.

· Yet

An. 21. James I. 1623.

• Yet all this while there was no Preparation made by the Conde, not fo much as for the Prince's Journey; which his Highnefs faid, was therefore deferr'd in Hopes to have made him fast and betrothed before his Departure.'

' Upon the Certificate of the Ambaffadors brought by Sir Francis Cottington, the Duke preffed the Conde with his former Promife to deliver the Lady now, the Condition being perform'd: The Conde told him, The Time was paft; and tho' his Grace offer'd to tarry the very Brim of Winter for her Company, yet was the Motion flighted, and the Duke defir'd to trouble himfelf no more with any Thoughts to that Purpofe.'

'About this Time' the Conde renew'd the Treaty for the Refitution of the Palatinate; faying, The Lady fhould by no Means go into England before that Bufine's was accommodated: And after Conference with the German Ambaffadors, there was projected a Refitution of the Land to the Son, upon Condition of a Marriage with the Emperor's Daughter, which the Prince did not diffike; but there was added withal, another Condition, that his Son fhould be bred in the Emperor's Court, which his Highne's utterly rejected.'

' Then the Prince demanding of the Conde, Whether, in cafe the Emperor prov'd refractory, the King, his Mafter, would affift him with Arms, to reduce him to reafonable Terms ?'

The Conde answered negatively; because they had a Maxim of State, That the King of Spain must never fight against the Emperor.

• He had, indeed, (for it was not to be denied) dealt very ill with them in this Particular; but if he fhould beat and buffet them, they would not promife to employ their Forces against the House of of Austria. Hereupon his Highness made his Pro- An. 21. James I. testation to the Conde, Look to it, Sir, for if you hold yourfelf to that, there is an End of all; for, without this, you may not rely upon either Marriage or Friendship; for I must, as I am required, return to my Father, and acquaint him with your Refolution in this Point. Look for neither Marriage nor Friendship without Restitution of the Palatinate."

'Yet was not the Earl of Briftel fo abfolutely perfuaded of the Prince's Refolution ; for he offered (as was related in the Houfe of Commons) to lay with him a Ring worth 1000 l. that for all his Father's Letters, his Highness would keep his Christmas at Madrid; which Wager the Prince laid with him, and gave away his Ring before his Face.'

About the Time it was concluded that the Infanta should not come away with the Prince, the Duke took occafion to open his Mind with fome. Freedom to the Conde d'Olivares : He had put him in mind how he had formerly told his Grace, That they in Spain could do with the Pope what they would; and that his Holine's never affented to the Dispensation, untill they had faid it was full Time, and had given him his proper Cue : And that the Conde was the Caufe of calling the Juncto of Divines; which the Conde confeffed, faying, That the Devil had put it into his Head fo to do." Alfo that the Conde had offered to his Grace the prefent conducting of the Lady, fo as he would but endanger his Soul for the Favour. and turn Roman Catholic. To all this the Conde, made Anfwer, That there were but three Ways to wade thro' this Bufinefs; whereof two were good. the third an ill one: The first good one was the Conversion of the Prince, which now he found, was abfolutely impossible: The fecond good Way was, that as they were obliged by the Prince's free coming into Spain, fo they, with the like Freedom, to deliver up the Infanta into his Hands, trufting him without further Condition : And the third Way,

An. 21. James I. Way, which he faid was a very ill one, was to wrap him and fwadle him up, as hard as they could, with nice Articles and ftrict Conditions. Whereupon the Duke replied, they had made Medæa's Choice; difcovered the beft, and chofen the worft of all the Ways. The Conde replied again, That if he were a Counfellor at large, he would advife the King to commit the Infanta unto his Highnefs' freely and abfolutely, without Conditions: So would he do, if he were King; and, as he was, he would do fo, if the King was thirty Years of Age; but, being a Favourite; to answer the Actions of a minor King, (altho' he cannot deny but it lies in his Power) yet he'refolved, the Infanta shall not go along with his Highness, but upon these Conditions." 1 di 1 de 1 1 to cy

• Thus, by this Time, the braveft Prince in Europe is grown cheap and vulgar in the Court of Spain, to as they fearce beftow a Visit on him; and the Conde came very feldom at him, pretending, for a Reason, that his Highness looked but heavily on him. In fine, the Duke was fain to negotiate the Condess, to procure her Lord to vouchfase, now and then, to look upon his Highness.

"About this Place the Duke declared to us how." in the Flashings and Lightnings in the Conde's Fayour towards him, there two Letters came to be produced, which are to be read by and by. " The. Conde, when in the good Humour, told his Grace, That now certainly it was to be a Match, and thatthe Devil could not break it. 'The Duke replied,' he thought fo too; and that the Match had need be firm, which had been feven Years in foldering." " The Conde denied it, and faid plainly, it had not been really intended feven Months. The Duke rejoined, That if he were fure of that, he could ingratiate himfelf very much with his Mafter, and receive many Thanks for his Journey and Employment; if he could make it appear to the King, that the Marriage was the Produce of this Negotiation only? Then faid the Conde, I will fetch that out of my Defk that shall affure you. a 22 thereof :

thereof; and fo produced thefe two Letters : The An. 21. James I. first was written with the King of Spain's own Hand; then read over five or fix Times, and the Substance collected in their Memory, by the Prince and Sir Walter Afton, (the Duke having promifed. it fhould not be copied, and indeed the Time not permitting to do it) and, by and by, after fet down in Writing; if we remember who were the Notaries, we need not doubt but it is authentically taken. The fecond Letter is translated by the Prince himfelf."

The King of SPAIN'S LETTER of the 5th of November, 1622.

THE King, my Father, declared at his Death, that his Intent never was to marry my Sifter, the Infanta Donna Maria, with the Prince of Wales; which your Uncle Don Baltazar understood, and fo treated this Match ever with Intention to delay it ; notwithstanding it is now fo far advanced, that, confidering withall the Averfeness of the Infanta to it, it is Time to feek fome Means to divert the Treaty. which I would have you find out, and I will make it good whatever it be; but, in all other Things, procure the Satisfaction of the King of Great Britain, who hath deferved very much, and it shall content me, so that it be not in the Match.

The Conde d'OLIVARES's LETTER of the 8th of November 1622, touching the Marriage.

SIR.

Onfidering in what Estate we find the Treaty of the Marriage between Spain and England, and knowing certainly how the Ministers did understand this Business, that treated in the Time of Philip III. (now in Heaven) that their Meaning was never to effect it; but by enlarging the Treaties and Points of the faid Marriage, to make Use of the Friendship of the King of Great Britain, as well in the Matter's of Germany as of Flanders; and fulpetting likewile, that your Majefly is of the same Opinion, altho' the De-1623.

An. 21. James I. Demonstrations do not feem fo joining to these Sufpicions; yet it is certain, that the Infanta Donna Maria is refolved to put herself into the Discalzes (k), the same Day that your Majesty shall press her to make this Marriage; I thought fit to represent unto your Majesty that which my good Zeal hath offered unto me on this Occasion; thinking it a good Time to acquaint your Majesty withall, to the end you may resolve of that which you shall find most convenient, with the Advice of those Ministers that you shall think fit.

The King of Great Britain doth find him/elf, at this Time, equally engaged in two Bufineffes; the one is the Marriage, to which he is moved by the Conveniences that he finds in your Majesty's Friendship, without making an Agreement with those Catholics that he thinks are fecretly in his Kingdom, and by this to affure himfelf of them; as likewife to marry his Son to one of the House of Auftria, knowing that the Infanta Donna Maria is the best born Lady in the World. The other Business is the Restitution of the Palatinate, in which he is yet more engaged ; for befides that his Reputation is at the Stake, there is added the Love and Interest of his Grand Children, Sons, of his only Daughter; fo that, both by the Law of Nature and Reasons of State, he ought to put them before what soever Inconveniences might follow from distembling what they suffer.

I do not dispute whether the King of Great Britain be govern'd in this Business of the Palatinate by Art or Friendship : I think a Man may fay he used both ; but, as a Thing not precifely necessary to this Discourse, I omit it. I hold it a Maxim, that those two Engagements, in which he finds himfelf, are in-Separable ; for altho' the Marriage be made, we must fail in that, which, in my way of Understanding, is most necessary, the Restitution of the Palatinate.

This being supposed, having made this Marriage in the Form as it is treated, your Majefty (ball find yourfelf, together with the King of Great Britain, engaged in a War with the Emperor and the Catholic League ; fo that your Majefly will be forced to de-Hare clare yourfelf, with your Arms, against the Emperor An. 21. James I. and the Catholic League; a Thing which, to hear 1623. with this Uncertainty, will offend your godly Ears; and, declaring yourfelf for the Emperor and the Catholic League, (as you certainly will) your Majefy will find your felf brought into a War against the King of England, and your Sister married with his Son; with the which all what foever Reafons of Convenience, that were thought upon with this Marriage, do cease. If your Majesty shall shew yourself neutral, (as it may be fome will propound) That will give caufe of very great Scandal; and with just Reafon, fince, in Matters of lefs Opposition, than of Catholics against Heretics, the Arms of this Grown have taken the godly against the convenient Party : And, at this Time, the Frenchmen fomenting the Hollanders against your Majesty, your Picty hath been fuch, that you have fent your Arms against the Rebels of that Crown; leaving all the great Confiderations of State, only because these Men are Enemies to Faith and the Church.

It will oblige your Majefly, and give Occafion to those of the League to make Use of the King of France and other Catholic Princes ill-affected to this Grown; for it will be a Thing necessary for them to do so; and those, even against their own Religion, will foment. and affist the Heretics for Hatred to us; without doubt they will follow the other Party, only to leave your Majessy with that Blemish that never hath befallen any King of these Dominions. The King of England will remain offended and disoliged, seeing neither Interess nor Helps do follow the Alliance with this Crown; as likewise with Pretext of particular Resentment, for having suffered his Daughter and Grand-Children to be ruined for Respect of the said Alliance.

The Emperor, tho' he is well-affected, and obliged to us in making the Translation at this Time (1), as Business now stands, the Duke of Bavaria being posfessed of all the Dominions; altho' he would dispose all Power to do it, as your Majesty and every Body may judge; and the Memorial that the Emperor's Ambassador gave your Majesty Yesterday maketh it certain; fince, in the List of Soldiers, which it maketh every one of the League to pay. he shews your Majesty, that Bavaria, for himself alone, will pay more than all the rest together; the which doth shew his Power and Intention, which is not to accommodate Matters, but to keep to himself the Superiority of all in this broken Time. The Emperor is now in the Dyet, and the Translation is to be made in it.

The Proposition in this Estate is by considering the Means for a Conference, which your Majefty's Ministers will do with their Capacity, Zeal, and Wifdom; and it is certain they will have enough to do with it all : For the Difficulty is to find a Way to make the present Estate of Affairs Streight again ; which, with lingering, as it is faid, both the Power and Time will be loft. I suppose that the Emperor, as your Majelty knoweth by his Ambaffadors, defires tomarry his Daughter with the King of England's Son ; I do not doubt but he will be likewife glad to marry his fecond Daughter with the Palatine's Son ; then I propound that these two Marriages be made, and that they be fet on foot immed ately, giving the King of England full Satisfaction in all his Propositions. for the more frist Union and Correspondency, that he may agree to it. I hold it for certain, that all the Conveniences that would have followed the Alliance with us, will be as full in this, and the Conveniency in the great Engagement is more by this; for it doth accommodate the Matter of the Palatinate, and the Succession of the King of England's Grand-Children, with Honour; and without drawing a Sword or wasting Treafure : With this Interest the Emperor, with the Conveniences of the King of England and the Palatinate, (the only Means, in my Way of understanding, to hinder those great Dangers that do threaten) may readily accommodate the Busine/s, without severing himself from the Convenience and Engagement of Bayaria. Then I would reduce the Prince Elector, that

The Business is great, the Difficulties greater than perchance have been in the other Case. I have found myself obliged to represent unto your Majesty, and shall show, if you shall command me, what I think fit for the disposing of these Things, to the great Ministers that your Majesty hath. I hope, with the particular Notice of these Things, and all being help'd with the good Zeal of the Conde de Gundamore, it may be God will open a Way to a Thing so much for his and your. WE have received yours, brought us by Greyfley, and the Copy of yours to our dear Son: And we cannot forbear to let you know how well we efteem your dutiful, difcreet, and judicious Relation and humble Advice to our felf and our Son, whereupon having rightly deliberated with our felf, and communicated with our dear Son, we have refourd, with the great Liking of our Son, to reft upon that D 2 So-

> But first we will, that you repair prefently to that King, and give him Knowledge of the fase Arrival of our dear Son at our Court, so satisfied and taken with the great Entertainment, personal Kindness, Favour and Respect he hath received from that King and Court, as that he seems not able to magnify it sufficiently: We will therefore, that, by all possible Means you endeavour to express our Thankfulness to that King, and the rest to whom it belongs, in the best and most ample Manner you can.

> And hereupon you may take Occasion to let that King know, that, according to our constant Affection, to make a firm and indissolvable Amity between our Families, Nations and Crowns, (and not to seem to abandon our Honour, nor, at the same Time we give Joy to our only Son, to give our only Daughter ber Portion in Tears) by the Advice of that King's Ambassolvations, who have offered themselves as our Counsellors, we have entered into a Treaty concerning the Restitution of the Palatinate, as will more particularly to you appear, by the Copies herewith sent.

Now, we must remember you, that we have understood and expected, that, upon the Marriage of our Son with the Infanta, we should have a clear Restitution of the Palatinate and Electoral Dignity to our Son-in-Law; to be really procured by that King, according to the Obligation of his own Honour, as you have well express'd in your Reasons why the Person of our Son-in-Law should not be left out of the Treaty, but that the Emperor should find out some great Title, or by encreasing the Number of Electoral Stiles, wherewith to fatisfy the Duke of Bavaria. We therefore now require you, that presently, in your first Audience, you procure from that King a punctual Answer

That the King would give us a Blank, in which we might form our own Conditions concerning the Palatinate; and the fame our Son confirms unto us now: What Observation and Performance that King-will make, we require you to express, and to give us a peedy Account.

First, ' The Confirmation came from Rome, clogged and mangled; and, inftead of challenging them thereupon, he labours, with no finall Strength of Wit, to hide and palliate the fame.'

Secondly, 'When, in the temporal Articles, the Portion was alter'd from 600,000 l. in ready Cafh, to only 80,000 l. in Money, a few Jewels, and a Penfion of 20,000 l. per Annum: Instead of D 3 guar-

Laftly, 'Inftead of putting off the Contract, as any Man in the World (upon the Difpatch from Royfon) would have done, he is come to prefix a precife Day for the Defponfaries.'

• These Things appear very plainly, by the Letters of the 24th of October, and the 1st of November, 1623, which follow:

May it pleafe your Moft Excellent Majefty,

Have received your Majesty's Letters, of the 8th of October, on the 21st of the same Month, some Hours within Night; and have thought it sit to dispatch this back to your Majesty, with all possible Speed; referring the Answer to what your Majesty bath, by these Letters, commanded me, to a Poss that I shall purposely dispatch, when I shall have negotiated the Particulars with this King and his Ministers; wherein (God willing) all possible Diligence shall be used.

But, for a finuch as I find, both by your Majefly's faid Letters, and likewife by Letters which I have received from the Prince his Highness, that you continue your Defires of having the Match proceeded in; I held it my Duty, that your Maj fly (bould be informed, that though I am fet free in as much as concerneth the Infanta's entering into a religious Order) for delivering the Powers left with me by his Hghnefs; yet, by this new Direction I now received from your Majefty, That the Desponsaries should be deferred till Christinas, the laid Powers are made altogether uleless and invalid; it being a Clauje in the Body of the faid Powers, that they shall only remain in Force untill Christinias and my longer; as your Majefty -111.7 may may see by a Copy of them, which I send here in- An. 21. James I. closed. 1623.

Your Majesty, I conceive, will be of Opinion, that this Suspending of the Execution of the Powers, untill the Force and Validity of them be expired, is a direct and effectual Revoking of them which, not to do, how far his Highness is in his Honour engaged, your Majesty will be best able to judge, by viewing the Powers themselves.

Further, if the Date of these Powers do'expire, (befides the Breach of the Capitulations) alth ugh the Match itfelf. fould not, by fealoufies and Mistrusts, be hazarded, yet the Prince his coming into England at the Spring will be almost impossible; for, by the Time that fuch new Commissions and Powers shall be: after Chriftmas, granted by the Prince as may be to the Satisfaction of both Parties, I conceive, fo much of the Year will be (pent, that it will be impossible for the Fleets and other Preparations to be in Readine/s againft the Spring : For it is not to be imagined that they will here proceed fo effectually with Preparations, untill they shall be assured of the Desponsaries; especially, when they shall have seen them several Times deferred on the Prince his Part, and that upon Pretexts that are not new, nor grew fince the granting of the Powers, but were before in being, and often under Debate, and yet never were infifted on to make Stay of the Busines; so that it will seem, that they might. better have hindred the granting of them, than the Execution of them. Now, if there is no Staggering. in former Refolutions, the which, altho' really there is not; yet it cannot but be fuspetted; and the Clearing of it between Spain and England will cost much Time: I must bumbly crave your Majesty's Pardon, if I write unto you with the Plainness of a truebearted and faithful Servant, who has ever co-operated honestly to your Majesty's Ends, if I knew them. I know your Majesty hath long been of Opinion, . that the greatest Assurance you could get, that the King of Spain would effectually labour the entire Reflitution of the Palatinate, was, that he really proceeded to the effecting of the Match: And my In-

Arustions,

An. 21. James I. Structions, under your Majesty's Hands, were to insist 1623. upon the Restoring of the Prince Palatine: but not for upon the Refloring of the Prince Palatine; but not fo to annex it to the Treaty, as that thereby the Match should be hazarded; for that your Majesty seem'd confident, that they here would never grow to a perfect Conclusion, without a settled Resolution to give your Majesty Satisfaction in the Business of the Palatinate. The same Course I observed in the Carriage of Business by his Highness and my Lord Duke at their being here; who, though they insisted upon the Business of the Palatinate, yet they held it fit to treat of them distinctly; and that the Marriage should proceed as a good Pawn for the other.

Since their Departure, my Lord Ambassador, Sir Walter Afton, and myfelf, have much preffed to have this King's Refolution in Writing concerning the Palatinate; and the Dispatches which your Majesty will receive berewith, concerning that Business, were written before the Receipt of your Majefly's Letters : And, doubtlefs, it is now a great Part of their Care. that that Business may be well ended, before the Infanta's coming to England : And his Highness will well remember. that the Conde d'Olivares often protefled the Neceffity of having this Business compounded and fettled before the Marriage; faying, otherwife they might give a Daughter and a War within three Months after, if this Ground and Subjest of Quarrel should still be left on Foot. The fame Language he hath ever held with Sir Walter Alton and myself, and that it was a firm Peace and Amity, as much as any Alliance, which they fought with his Majefly. So that it is not to be doubted but this King, concluding the Match, refolueth to employ his utmost Power for your Satisfaction. in the Restitution of the Prince Palatine. The Que-Aion now will be, Whether the Business of the Prince Palatine, having Relation to many great Princes that are interested therein, living at great Distance, and being, for the Condition and Nature of the Bufinels itfelf, impossible to be ended but by a formal Treaty, which of Necefficy will require great Length of Time; the Conclusion of the Match Shall any Way depend depend on the Issue of that Busines? Which I con- An. 21. James I. ceive to be far from your MajeRy's Intention; for - 1623. fo the Prince might be kept unbestowed, by the Averseness of those that might have particular Interest in the Prince his remaining unmarried, or Diflike of his matching with Spain. But this which I understand to be your Majesty's Aim, is only to have the Conclusion of his Match accompanied with as strong an Engagement as can be procured from the King, for the joining with your Majesty, not only in all the good Offices for the entire Restitution of the Palatinate, but otherwife, if Need require, of his Majefty's Affistance herein. I have these many Days past laboured with all Earnestness, and procured the King's public Answer; which, I am told, is resolved of, and I (hall, within these few Days, have it to send to your Majesty; as likewise a private Proposition, which will be put in your Hands : And shall not fail further to purfue your Majesty's present Directions, of procuring the King's Declaration, in what Sort your Majesty may rely on the King's Assistance, in case the Emperor or the Duke of Bavaria Shall oppose the entire Restitution of the Prince Palatine. But, I conceive, if it be your Majesty's Intention that I should procure here, first, this King's peremptory Answer in the whole Business, and how he will be affistant unto your Majesty, in case of the Emperor's or the Duke of Bavaria's Averfrees; and that I should fend it to your Majefly, and receive again your Anfwer, before I deliver the Powers for the Defponsaries; the Match would thereby, if not be hazarded, yet, I conceive, the Infanta's going at Spring would be rendered altogether impoffible; for, upon Arrival of the Pope's Approbation, I cannot refuse them but upon fome Ground. If I alledge your Majesty's Defire of baving the Defponfaries deferr'd untill Christmas, they know as well as my felf that his Highness's Proxy is then sut of Date, befides the infringing of the Capitulations; and they will judge it as a great Scorn put upon this King, who, (ever fince the Prince his granting of his Powers) hath call'd himfelf the Infanta's Defponfado; and, to that effect, the Prince bath

An. 21. James I. hath writ unto him in fome of his Letters. Befides. it will be held a Point of great Dishonour unto the Infanta, if the Powers call'd for by her Friends (bould be detain'd by the Prince his Part ; and whoever elle may have deferv'd ill, the certainly hath neither deferv'd Difrespect nor Discomfort. Further, upon my Refusal to deliver the Powers, all Preparations. which now go on chearfully and a -pace, will be (tay'd; and there will enter in fo much Distrust, and fo many Jealousies, that if the main Business run not Hazard by them, at least much Time will be spent to clear them.

I must therefore, in Discharge of my Duty, tell your Majefly, That all your Majefty's Business here is in a fair Way; the Match and all that is capitulated therein they profess punctually to perform. 20 In the Busine's of the Palatinate, they protest, they infinitely defire, and will, to the utmost of their Powers, endeavour to procure your Majefly Satisfaction. The Prince is like to have a most virtuous and worthy Lady, and who much loveth him; and all Things elfe, depending upon this Match, are in good and hopeful Ways.

This is now the present Estate of your Majesty's Affairs, as it appeareth to me, and to Sir Walter Alton; with whom I have communicated this Dif. patch; as I do all Things elfe concerning your Majefty's Service. And I must clearly let your Majesty. understand, That, I conceive, by retaining the Powers when this King shall call for them, and offering to defer the Desponsaries untill Christmas, that your. Majefty's Bufaefs will run a great Hazard; what by the Distastes and Disgusts that will be raised here, and what by the Art and Industry of those which are Enemies to the Match, whereof every Court of Christendom hath Plenty.

That therefore which I prefume, with all Humili-. ty, to offer to your Majesty is, That you would be pleased to give me Order, with all possible Speed, that when the Business shall come clear'd from Rome ; and that the Powers of the Marriage shall be de-. manded of me in behalf of this King; that I may. deliver deliver them, and no ways feek to interrupt or fu-An. 21. James I. fpend the Defponfaries, but affift and help to a perfect 1623. Conclusion of the Match.

And that for the Business of the Palatinate, I continue my earnest and faithful Endeavours to engage this King, as far as shall be possible, both for the doing all good Offices for the Palatine's entire Restitution, as likewife, for this King's Declaration of Afsistance, in case the Emperor or the Duke of Bavaria Shall oppose the said Restitution : Herein I will not fail to use all possible Means; and, I conceive, the Dispatch of the Match will be a good Pawn in the Business; and the Help and Assistance which this Court (the Prince/s being once betrothed) would be able to give to all your Majesty's Business, would be of. good Confideration. So, fearing I have already prefum'd too far on your Majesty's Patience, I humbly crave Leave of your Majesty's Pardon, and recommend you to the holy Protection of God, refting Madrid, 24 Oct. ? Your Majefty's 1623. most humble, and faithful

Subject and Servant,

BRISTOL:

The Earl of BRISTOL to his Majefty.

May it please your Majesty,

I Find, upon the News that is now come from the Duke of Pastrana, that the Pope has clearly paffed the Difpensation, which is now hourly expected here. There is an Intention to call presently upon me for the Prince's Powers for the Marriage left in my Hands, the which I know not upon what Ground or Reason to detain; the Prince having engaged, in the said Powers, the Faith and Word of a Prince, noway to revoke or retract from them, but that they should remain in full Force untill Christmas; and delivered unto me, with public Declaration of his' Pleasure, that upon the Coming of the Diffensition, I should deliver them unto the King, that they might be put in due Execution. And hereof likewise was there, by Secretary Serica,

An. 11. James I. as a Public Notary, an Instrument drawn, attested by 1623. all the Witneffes present.

If I (ball alledge your Majefty's Pleasure, of having the Marriage deferred untill one of the Christmas Holydays; altho' they should condescend thereto, that is impossible, for the Powers will then be expired. If I shall insist upon the Restitution of the Palatinate, this King hath therein declared his Anfwer; and it will be much wondered at, why that should be now added for a Condition of the Marriage, having ever hitherto been treated as a Business apart, and was in being at the granting of the faid Powers, and hath been often under Debate, but never specified, nor the Powers delivered upon Condition of having any fuch Point first clear'd. And I must confess unto your Majefty, I understand not how, with Honour and that exact Dealing which hath been ever observed in all your Majesty's Actions, the Powers can be detained, unless there should appear some new emergent Cause fince the granting of them; whereof, as yet, I hear none specified. I being, therefore, loth to be the In-Arument, by whole Hands any Thing should pass that might leave the least Reflection upon your Majesty's or the Prince's Honour, which I shall ever more value than my own Life or Safety; and, judging it likewife to conduce more to your Service, and affuring myfelf that your Majefy's late Direction, to have the Marriage upon one of the Holydays in Christmas, was for want of due Information, that the Powers would then be expired : I have thought fit, with the Advice of Sir Walter Afton, to raife no Scruple in the Delivery of the faid Powers; but do intend, when they shall be required, to pass on to the Nomination of a prefix'd Day for the Defponsaries; the' I shall endeavour to defer the Time untill I may be advertised of your Majefty's Pleasure, if it may be within the Space of twentyfour Days; and will labour to find fome handfome. and fair Occasion for the deferring of them, without alledging any Directions of that Kind from your Majefty or the Prince.

The Reafons why I have thought it fit to take this Refolution are: Firth. First, I Find by your Majesty's Letters, and the An. 21. James I. Prince's, that your Intent is to proceed in the Marriage; and to that Purpose your Majesty and the Prince have set me free to deliver the Powers, according to the first Intentions, by removing that Scruple of the Infanta's entering into a religious Order whereupon they were only suffered.

Secondly, Your Majefly's Letter intimateth only a Defire, not a Direction, of having the Marriage upon one of the Holydays in Christmas; which, I conceive, is to be understood, if it may well and fittingly be so; not, if there shall be an Impossibility therein, by reason of the expiring of the Powers before, and that the Intention of having it then should be overthrown thereby; when I am confident that what your Majesly writeth, is for want of due Information of the Clause of Expiration of the Powers.

Thirdly, If your Majesty, upon these Reasons, and fuch as I have formerly alledged unto your. Majesty, should, as I no way doubt but your Majesty will, give me Order for the present proceeding to the Marriage; yet, upon my refusing the Powers, and alledging your Majesty's or the Prince's Directions, (altho' afterwards all Things should be clear'd) it would cast some Kind of Aspersion and Jealousy upon the Sincerity of your Majesty's or the Prince's Proceedings : On the contrary Side, if your Majefty's Intentions be not to proceed in the Match, whereof I fee no Ground, the Intimation of that may be as well a Month hence, as now: And I judge it a Duty in a Servant, especially in a Business of so high Consequence, and wherein your Majesty bath spent so much Time, to give his Master Leisure to repair unto his second Cogitations before he do any Order that may overthrow it.

This I offer, with all Humility, unto your Majehy's wife and just Confideration; and befeech you to make Interpretation of my Proceedings berein, according to my dutiful and zealous Care of your Honour and Service.

I have of purpole dispatched this Post with this Letter, to the end I may receive your Majesty's Directions,

An. 21. James I. his Highnefs faid, He verily believed he had, and 1623. had not, Power at his Pleafure.'

• Well, for all that Bravado and Menace upon their former Difpatch, they have taken their Pen in Hand again, and have fent to his Majefty a Project of a Letter; the which, if his Majefty fhall make an Invitation to that Effect, fhall be fent unto his Majefty from the King of Spain; and the Letter is the Hercules Pillars, and the nibil ultra in all this Negotiation of the Palatinate.

Don JUAN de SERICA'S LETTER, fent with the King of SPAIN'S ANSWER of the 5th of January, 1624, N. S. touching the PALATINATE.

COR the Estimation which his Majesty maketh of your Lordship and Sir Walter Aston, and for the Defire he bath to fatisfy the Instances you have made, that he would write unto the King of Great Britain in the Business of the Prince Palatine, he hath condescended thereunto; but this shall be done when you shall bring any Letters from the King of Great Britain touching the Jaid Busines; and hath, in the mean Time, commanded me to fend you this Copy, which is the Anfwer which his Majesty commandeth to. be given to that which was last propounded by you in that Busines; and that when you shall bring the faid Letter from the faid King, then the Original of the King my Master shall be delivered unto you with a great Defire of giving full Satisfaction. God preferve your Lord (bip, &c. IUAN de SERICA.

The KING'S ANSWER abovementioned.

Having given Anfwer to your Majesty's Ambassa dors, and to such Memorials as they have hitherto delivered unto me, touching the accommodating the Bussies of the Prince Palatine; and having made known my Desire and Intention herein, they have again of late, with much Earnessens, folicited me in the three Points following :

The first, That I fould do all good Offices of Medi-An. 21. james f. ation with the Emperor, to the end he may yield unto the Prince Palatine the entire Restitution of his Posfessions and Dignities.

The second, That a limited Time be appointed for the negotiating, by way of Mediation.

The third, That I hould, forthwith, declare myfelf, that the faid Mediation not taking Effect within the Time limited, I would employ my Arms against the Emperor.

Touching the first, your Majesty may rest assured, that I am ready, really and effectually, to assist Majesty with the best Offices I shall be able, to the end you may receive entire Satisfaction, the Prince Palatine performing the due Submissions, and what else is required, or hath been said in my former Answer, touching the Alliance and Security on his Part; and that I will continue the said good Offices untill the final Conclusion of the Busines.

As for the second Point, I am well contented that there be a limited Time appointed, how long the Offices of Mediation are to endure'; but fince the Business cannot, without a formal Treaty, which cannot be but in these Parts, your Majesy (taking such Term of Time as shall be requisite for so great and difficult a Business) may agree on it there, either with the Infanta my Aunt, or with my Ambassadors, and I do, from Time to Time, approve thereof; and so your Majesy may give Order that, without Loss of any further Time, the Treaty begin for the accommodating the Business; wherein your Majesy may likewise make such Propositions for the fatisfying the Duke of Bavaria as shall seem fitting.

Concerning the third Part, wherein I am intreated, in your Majesty's Name, by your Ambassadors, That I would forthwith declare myself, that in case the Mediation take no Effect, I would employ my Arms against the Emperor, altho' I am most certain and consident, that, by your Majesty's and my Intercession, together with the Submission of the Prince Palatine, and the Performance of what else shall be necessary, as is above said, the Emperor, my Uncle, will, without all Vol. VI. E doubt

An. 21. James I. doubt, shew his Clemency, and give your. Majesty 1623. entire Satisfaction; yet; the making of such a Declaration, befides that it were to bereave me of the Power as Arbitrator and Mediator in the Business by making myfelf 'a formal Party; it were likewife to give just Occasion of Offence to the Emperor, my Unkle, and to fail in that due Respect which is fitting I should shew towards him, if I should accompany the Office of a Mediation with Menaces of Arms; but your Majefty may be confident that I will procure, by all Means possible with the Emperor, that this Business may be effected to your Majefty's full Satisfaction; without drawing my Hand from it, untill that which your Majefly defireth be accomplished.

> . This Letter his Majefty hath already fcanned to a Syllable, and fuppofing fome Virtue might be extracted from that Phrafe, Alzar la Mano, and the King will not take his Hand from off the Bufinefs untill our Mafter shall receive Satisfaction; his Majesty fent to the Spanish Ambassadors, Men of great Understanding and Quality, for a Key or a Comment to open the fame : And, behold, this is all they return back to his Majefty, nor take off his Hand, i. e. He will employ, without Intermiffinn, his best Offices to procure a Satisfaction to his Majefty: And hitherto that Hand of Mediation hath prov'd but an unlucky Hand in all this Bufinefs.'

> · Here the Lord-Keeper related fomewhat that was delivered by Don Serica to the Earl of Briftol, at the fame Inftant with this Project of the Letter; as Mr. Clark, who was then prefent, hath told the Duke of Buckingham; viz.

" • That whereas the King of Spain had found his Error in going on fo fast with the Treaty of the Match, before he had clear'd the Treaty of the Reflitution of the Palatinate; he is now refolv'd, to invert his Method, and to perfect the Treaty of the Reftitution of the Palatinate, before he will proceed any further in that of the Marriage.' « So

"So the two Treaties, as they move in Spain, An. 21. James I. are now quit one with the other; as formerly the 1623. Treaty of the Marriage did juftle out the Treaty of the Palatinate, fo now the Treaty of the Palatinate hath quite excluded the Treaty of the Marriage.'

" And here my Lord Duke acquainting us, as Admiral, with an Advertisement he had received of the Fleet prepared in Spain, the Arreft of fome of our Ships, and the coming over of Padre Majistro, made an End of the fifth Part of the NARRA-TIVE; which contain'd the fubfequent Proceedings of his Majefty, by a felect Committee of Counfellors, in both these Treaties, fince the Return of his Highness from Spain.'

VI. The STATING of the QUESTION Super . totam Materiam.

This Question the Duke states after this Manner:

" My Lords and Gentlemen all, Your fpeedy and faithful Advice concerning this laft Difpatch, which implieth, in the Word Alliances, the Education of the Prince Palatine's Son, in the Emperor's Court; and promifeth no Affistance by Arms to recover the Palatinate; is, That his Majefty expecteth from both the Houfes, at this Time, Whether this Project of a Letter, being the full Effect and Produce of all the Negotiations which I have open'd to you, be fufficient, fuper totam Materiam, for his Majefty to rely upon with any Safety, as well for his Marriage of his only Son as for the Relief of his only Daughter; or, thefe Treaties fet alide, his Majesty were best to trust to his own Strength and to ftand upon his own Feet ?"

. And fo his Grace ended with this Conclusion, That if bringing us from Darkness to Light did deferve any Thanks, we owe it, and mult atcribe it, to the Prince his Highnefs.'

After the Lord-Keeper had finished this long Report, the Duke of Buckingham flood up and E 2 acquainted

An. 21. James I. acquainted their Lordships, ' That Complaint was 1623. made against him for delivering fomewhat, in his Narration, which did fo highly touch the King of Spain in his Honour, that if the like had been uttered by any Subject of that King againft his Mabuckingham's Narration refent-jefty, it could not be otherwife expiated but with ed by the Spanift the Lois of his Head that fpoke it. Wherefore, Ambaffador. the Duke defired their Lordfhips to take into Con-fideration, whether he could have juffified the leaving out any of the Particulars in the Narration?

The Lords, in general, did commend the fair Proceeding of the Duke therein, and agreed, ' That, as his Grace deferved all their Thanks for the fame, fo he had done ill if he had concealed any Part of it. That their Lordfhips did conceive that it was an Afperfion laid upon their Houfe by this Complaint; becaufe it concerns their Lordfhips not to fuffer any Thing to be publickly fpoken, in their Hearing, in Dithonour of fo great a Prince in Amity with his Majefty. And, they conceive that nothing then delivered did concern that King particularly, but were the Acts of his Officers and Minifters only.'

But, for the full clearing of his Grace in this Matter, the Lord-Keeper, by general Confent, put it to the Queftion, ' That the Duke did deliver nothing, in his faid Narration, but what was fit for him to do, and what the Matter led him unto; which was unanimoufly agréed to. And their Lordfhips alfo agreed to fatisfy his Majefty herein by a Committee of their whole Houfe; and the Prince was defired to intimate this their Requeft to the King, and to let them know when his Majefty would be pleafed to admit them to his Prefence. The Lord-Keeper to be their Speaker.'

Then the Houfe was moved to take into their Confideration, how the Spanifs Ambaflador came to this Knowledge: But the Duke requefted their Lordfhips to defift from that Enquiry; for that he only defired his own Juftification, and no Revenge. But the Lords were fill more active in this An. 21. James I. Matter, and fent a Meflage to the Commons to 1623. this Effect:

"Whereas their Lordships are informed that Complaint hath been made to his Majefty, by the Spanif Ambaffador, That the Duke of Buckingham, in his Narration to both Houfes, had fo highly touched the Honour of the King of Spain, that it could not be explated but by his Head : Their Lordships, taking this into their Confideration, do find this Complaint to fasten an Aspersion upon themfelves alfo; and have, by general Vote of their House, acquitted his Grace thereof ; and have determined, by a Committee of their whole House, to fatisfy his Majefty therein : And, to the end that their Lordships may ever, according to their Defire, hold good Correspondence with their House, they have thought fit to fignify it unto them." But, the Meffengers staying long, the Lords agreed to adjourn to the Afternoon.

At which Time they received the following Both Houfes juf-Answer to their Meffage from the Commons: tify the Duke.

To the end the Lords might truly flate the Que-Further Proceedflion upon the great Affair they were to advife the ings in relation to King about, they required to have the foregoing Let- the Negotiations ters from Span read unto them again. After which in Spain, the Attorney General read the following Letters from the Earl of Briffal.

May it pleafe your Moft Excellent Majefty,

I Received your Majefly's Letters of the 9th of September and the 23d of the fame Month, and by them underfland that your Majefly hath received E 3 much

An. 21. James I. much Satisfaction from what I had formerly written 1623. to your Majefty bath concerning the Refitution of to your Majesty, both concerning the Restitution of the Prince Palatine; as likewise, of this King's Refolution to proceed to the Conclusion of the Match; but that your Majesty findeth the Effects very unsuitable both by the Proceedings at Brussels and in the Palatinate; as also, by what you understand from Rome, by Mr. Gage, of the Pope's Demands. I hope, by the Arrival of Mr. Cottington, your Majesty will have received Satisfaction, in some Measure at the least, that there bath been no Time or Diligence-omitted, either for the redressing of any Thing that hath been amils, or for the advancing of your Majesty's Affairs.

The very Day I received your Majefly's Letters, I fent a Gentleman Post to the King, (who was gone to the Escurial) to crave Leave to attend him, which he presently granted me; and I repaired thither to him upon the 3d of October, the Conde de Gondamore being likewise commanded to wait upon the King. I was there well received; and presently upon my Arrival, the Conde d'Olivares came to me to the Lodgings which were appointed for me to rest in; to him I deliver'd fully, in the Presence of Sir Walter Afton and the Conde de Gondamore, what I had to negotiate with the King, both in the Business of the Match and of the Palatinate.

In the Match, I reprefented how much it imported your Majesty that a speedy Resolution might be taken therein; both in regard of the Prince, being your Majefly's only Son, now arriv'd to the Age of twenty two Years, and for the fettling your Affairs' in England: I repeated to him all the Possages in this Treaty; how many Years had been already fpent in it, and that after fo long an Expectation, the Diligence used in Rome, for obtaining the Dispensation, had wrought but fmall Effect, fince the Pope had lately made fuch Demands as were altogether impossible for your Majesty to condescend unto; and therefore, your Majesty seeing the Business still delay'd, held it fit that fome fuch Courfe might be taken, that your Majelly might fpeedily know what y014 you have to trust unto; and therefore had command-An. 21. James I. ed me to fignify unto this King, your utmost Refolution, how far you could condescend, in Point of Religion, towards what the Pope demanded. And if herewith this King could be satisfied, your Majesty defired that we might proceed to a final and speedy Conclusion; otherwise, that the King likewise would clearly declare himself, that your Majesty might lose no more Time in the disposing of the Prince your Son. Hereunto the Conde d'Olivates answered with some Length, the Substance whereof I shall only presume to set down to your Majesty.

He profels'd a fincere Intention and Réfolution in this King to make the Match, and that there should not be one Day lost; for that the speedy Dispatch thereof imported them as much as your Majesty; and to the end no Time should be lost, this King had, the Day after the Death of Don Baltazar de Zuniga, appointed Don Ferdinando de Gyron in his Place, in his Commission. That for the going of Mr. Gage from Rome, and the Pope's Demands, they were absolutely ignorant of them; that the King had done all that I myself desired for the Redress of this Error; that I might affure your Majesty that you should find here all'Sincerity and clear Proceeding, and without an Hours Delay more than, of Necessity, the Nature of the Busines's required.

As for the Bulinefs of the Palatinate, I reprefented at large, the Merit of your Majefty's Proceedings and the many Promifes made from hence; yet; notwithflanding, whilf your Majefty was treating at Bruffels, Heidkebergh, one of the three Places, which were only left, and where your Majefty had Garrifons, was befieg'd by the Archduke Leopold and Monfieur Tilly: That this King bath withdrawn his Forces, and fo exposed the Palatinate abfolutely to the Emperor and the Duke of Bavaria. The Conde d'Olivares answered me, by acknowledging how much your Majefly's Proceedings had deferv'd at the Emperor's and this King's Hands; that whatfoever your Majefly could expect, or had been at any Time promifed, sould by this King be really perform'd.

An. 21. James I. That the Prince Palatine's own Course bitherto, had been the only Hindrance of the effecting of it. That he referred it to your Majesty's own just Judgment, whether the calling of this King's Forces out of the Palatinate were with any ill Intention, or merely for the Defence of Flanders; which, otherwise, had been put in great Hazard by Count Mansfield, as your Majesty saw by what had really pass'd: That the Siege of Heidelberg was no way by the Consent or Knowledge of the King, or any of his Ministers, but was generally disapprov'd by them all.

I told him, I conceived that was nothing; for that your Majesty had engaged your felf to this King, That in cafe your Son-in-Law would not conform himself, you would not only for sake him, but declare your felf against him, and give the Emperor Affistance for the reducing of him to Reason; and that your Majesty could not but expect a like reciprocal Proceeding from this King his Master. He answer'd, Your Majesty should see this King's Sincerity by the Effects, and that if Heidelberg should be taken, and the Emperor refuse to restore it, or condessend to fuch an Accommodation as should be held reasonable, this King would infallibly affift your Majefty with his Forces. And this he spake with great Assurance, and wish'd me to desire your Majesty to be confident, you would find nothing but real and fincere Proceedings from hence. I was then prefently called for to the King, to whom I spoke, first, in the Business of the Match, and delivered him the Contents thereof in Writing; which I have fent to Mr. Secretary. I received from him the lame An/wer, in effect, as from the Conde d'Olivares, That he defired the Match no lefs than your Majefly; that, on his Part, there should be no Time lost from the Beginning of it to a freedy Conclusion. In the Business of the Palatinate, I Spoke unto the King with Some Length, re-peating many Particulars of your Majesty's Proceedings, and how much your Honour was like to fuffer : That now, whilf you were treating, Heidelberg, de-defended by your Garrison, was like to be taken. An. 21. James I. The King answer'd me, He would effectually labour that your Majesty should have entire Satisfaction; and rather than your Majesty should fail thereof, he would employ his Arms to effect it for you. My Lord Ambaffador, Sir Walter Afton, accompanied me at my Audience, and was a Witness of all that pass'd, as well with the King, as with the Conde d'Olivares. Within few Days after the News of the taking of Heidelberg came hither; whereupon I dispatched again to the King, in such fort as I have at large advertifed to Mr. Secretary Calvert. The Effect of my Negotiation was, That they, on the 13th of October, dispatch'd Letters away to the Infanta. to Rop the 'Emperor's and the Duke of Bavaria's Proceedings; but preffing them further, in regard their former Letters have wrought fo little Effect, they have given me a second Dispatch, which I have fent to the Infanta, and whereof Mr. Secretary will give your Majesty an Account; which, I conceive, will procure your Majesty better Satisfaction than hitherto you have received from the Emperor and his Party.

For the Business of the Match, I have written to Mr. Secretary what is to be faid at prefent, and will only add, That as I should not willingly give your Majefty Hopes upon uncertain Grounds, fo I would not conceal what they profess; which is, That they will give your Majesty real and speedy Satisfaction. therein ; and if they intend not, they are falfer than all the Devils in Hell, for deeper Oaths and Protestations of Sincerity cannot be made. .

It will only remain that I humbly caft my felf at your Majefly's Feet, with that Addition of Title wherewith it hath pleased you to honour me and my Posterity. My Gratitude and Thankfulness wanteth Expression, and shall only (ay to your Majesty, That as all I have, either of Fortune or Honour, I hold it merely of your Bounty and Goodness, fo shall I ever chearfully lay them down, with my Life into the Bargain, for the Service of your Majesty and yours. So with Thefe Letters being read, the Lords adjourned, ad Libitum, to debate what they fhould advife the King to do in this Bufinefs. And, becaufe his Majefty had required to have the Advice of both Houfes, they thought it not fit to proceed further in it at that Time; but to have a Conference with the Commons, and to confider, first, What to propose to them at their next Meeting.

February 28. The Affair was again refumed relating to the Match with Spain and the Recovery of the Palatinate; and though the Lords generally agreed, 'That they cannot advife about one without the other; and, alfo, that they had fo far declared themfelves here, that it is not fafe for the King to continue the Treaty on either, nor expect the Reftitution of the Palatinate, by any other Means than the Sword; yet, their Lordfhips do ftill think it not fit to deliver their fingle Advice, but first to confult the Commons; and when the two House have agreed thereon, then to deliver the fame jointly to his Majefty.'

After which a long Debate arofe, what to propofe to the Commons; and, at laft it was refolved, That there was no Neceffity to treat of the Match and the Palatinate together. Alfo, their Lordfhips were of Opinion, That his Majefty rely not upon any further Treaties; except they fhall hear from the Commons better Reafons for it at the Conference. And a Committee was appointed, of which the Duke was the Chief, to fearch for Precedents of former Treaties and Supplies to the King in Matters of this Kind. Alfo, the King's Servants were to bring them all fuch Papers and Difpatches, out of Spain, as they fhould require.

March

March I. The Lords were put in Mind of their An. 21. James I. last Message to the Commons, touching the Duke 1629. of Buckingham; and they thought good to explain themfelves, by another Meffage, on their Refolution to give the King Satisfaction that the Duke is cleared and acquitted, by them, of that which the Spanish Embaffador complained of. Therefore, a Meffage . was fent to the Lower Houfe, to express their Lordfhips Doubt that their Meaning was not fully understood; for that they do think it most proper, as the Narration was made to both Houfes, fo both to join, if they to pleafe, in their Justification of it to his Majesty.

After fome Time, the Commons fent an Anfwer to the Meffage, That they were defirous to confer with their Lordships about it, by a Committee of both Houfes; the Time and Place was, left to their Lordships Option. The Lords appointed the Painted-Chamber, and the Time to be prefently. Accordingly, the fame Day, the Archbishop of Canterbury made the following Report of this Conference to the whole Houfe.

' That they had conferred with the Commons, Both Houfes about this Complaint of the Spanish Ambassiador unanimously pre-against the Duke for his Narration; and that the fent to the King Commons were fo much of one Mind with them, their Approbaas if both Houfes were Twins. That they highly Duke's Narraapproved of what the Duke had done; and that tive. he delivered nothing in his faid Narration, but what he was led unto by the Matter itfelf; wherein his Grace was fo far from tranfgreffing, that he deferved Thanks and Honour : That they were defirous to join with their Lordships, by a Committee of their whole Houfe, to fignify as much unto his Majefty. > March 2. After an Adjournment of the Houfe, ad Libitum, the Attorney General read another Letter to the King from the Lord Digby, afterwards Earl of Briftol, in these Words:

LORD DIGBY'S LETTER to the KING. Most Gracious Sovereign,

TT may please your Majesty to remember, That, at my coming out of Spain, I fignified unto your Majesty, how far the Duke of Lerma had, upon several Occasions, intimated unto me an extraordinary Defire of this King and State for not only an intimate Peace and Amity with your Majesty, but to lay hold of all Means that might be offered, for the nearer Uniting of your Majesties and your Crowns: And, from this Generality, he had descended often to have Discourse with me of a Match with the Prince his Highnefs with the second Daughter of Spain; affuring me, that, in this King and his Ministers, there was a very forward Disposition thereunto. But from me he received no other Answer, but to this Effect : That in the Treaty of the former Match for the late Prince, I had received fo strange and unexpected Anfwer from them, and that their Demands had feem'd fo improper and unworthy, that, I conceived, your Majesty had little Reason to be induced again to give Ear to any fuch Overture, or that I should enter again into any fuch Treaty, much lefs to be the An. 21. James I. Motioner thereof; altho' I would confess, that if I 1623. were fully perfuaded of the Sincerity of their Intentions, and of a Poffibility of having the faid Match effected. I know not any Thing wherein I would more willingly employ my Endeavours; but, as the Cafe now food. I was certain, that if I should but make any fuch Motion in England, I should but draw an Imputation of much Weakness upon myself; and no whit advance the Caufe; for that your Majesty and your Ministers would make no other Construction of that Motion, but that it was only to abufe your Majefty, and to divert the Match of France, which was then treated of : For that your Majefty, who, but the Year before, had received fo unpleasing and unequal an Answer, should now be persuaded that there was here fo great a Change as that a Match was really defired, there would now need more than ordinary Affurance. ____ But the Duke of Lerma, continuing feveral Times in the fame Profession, and telling me befides. That the greatest Gase might be altered by Circumstances, and that the Age of this Prince was much more proper than that of his Brother, I freely let the Duke know, that in cafe I might be fully affured that fuch a Match was really defired here, and be able to propound unto my Master Conditions of so much Advantage, as might certainly put bim and his Ministers out of doubt that this Overture was not again revived from hence, either for Diversion or winning of Time, I would then willingly intimate unto your Majesty the Inclination and Desire I found here, of having a Proposition for this Match once again fet on foot. The Duke told me, That he would have further Conference with me; and that he no ways doubted but then to give such Satisfaction as might well asure both your Majesty and your Ministers, that they fincerely defired the Match in general, and would omit nothing on their Side for accommodating every Particular that might give Furtherance unto it. But, the very Night before the Duke had appointed a Meeting with me, there came a" Post dispatch'd out of England from the Spanish Am-1623.

An. 21. James I. Ambaffador, upon the Arrival of Sir Thomas Edmonds in England, who brought Word that a Match with France was abjolutely concluded, and that within a few Days it was to be published; whereupon the Duke, at our Meeting the next Morning, told me that it would be needless now to descend to any Particulars in the Business whereof we were to treat; fince they had now received Advertisement that the Match with France was fully concluded. And thus far that prefent Matter rested some five or six Weeks after, about which Time I was to go into England; and so taking Leave of the Duke, he afk'd me, Whether I had not receiv'd Advertisement that the Match with France was not published? I told him no, but that I had certainly heard, that it was not yet fully concluded : Whereupon he entreated me, that, in case I found not the French Match in fuch Forwardness as it could not be stay'd, I would let him know of it; and that if I should see any kind of Pollibility, that the Business we had spoke of might be fet on foot, I would advertise him; and that thereupon he would proceed to those Particulars, which he formerly intended for my Satisfaction.

Herewith I acquainted your Majefly, and finding that the Spanish Ambassador in England had Notice from the Duke of our former Proceedings, and Order to further them by all possible Means he could, especially if he should understand that your Majefly were not fully refolv'd of the French Match; I thought it fit, by his Means, to let the Duke understand in what Estate I found this Business in England; and thereupon, with your Majesty's Permiffion, wrote a Letter to him to this Effect :

. That altho' it were true that the Match with France had been treated of with much Earnestness on both Sides, and with great Likelihood of being concluded; yet there daily arole fo many Difficulties and new Caufes of Delay, that I judg'd it far from any perfect Conclusion; neither did I see Cause ab-. Islutely to defpair of the Business which our felves had intended, unlefs the Difficulties of -the Conditions should make it desperace; but if these Things should he be expected by Spain, which in the Treaty for the late An. 21. James I. Prince were demanded, it were beiter by much not to renew the Business; than by unfitting and unbecoming Propositions on either Side to give Distaste, or lesten the Friendship which now was betwixt your Majesties. And therefore I expected that, in Spain, they would be content with fuch Conditions as your Majesty might fittingly and conveniently yield unto, and all other Catholic Princes were willing to content themselves with; I neither saw Cause to hope for good Succefs, nor Reason to set the Treaty on foot; but in cafe that I might know that the Conditions, in Point of Religion, might be fuch as I should fee a Possibility of your Majesty's condescending to them, I should be far from despairing of some good Effect; for that I know divers, not of the meanest nor least Power with your Majefy, were thereunto well inclin'd and would give their helping Hands, &c.'

Hereupon the Spanish Ambaffador difpatch'd bis Secretary into Spain, and received Answer from the Duke, That he should give me all Assurance that there was here a great Defire and Inclination to the making of the Match; and that, at my Return into Spain, they no ways doubted but I should receive fuch Satisfaction as should make it appear, that, on their Part, there should be nothing wanting for the effecting of it.

It remaineth that I now fignify to your Majefly what hath passed herein, since my last coming to this Court.

I arrived here in Madrid only a Day or two before their Christmas, and having, some fix Days after, my Audience appointed by the King; whilf I was in a withdrawing Chamber expecting the King's coming forth, the Duke of Lerma came hither to bear me Company; and after many respectful De= mands of your Majesty's, the Queen's, and Prince's Health, and some few Complements unto myself concerning my Welcome again to the Court, he fell to speak of the falle Alarms we had in England concerning a Spanish Armada; seeming much displeas'd that any Credit should be given to any Thing fo much 1623.

much to his Master's Dishonour and want of Fidelity, as he termed it ; but your Majesty, he faid, did never believe it : And, it feems, he had heard of fome pleasant Answer your Majesty should make to some one of your Ministers, that in great Haste came to your Majesty when you were a Hunting, and told you that the Spanish Fleet was in the Sleeve. From this he entred into great Protestation of the Sincerity of this King's Affections and Intentions towards your Majefty; telling me, That I should now see how much they defired to work a greater Nearnels and Uniting between your Majesties; and that particularly as to the principal Business (of which in former Time he had (poken, meaning the Marriage,) he would shortly speak with me, but it must be at more Leisure. I answer'd him, That I should not fail shortly to wait on him, and that be should find me answerable to the Professions I had made; which was, that, being induced thereunto by such sufficient and good Grounds as might fatisfy my Master, both for the Conveniency and Fittingness of having such a Treaty to be set on foot, and likewife might take away all Objections of their. Intent of entertaining and diverting your Majesty hereby, I would be as ready to do all good Offices, and give Furtherance to the Business, as any Minister the King of Spain had. And this was all that, at our first Meeting, passed in this Busines.

About some eight Days after, I having not all this Time stirred out of my House, under Colour of being indispos'd, though the Truth was, indeed, to inform myself of some Particulars which concern'd your Majesty's Service before I would speak with the Duke; he being, as I since understood, somewhat troubled, that, in all this Time; I made no Means to come unto him, one Morning, by Nine of the Clock, very privately, came to my House, without advertising of his coming (as the Custom is here) untill his Coach staid at my Gate; and then he sent a Gentleman to me, telling me, That the Duke was there to speak with me. When I had conducted the Duke into a Room where we were private, he sell into the aforesaid Matter, and in the Manner as I shall here fet down unto your Majesty, without making any An. 21. James I. other Pretence as the Intent of his Coming, or without 1623." using, in the Space of an Hour, any Speech of any other Busine/s.

After some few Questions of your Majesty and the Queen, he began to ask many Things of the Prince, as of his Age, his Stature, his Health, his Inclination, to what Sports he was chiefly given, and then fuddenly; as it were with a paffionate Expression of Affection, he defired God to blefs him, and to make him the Means by which your Majesty might be conjoyned in a nearer Alliance, and your Kingdoms in perpetual Amity; faying to me, That he was out of Doubt of my good Inclinations to this Business, both by what had formerly pass'd between us on this Subjest, as likewife by my Proceedings in England, whereof he had been fully informed by the Spanish Ambajfador; and therefore he would, in a few Words, deal with me with much Freeness and Clearness, assuring himfelf he should receive the like Measure from me ; and thereupon entered into a folemn Protestation, how much the King defired the Match ; and, for himfelf, be folemnly fwore there was no one Thing in the World he more defired to fee before he died, than the effecting thereof : But, my Lord Ambaffador, faid he, you must deal as justly with me, to let me understand whether you conceive the like Defire to be in the King of England and his Ministers, and then I shall proceed to speak further unto you. I answered the Duke, That I ever esteem'd more the Reputation of a Man of Truth and Integrity, than of Skill and Subtilty; which, I did hope, he would well perceive by what I. was to fay; for that I was much more defirous fairly to go off from this Business, than easily to enter into it; and therefore if he would have me speak my Confcience, I did not conceive that, either in your Majefly, or any of your wlinisters, there was any Kind of Inclination thereunto; for that they having formerly given fo rejolute and distasteful an Answer, your Majesty had just Cause never again to cast so much as your Thoughts this Way; and though it might be alledged, That the Fitnefs of the Prince's Years, . Voi. VI. F and

James 1. and other civil Regards, might caufe new Refolutions. yet the Differences of Religion were still the fame, and the fame were the Tenets and Opinions of Divines in Matter of Conscience; and therefore it could not but be a Thing of great Difficulty to perfuade your Majesty and your Ministers, that a Match should be hearken'd unto, much less desired from hence, but upon the fame Terms; the very Thought and Remembrance whereof is yet unpleafing in England : So that. to deal plainly with him, I neither found, either in your Majesty, or in the Council, any Kind of Thought or Imagination of any Poffibility of having any fuch Motion again ; but this I found not to grow from any Dislike or want of Affection in your Majesty towards Spain, or that many of the greatest or principallest Perfons in England judged not the Nearness and Alliance with Spain' equally valuable with any other in Chriftendom ; but that, out of Distastefulness of the former Answers given from hence, all Expectations of any Business of this Nature were absolutely extinguished; and therefore again to revive it, there would need more than ordinary Endeavours, or ordinary Affistance: But as I knew this Match would neither want. Well-Willers nor Affifters, and, for my own Part, I would freely make Profession, that no Man more defired it than myfelf, or would more willingly employ his Endeavours for the Furtherance thereof; when, by descending to Particulars, I should see that both in regard to the Conditions and Assurance of fincere Proceeding, the Motion was worthy and proper for a good Servant to offer it unto his Mafter; neither then should I be whoily out of Hope of good Succefs, the' I could not but efteem it a Business of infinite Difficulties.

The Duke replied, That any Course I thought fit herein should be condescended unto; for that all Time was lost that was spent in Generalities; and therefore, if I fo liked, he would move this King, that fome one or two befides himfelf might be appointed to have Conference with me; for that if he should retain it in his own Hand only, it would, by reason of bis many Occupations, have a flower Progress than be he wish'd; but if we would, by way of Conference, An. 21. James I. digest the Difficulties into Heads and Particulars, he would, as often as he could, be present at our Meetings; and, for his own Part, he faid, he apprehended few Difficulties would arife but from Difference of Religion.

I told the Duke, That I very well approved of the descending into Particulars; neither should I refuse Conference with any herein whom the King should appoint to speak, with me : But if his Meaning were, that these Perfons should be nominated or join'd by way of Commission, I thought fit to let him underfland, that I neither had any Time, nor did I at the present speak of this Business either by Order or Direction; no, not fo much as even by your Majesty's Privity : But as a Minister, that desired to lay hold on all Occasions for the encreasing of further Love and Nearness betwixt bis Master and the Prince by whom he is employed, I should be glad, to the utmost of my Power, to advance and further this Caufe; as that which I apprehended to be the greatest, which the World now affordeth, for the firm uniting of your Majefties and your Eflates.

The Duke told me, That this King would make no Scruple to declare his good Inclination and Defire to have the Match proceeded in ; and that, for accommodating the Difficulties, he had already used divers Offices and Diligences with the Pope, as likewife with the greatest Divines of this Kingdom, whereof be named some unto me, whom, he faid, he found very well inclined to the Match. He told me aljo he would be glad they might speak with me, so then I might truly understand, by them, all Kind of Scruple that could be alledged. I answered, That I defired nothing more, and that I could not but approve of these Courses he prescribed, as the most probable to produce a good Effect; and that I hoped God would give a happy Success to the Business : But I should be bold in one Thing to deliver my Opinion, which was, no ways to interest our Masters herein, unless by the understanding and clearing the Difficulties on both Sides, there should be a great Appearance and Proba-F 2 bility

An. 21. James I. bility, that the Business would take Effect; for if their Names should be therein used, and afterwards the Treaty should not be fuccessful, it would but exasperate and breed a greater Distaste betwixt your Majeflies. The Duke told me, He misliked not my Opinion; tho' he faid, However the Business succeeded, yet you should have Reason to accept kindly this King's good Intentions; for that, if it miscarried, it should appear not to be thro' their Default; but that they had stretched as far as Honour or Conscience would give them leave.

And thus much he faid I might write to your Majefty," If I thought fit, or to my confident Friends in England, his Word and Affurance; and fo telling me, that he would prefently appoint those that should confer with me in this Business, we then parted.

Within two Days after I went to the Duke, and, after I had spoken to him of the Business of Cleves, according to my Instructions, whereof I gave an Account to Mr. Secretary, in a Dispatch directed to him. we fell again into Speech of the Match.

The Duke told me he had well confidered of that which I had faid unto him, and much approv'd it, Not to interest our Masters in the Business till we Pould fee fome Likelyhood of good Success.

And for that he supposed the Difference of Religion, like to prove the only Difficulty of Confideration, he thought it fit that it should first be cleared; and therefore be would break the Matter with the Cardinal of Toledo, and the King's Confessor, and with them should be join'd another learned Man, one Father Fredrick; who, fince I understand, is a Jesuit, but truly bath the Report of a moderate Man. Thefe, the Duke faid, thould have Orders to confer with me, and Charge to go as far as might be, referving Tafe the Grounds and Sincerity of their Religion. I answered the Duke, That I was well satisfied berewith; and that f their Demands were fuch as would content any other Catholic Prince, I should hope of good Success; if otherwise, I bould yet judge it an Happiness to be put out of. Doubt and Suspence; and Jo we paffed from this Subject. I

I prefume to fet down to your Majefly all the Paf. An. 21. James I. 1623. . 3 fages of this Business, with so much Length and Fulnefs, (for that I no ways dare adventure to offer to your. Majesty any Opinion or Belief of my own, either for. the Fitness of the Match, or for the Sincerity of their Intention, or the Poffibility of accommodating Differences in Religion) that your Majesty, seeing undifguifedly all that hath bither to paffed, with every Circumstance, may be pleased, out of the Consideration and Knowledge of these Particulars, to frame unto yourfelf fuch a Belief of their direct Meaning; and luch a Resolution for the further proceeding herein, as Shall be most fuitable to your Majesty's Wildom. Only I shall think it fit to set down further to your. Majefty, the particular Ends which, it may be conceived, they aim at, by fetting this Business on Foot at this prefent, in cafe they should not intend really to perform it. The first may be to divert and stagger your Majesty's Treaty with France. The Second, for the entertaining your Majesty with fair Hopes and Promifes, thereby to keep you from declaring yourfelf opposite to them in the prefent Business of Juliers and Cleves ; which is still remaining unsettled.

... But this being fo, your Majesty may be pleased to understand, that the' they may ferve themselves with this Occasion, yet that there could not any such Thing be primarily in their Intention; for the expressing of their Defire to the Match was the last Year, long before these Differences happened.

Further, the Duke of Lerma would be the most falle and disbonourable Man living, without Chriflianity or Soul, if he would voluntarily so deeply damn himself with Oaths and Protestations of a Thing he fincerely meant not; and truly he would deal contrary to the Wildom of his other Proceedings, wherein he layeth all Actions of Distaste or Discourtefy upon other inferior Ministers, labouring still to clear himself of the Imputation of them, if in this he should make himself the Author and Instrument of fo indirect and unjust Proceedings between Princes: But the Courfe of most Security and Caution is, that your Majefly fuffer none of your other Refolutions to F De

An. 21. James I. be interrupted by this Overture ; only, if your Majesty be pleased for a while to entertain and suspend the Conclusion of the Match with France, I conceive it can be but little to your Majesty's Disadvantage.

It, lafly, now remaineth, that I become an humble. Suitor to your Majesty for your clear and full Directions in this Businels; defiring that, if your Majefty will have it further entertained, I may have ample Instructions from your Majesty; both that I may intimate what may be expected in point of Dowry, and in all other Things to be required by your Majefty, as likewife how far I may proceed in fatisfying them in point of Religion; for it is not to be supposed that they will proceed with that Freeness and Directness which is to be wished for, unless, in a fitting Measure, they (ball fee me likewife able and willing to declare myfelf in fuch Points wherein they may expect Satisfaction. I intend not hereby to move for a formal Commission to treat, but only a private Instruction for my Direction and Warrant how to behave myfelf as may be most advantageous to the Caufe and your Majefly's Ends : So, humbly befeeching your Majesty to command this Bearer to be dispatched back with all convenient Speed, I recommend your Majesty to the holy Protection of God.

Madrid, Jan. 3. Your Majefty's Faithful Subject: and Servant, JO. DIGBY:

After hearing the Contents of this Letter, the The Lords re-Lords began to deliberate on what should be delifolve to advife the King to break vered to the Commons, at a Conference that Afteroff the Treaties noon, concerning the Grand Affair. And it was with Spain;

agreed, that the Lord-Keeper should begin with an Induction, out of the Duke's Narration; and then acquaint the Commons, That the Opinion of their Houfe was to advife the King, fuper totam Materiam, That his Majefty cannot, with the Safety of his own Honour, or Conveniency of Religion and the State, proceed any further for the Treaty of the Prince's Prince's Match, nor rely any longer on that for the An. 21. James I. Recovery of the Palatinate. 1623.

It was also agreed, that the Lord-Keeper should deliver unto the Commons, by way of Supplement, first, concerning the Treaty of Marriage, That it appeared, by the Earl of Briftol's Difpatch, of November 3. 1624. That the first Motion of it came from Spain, viz. from the Duke of Lerma into England. 2. Concerning the Treaty of Restitution, That the King of Spain had promifed Affiftance, by Arms, in cafe a Mediation should not prevail; tho' now he denied it again. This appeared out of another Difpatch from the Earl of Briftol. 3. Concerning an heroic Saying of the Prince, 'That when it was notifed he should be detained a Prisoner in Spain, he fent Word by Grymes to the King, That in cafe News should come hither of bis Detention, his Majefty would think no more on him as a Son; but reflect all his royal Thoughts on his Sifter, and the Wellfare of his own Estates and Kingdoms.'

The reft of this Day and the two following A Conference were chiefly taken up in the Conference between thereupon. the two Houfes, about this Grand Affair, as the Journals call it: And,

March 5. The Archbifhop of Canterbury made a Report, briefly, of what had paffed at it, and delivered in the Reasons, in Writing, from the Commons, to fortify their Resolutions to advife his Majefty to proceed no farther in the Treaties with Spain: Which were these:

I. 'It is obferved, That the State of Spain, not The Commons content with their ordinary Provisions for the Exrecise of the Roman Religion by the Infanta and her Lords therein. Family, which other Princes, in like Cafe, would have demanded, and which his Majefty, with great Reason, might, at the Beginning of this Treaty, have conceived they would have been contented with, have, with great Vehemency, upon the Advantage of having the Prince's Perfon in their Pofleffion, prefied a general Connivance for his Majefty's Subjects of the Roman Religion, to the great Difhonour

An. 21. James I. honour of Almighty God, in the Sincerity of his Service in this Realm; and to the apparent Diminution of his Majefty's Sovereignty, by eftablishing a neceffary Dependence for Protection upon a foreign King and State; and to the great Derogation of the Laws of this Kingdom; and, laftly, to the Grief and Difcouragement of all his Majefty's wellaffected Subjects, from whose general Discontent they expected, as well appeareth, a Confequence of no fmall Mifchief."

• II. It is observed, that during the Continuance of this Treaty, and by reason of the same, the Popifh Faction have exceedingly increafed in this Realm, both in Multitude and Boldness; and whereas, heretofore, they have been divided amongst themfelves into the Party of Jesuits depending upon Spain, and the fecular Priefts; otherwife they are generally, now, ftrongly united together, depending no lefs upon Spain for temporal Refpects, than . from Rome for fpiritual; which, confidering the Houfe of Spain hath been always a capital Enemy to our Religion, to encreafe their own Greatness, by extirpating the Protestant Party in all Places where they can prevail, cannot but be of most dangerous Confequence to the Safety of the King and . this Realm, unlets Remedy be provided with Speed for abating that Party here at home; which cannot be during the Time thefe Treaties are on Foot.'

• III. It is observed, that, by Advantage of these Treaties, and thereby keeping his Majefty in hope of general Peace, they have contrarily, under Pretence of affifting the Emperor, opprefied by the Protestant Party in most Part of Christendom, being the antient Allies and Confederates of this Crown, to the endangering not only of the whole State of the Reformed Religion, but alfo against the common Safety of all the Professions of the fame.'

· IV. During the Time of these Treaties of Love with his Majefty, they have, with all Kind of Hoftility, fet upon his Majefty's Son-in-Law, the Husband of his only and moft Royal Daughter; invaded his Towns and Territories in all Places; and, in fine, difinherited him, with all that Royal Off- An. 21. James I. fpring, of all his antient patrimonial Honours and 1623. Posiellions; to the great Difhonour of his Majefty, and the extream Grief of all his well-affected Subjects; and now alfo, at the laft, when they fhould have: come to make good the Hope of Reflitution, they have laid new Grounds for endlefs Delays, and turned pretended Difficulties into apparent Impoffibilities; not forbearing alfo to annex, as a Condition to the weak Hope of their uncertain and imperfect Reftitution, that the eldeft Son of the Count Palatine should be brought up in the Em-, peror's Court : So reftlefs are their Defires to work. the Overthrow of our Religion by all poffible De-. vices.'

· Lafly, It is too apparent how many Years, from Time to Time, they have deluded and abufed his Majefty with their Treaties; how fmall Refpect they have fhewed to the Prince's Greatness and Worth; what Indignity they have offered, again and again, to his Highness, by importuning him, upon all Advantages, to forfake his Religion; contrary to the Cuftom of all Princes, and contrary, to the antient Laws of Honour and Hospitality; who ought to have been used there with princely Freedom, and prefied to nothing to which he was. ill-difpofed ; confidering withall, with what Confidence, being fo great a Prince, he had put himfelf within their Power; altho' it pleafed God fo to guide and fortify his Princely Heart, that he conftantly withftood all their Attempts and Machinations, to his own immortal Honour, and the unfpeakable Comfort of all good People of his Father's Kingdom; whereunto may be added the infinite Advantageoufnels and endlels Delays in their Treaties, inviting still to new Treaties, and turning all to the Advantage of their own particular Ends; being true to nothing but their own grounded Maxims, with which reither the Match nor Refitution of the Palatinate can possibly confist, but upon fuch Terms as threaten to our Effate an incyrable Mitchief; and, tor a further Juftification of

> • First, In that Treaty concerning Prince Henry; after many specious Motions on their Part, it was followed with difavowing their own Ambassidors, and a fcornful Proposition to the King for that Prince's altering his Religion.'

> * Secondly, In the Treaty of Bruffels, wherein Sir Richard Wefton was employed, he found nothing but Delays and Deceits; and, after divers peremptory Commands from Spain, for his Majefty's Satisfaction, they wrought no other Effect than the Siege and taking of Heidelbergh; fo that he was forced to return with a Proteftation.'

> • Thirdly, When Baron Bafot came thither to continue their former Treaty, the first News we heard was, the Translation of the Electorate to the Duke of Bavaria; of which both the Baron and Don Carlos protested Ignorance, and that the King of Spain would let the World see how much he resented such an Affront; yet it plainly appeareth, by the Letter of the Count d'Olivares, given to the Prince, that the State of Spain both had Intelligence of it before, and expected it to be effected at that Diet.'

> • Fourthly, When his Highnefs was in Spain the Count d'Olivares fhewed him two Letters, by which it plainly appeared, that, till his Coming thither, there was nothing really intended; which they were not afhamed directly to avow to the Prince himfelf, and that after the Requital of fo hazardous a Journey; and fuch an extraordinary Truft. When all Articles were again concluded, they found a new Shift, by a Juncto of Divines, to let the Prince come home without the Lady; for whofe Perfon his Highnefs had chiefly put himfelf to that Hazard.'

> • Laftly, When upon his Highnefs's happy Return hither, we had just Cause to expect the utmost they would do in reftoring the Palatinate; the faithful Promise of which was the only Cause that the Prince yielded to that Juncto of Divines, the An.21. Jameş I. Defponfaries being prefently to follow; the Bergflat was to be delivered to the Elector of Mentz, being won by the King of Spain's Arms, and Part of it then in Possentian of Spain's Arms, and Part of it then in Possentian of the Treaty, concluded by Don Carlos and the Baron of Basson it wherein it was particularly provided that no Alteration was to be made in these Treatics, till the general Treaty was at an End.'

These Reasons, with the consequent Advice to the King annexed, being read, the Lords approved of them by a general Vote of the House, Nemine diffentiente; and a Committee of the Lords was appointed to join that of the other House, in order to go and present them to his Majesty.

March 8. The Archbishop of Canterbury reported to the House, That, on the 6th Instant, the joint Committees of both Houses waited on his Majesty, at Theobalds; at which Time he delivered himself to the King as follows;

May it please your Most Excellent Majesty,

• WE are come unto you, employed from The Address of your most faithful Subjects and Servants, both Houses on the Lords and Commons affembled in this present that Occasion. Parliament.

And, first, They and we do give moft humble and hearty Thanks unto Almighty God; that, out of his gracious Goodne's, he hath been pleafed, now at laft, to difpel the Clouds and Mifts, which, for fo many Years, have dimmed the Eyes of a great Part of Christendom, in the Bufinefs whereof we do now confult.

And, fecondly, We acknowledge ourfelves moft bound unto your Majefty; that you have been pleafed to require the humble Advice of us your obedient Subjects, in a Cafe fo important as this, which hitherto dependeth between your Majefty and the King of Spain; which we jointly offer from both Houfes, no one Perfor there differting or dif-

' fundry Natures, that, finding fo much Want of Sincerity in all their Proceedings, we, fuper totam " Materiam, prefent this our humble Addrefs unto · your Majefty; that the Treaties, both for the · Marriage and the Palatinate, cannot any longer · be continued with the Honour of your Majefly, * the Safety of your People, the Welfare of your · Children and Posterity, as also the Assurance of ' your antient Allies and Confederates.'

> To this Speech from the Archbishop the King returned this immediate Anfwer :

My Lords and Gentlemen all,

fores.

The King's An- T Have Caufe first to thank God with all my Heart I and all the Faculties of my Mind, that my Speech, which I delivered in Parliament, hath taken fo good Effect among it you; as that, with an unanimous Confent, you have freely and speedily given me your Advice in this great Busines; for which I also thank you all as heartily as I can.

> I also give my particular Thanks to the Gentlemen of the Lower House; for that I heard, when some would have cast Jealousies and Doubts between me and my People, they prefently quelled those Motions; which otherwife might, indeed, have hindred the hapby Agreement I hope to find in this Parliament, You give me your Advice to break off both the Treaties, as well concerning the Match as the Palatinate : And now give me Leave, as an old King, to propound my Doubts, and hereafter to give you my Anfwer.

First, it is true, that I, who have been, all the . Days of my Life, a peaceable King; and have had the Honour, in my Titles and Impresses, to be stiled Rex Pacificus, should be loth, without Necessity, to embroil myfelf with War; far from my Nature and from my Honour, which I have had at home and abroad, in endeavouring to avoid the Effusion of Christian Blood; of which too much hath been fned, and fo much against my Heart: I (ay, that unless it be upon fuch enter into it. And I must likewise acquaint you, that I have had no small Hope given me of obtaining better. Conditions for the Restitution of the Palatinate, and that even fince the fitting down of the Parliament : But be not jealous, nor think me fuch a King, that would, under Pretence of asking your Advice, put a Scorn upon you, by difdaining and rejecting it : For you remember, that in my first Speech unto you, for Proof of my Love to my People, I craved your Advice in this great and weighty Affair; but, in a Matter of this Weight, I must first consider how this Course may agree with my Confcience and Honour; and next, according to the Parable uttered by our Saviour, after I have refolved of the Necessity and Justness of the Caufe, to confider how I shall be enabled to raife Forces for this Purpole.

As concerning the Caufe of my Children, I am now old; and, as Mofes faw the Land of Promile from an high Mountain, the' he had not Leave to fet his Foot on it; fo it would be a great Comfort to me, that God would tut fo long prolong my Days, as if I might not see the Restitution, yet at least I might be assured that it would be; that then I might, with old Simeon, Jay, Nunc dimittis Servum tuum, Domine, &c. Otherwife it would be a great Grief unto me, and I should die with a heavy and discomforted Heart. I. have often faid, and particularly in the last Parliament, and I shall ever be of that Mind, That as I am not ambitious of other Mens Goods or Lands, 10 I defire not to enjoy a Furrow of Land in England, Scotland, or Ireland, without Restitution of the Palatinate: And in this Mind I will live and die.

But let me acquaint you a little with the Difficulties of this Caufe. He is an unhappy Man that shall advife a King to War; and it is an unhappy Thing to seek that by Blood, which may be had by Peace. Befides, I think your Intentions are not to engage me in War; but, withall, you will confider how many I hings are requisite thereunto.

An. 21. James I. 1623.

I omit to fpeak of my own Neceffities, they are too well known. Sure I am, I have had the least Help in Parliament of any King that ever reign'd over you this many Years. I must let you know that my Difabilities are increased by the Charge of my Son's fourney into Spain; which I was at for his Honour, and the Honour of this Nation: By fending of Ambaffadors, by maintaining of my Children, and by affifting of the Palatinate, I have incurred a great Debt to the King of Denmark, which I am not able yet to pay.

The Low Countries, who, in regard of their Nearnefs, are fitteft to help for the Recovery of the Palatinate, are at fo low an Ebb, that, if I affift them not, they are fcarce able to fubfift. The Princes of Germany, that should do me any Good, are all poor, weak, and disheartened, and do expect Affistance from hence. For Ireland, I leave it to you, whether that be not a Back-Door to be fecured. For the Navy, I thank God, it is in a better Cafe than ever it was, yet more must be done; and, before it can be prepared as it ought to be, it will require a new Charge, as well for its own Strength, as for the fecuring of the Coasts.

My Children, I now to God, eat no Bread but by my Means; I must maintain them, and not see them want. In the mean Time, my Customs are the best Part of my Revenues, and, in effect, the Substance of all I have to live on; all which are farmed out upor that Condition, That if there be a War; those Bangains are to be difannulled; which enforce a great Defalcation.

Subfidies ask a great Time to bring them in: Now, if you affilt me that Way, I must take them up beforehand upon Credit; which will eat up a great Part of them. This being my Cafe, to enter into War, without sufficient Means to support it, were to shew my Teeth, and do no more. In the mean Time. I heartily thank you for your Advice, and will seriously think upon it; as I pray you to consider of those other Parts.

My

That; according to his Majefty's Command, a Relation of his Effate had been made by the Lord Treafurer unto them; and they imagine the like hath been done in their Houfe, by fome Members of it there: Therefore, as this is like to be the Foundation of thefe Endeavours, which muft firft arife from them, left fome Doubts fhould be ftarted in that Houfe, as there had been among the Lords; (which by all Means they do labour to avoid) their Lordfhips defire a Meeting, with all convenient Speed; where the Prince will be pleafed, in his own Perfon, to clear fuch Doubts as have arifen in this Bufinefs.' This was agreed to by the Commons; the Place, to be the Painted Chamber; the Time, immediately.

March 12: After the Reading of fome public and private Bills, the Lord Prefident of the Council, the Viscount Mandevile, reported to the House what passed at the Conference, Yesterday, with the Commons. He faid,

• That his Royal Highnefs's Speech was fram'd upon two Doubts; one flarted in that Houle, and the fecond proposed by himfelf; and that he used an heroic Speech at the last. His Highnefs told thena them; That the Lord Treasurer had delivered to An. 21. James L. 1623. the Lords the prefent Neceffity of the King's Effate. And a Doubt arifing amongst their Lordships, what the King's End might be in this; his Highnefs thought fit to give his own Senfe thereof; and, left the like Doubt might also have arisen amongst them, the Lords had commanded him, as his Highnefs was pleafed to fay, to declare thus much unto them : 'That the King did not intend, by that ⁶ Declaration, that we fhould prefently enter into · Confideration of relieving the King's Eftate; ^c but, to let us fee and know, that he could not, of ⁶ himfelf, and upon his Eftate, maintain the War * that might enfue upon our Advice; but intended ' that, in the first Place, we should provide for the · Defence and Safety of the Kingdom ; and when • we had refolved upon that, then it fhould appear ' a Thing of no great Difficulty to fettle the King's Eftate in his own due Time.' This was for the Resolution of the first Doubt.

⁶ But three Things his Highnels withed us chiefly to confider : Firft. How far this Bufinels was gone on already, Secondly, How far the Year was run on. And, thirdly, How far we have exaferrated those whom we may conceive to be our Enemies. Three good Items.

• Therefore it was fit to ufe Expedition, and fo to provide, that we might not only fhew our Teeth, and do no more; but allo be able to bite when there thall be Caufe. Something more the Prince added, as follows; but this he told them; they must take yot; VI.

Gentlemen.

The Prince's Speech for a War with Spain.

TPray you think feriously of this Business ; take it to Heart and confider it. First, my Father's Honour, next mine; and more particularly mine, because it is my new Entring into the World. If, in this, ye Shall fail me, ye shall not only dishonour me, but bring Dishonour upon yourselves: But, if ye go on with Courage, and shew Alacrity and Readiness in this Bufiness, you shall fo oblige me unto you now, that I will never forget it hereafter; and, when Time doth ferve, ye shall find your Love and your Labour well bestowed.

Which Report the Lord Prefident ended thus: • This Conclusion did fo take us, that we all prayed God to blefs him, as we had just Caufe to honour him.'

When the Lords had heard the Lord Prefident's Report, they received a Meflage from the Commons to this Effect :

• That they had certain Information of great. Sums of Gold to be transported beyond Seas, and, as they conjectured, by the Papifis: Wherefore they thought good to acquaint their Lordfnips, in whofe Power it is to redrefs the fame, that theymay take fuch Order therein as their Lordships think good.' The Lords answered, That they would immediately enquire about that Mattter; and the Lord Prefident, the Duke of Buckingham, the Earl Marshal, with the Earl of Southampton, were appointed a Committee for that Purpofe..

In aniwer to this the Lords named, prefently, a Committee of fix from each Bench to attend this A Conference Conference, that Afternoon; and, becaufe fome thereupon. Emergencies may happen which will occafion the Advice of the Houfe, they agreed to fit at the fame Time.

Post Meridiem. The Committee of Lords being returned from the Conference with the Commons, the Archbishop of Canterbury made the Report of it to the whole House, to this Effect;

⁶ That the Committee of the Commons acquainted them, That they were first commanded to return the hearty Thanks of their whole House to the Prince for his Highness's Speech unto their Committee; at their last Meeting; wherein they took much Joy and Comfort; and to assure him, that they will be ever very tender of his Highness's Honour.

'That they had concurred, with one unanimous Confent, to the Affiftance of his Majefty, whenfoever he fhall be pleafed to declare himfelf touching the breaking off the two Treaties with Spain.'

Then the Attorney General read the Declaration, and the Lords gave their Confent to the Subflance of it, by a general Vote of the Houle; but agreed to mend the fame in the Introduction, becaufe it was in the Name of the Commons only. This Addition the other Committee affented to; and, when it was all finished, it was agreed to be prefented to the King, by a Committee of both Houses, at such Time as his Majesty would please to admit them to his Prefence.

The Journals of the Commons are very defective in their first Account of this Session of Parlia-

> March 11. The Chancellor of the Exchequer reported fome Particulars relating to the King's prefent Debts, occafioned by fome late Expences, and particularly the long and deceitful Treaties he had entered into, ' That, from the Year 1617, the King had expended 145,000 l. in Entertainment of Ambafladors fent hither; Charge of the naval Expedition against the Pirates; on Ships for the Prince's Journey; Money taken up by the Prince in Spain, Sc. That there was 80,000 l. due to the King of Denmark, with Intereft. Towards all these _____ Here is an Higtus for what had been given towards it. And he next proceeds to acquaint the Houfe what Savings, in the public Expences, had been made ; as, ' That, for Ireland, an Establishment was begun there, both for Church and Common-Wealth; which, purfued, would fubfift of itfelf: For the Navy, befides the King's Timber, it coft 50,000 l. a Year ; reduced these last five Years to 30,000 l. and ten new Ships built, befides many Houfes for Magazines: For the Forts, a Commission was given this last Summer to two Persons, who have made a Certificate of the Charge; which may be feen when the Houfe pleafes."

> The next that fpoke was Sir Benjamin Rudyard, who proved, in the fucceeding Reign, a great Orator in the Houfe, he faid, 'That Want of Parliaments were the principal Means of the Growth of Grievances in the Common-Wealth: That the King's Propolitions to us now, were, how to make good that Breach which we advife him to: To prepare for their own Security: To intreat the Lords to join with them in a Committee of a Council of War, to devife the fitteft Means to fecure Ireland, our Forts, fit out our Navy, and join with

March 13. After fome public and private Bills were read, his Royal Highnefs acquainted the Houfe, That his Majefty was pleafed the Committees of both Houfes fhould attend him the next Day, at Whitehall, at Two in the Afternoon, in order to deliver their Declaration. And a Preamble to it being thought neceffary by the Lords, the fame was communicated, by Meflage, to the Commons, and approved of by that Houfe. Accordingly,

March 14. The Archbishop of Canterbury (n), who had been appointed to deliver these Matters to the King, waited on him, at the Head of the Committee of both Houses, and spoke as follows:

The introductory Speech, indeed, is pretty exact; but the Declaration in Rushworth is a guite different Thing; being the Proposition which was made to the King, fome Days after this, on his . My Lords and Gentlemen all,

I Have nothing to fay to the Preamble of my Lord of Canterbury, but that he intimated fomething in it which I, never spoke (p): For whereas he faid, I have shewed myself fensible of the Infincerity of those, with whom I had lately to deal, and of the Indignity offered to myChildren? In this you muss give me Leave to tell you, that I have not expressed myself to be either fensible or insensible of their good or had Dealing: Buckingham hath made a Relation to you, by my Commandment. which you are to judge upon; but I never yet delivered my Mind upon it. When Jup ter specks, he uses to join his Thunder to it; and a King should not speak, except he maintain it by Action (q). As for the Matter of their De-An. 21, James I. claration unto my Demands, which you have couched in that Paper, which I now heard read unto me, I confess, it is without Example, that any King hath had fuch an Offer. And, with your Favour, I need fear nothing in this World, having so much the Hearts of my People. For the large Offer of Assidues; I hold it to be more than Millions of Subsidies; and, indeed, it is an ample Reward for the Trust and Freedom which I have used with you.

But, my Lords and Gentlemen, you must give me Leave, on the other Side, to confider the Possibility of the Action: For, in this Cafe, I must do, as a Man that maketh a Fortification. which must have Out-Works and In-Works; fo I must not deal only with my own People, but with my Neighbours and Allies, to affift me in fo great a Business as the Recovery of the Palatinate. And, in this Cafe, it is not fufficient to have the Hearts of my Subjects, without the Help of my Neighbours and Allies. On the other Side, unless particular Means be set down, it will neither be a Bridle to our Enemies, nor a Comfort to my Friends who shall join with me. General Words will not carry it; therefore I must rejort to particular Means, and follow the Counfel of our Saviour Christ in the Gospel, before I begin a War, to see how I can maintain it. God knows it is a long fome Work, yet I defire with Mofes, as I faid before, but to fee the Land of Promise, the' I live not till it be recovered. But unless particular Means be discovered, it is little to the Point : Therefore, fince you give me fuch fair general Promifes, I will deal freely with you, I will tell you, in particular, the Way I will propofe, either by way of Subfidies or otherwife ; which being done in Parliament, is a Parliamentary Way. I would require you to be pleased to bestow upon me five Subsidies, and two Fifteens to every Sublidy, for the War: And, for mine own Necessities, my crying Debts are so hea-

(q) Rufeworth has it thus, It was Buckingham's Relation to you which touce'd upon it, but it mush not bar me, nor make Jupiter flocak that which Jupiter flocaks not; for when I flocak any fuch Thing, I will flocak it with that Reafon, and back it with that Fower, which becomes a King.

An. 21. James I. vy, that no Man can bear them with a greater Grief 1623. of Heart, and Sting of Conscience, than I have done, and do: And I new growing old, would be glad to fee a Means for the fatisfying of my Debts before F go out of the World: And, for this End, I defire you would give me one Subsidy and two Fifteens yearly, untill my Debts be paid.

> Here the Prince his Highness taking Notice of an Objection made, that this might teem contradictory to that which his Highness had told the Committee of both Houses, That the King's Majesty would ask nothing for his own Particular till the Wars were provided for: The Prince faid, That the Duke of Buckingham, in his Absence, hath moved this Doubt unto the King.

Whereupon the Duke affirmed, that, fpeaking with the King about it, his Majefty was pleafed to fay, If we would add one Subfidy, and two Fifteens to make it up fix Subfidies and twelve Fifteens for the War, he was well content to quit that which he had asked for his own Neceffities.

The King proceeded: If this may be done, or that I may see a fair Way for it, I will follow your Advice ; for I would never have asked your Advice to reject it, or to put a Scorn upon you. For the lewying of these Subsidies and Fifteens, I would have you to confider how to clear these two Difficulties. If you levy them too fuddenly, it may be heavy for the People; if you stay too long, it will not serve the Turn: But this I leave to your Confideration. And fince I leave it to yourfelves to receive the Money, and expend it by your own Committees of both Houses, you may be the more fecure. And yet I would not have you to be too hafty in the levying of it, that no Extremity be shewed to my People by imposing too heavy a Eurden upon them, which God forbid. On the other Side. the Business will not suffer too long lingring about it. I told you before, I had, in this great Business, to look to my Confcience and Honour, as well as to the Means : For the Means, I must have it from you ; my Confcience and Honour is my own, of which I have thought thought, and do think daily, and how I shall be able to An. 21. James 1. discharge them as a King ought to do. In this Point I am already refolved in a great Part; but, if any Scruple shall remain with me, I will acquaint you with it, and not only feek but follow your Advice (r).

Here again the Prince faid, He had fpoken with his Father, to know of him, whether he were fatisfied in Honour and Confcience that he might in this Cafe undertake a War; and that his Majefty anfwered, He was already fatisfied and refolved therein; but, for the Manner of publishing it, he would take your Advice.

Then the Duke of Buckingham faid, The Reafon why his Majefty ufed thefe Words, was, that having formerly fpoken of his Honour and Confcience, if he fhould now have left them out, it might have been thought that Money only had drawn him to it. But the King faid he was already fatisfied and refolved, yet would have our Advice for the Manner of declaring it.

The King again proceeded. I told you before, that this was the Way to make me in Love with Parliaments : And, to shew mine Inclination to continue. them still, my Resolution is to make this a Session for the passing of as many good Laws, as, in convenient Time, may be prepared ; and, at Michaelmas, or within a few Days aften, to have a new Seffion, and another at the Spring. And, in the mean Time, you may go down and acquaint yourfelves with the Grievances of my People, and you shall see my Care to make good Laws, and to reform Abuses; that so my Subjects may find the good Fruits of Parliaments. and rejoice in them : And, I protest, as I have asked your Advice in these Points, which I needed not to have done, fo I will never enter into any Agreement or Treaty of Composition for Peace, which is the End of War (elfe it is unjust and unchristian) without your Advice : And I will help you my felf, if we enter into a War, to make

> March 22. When the Lords received a Meffage from the Lower Houfe, importing, 'That, fince they defired all Expedition to be made in the great Bufine's of the two Treaties, and had taken into Confideration his Majefty's laft Anfwer, they have thought on a Proposition to be made to him touching those Affairs; wherefore they defire a Conference with the Lords about it.'

> This Conference was accepted by the Lords; and, when their Committee was returned from it, the Report was made by the Archbishop of Canterbury, That the Commons had delivered to them their Propositions in Writing, and had left a Blank for their Lordships to be named with them, if they thought fit. Then they were read to the House, and the Queftion being put, it was agreed, by all, only one Lord diffenting, to fill up the Blank. But afterwards, the Lords taking Exception against one Claufe about Religion, mentioned in the faid Proposition, the Commons agreed to leave it out; but not without a Division of their House. The Propofal from the two Houfes therefore, as it was delivered to the King by the Archbishop of Canterbury, was in these Words:

March 24. The Houfe of Lords went upon a further Justification of the Duke of Buckingham, against the Complaint of the Spanish Ambassador to the King. And there having been a Memorial prefented to his Majesty, by both Houses of Parliament, concerning it, according to an Order of the 27th of February last and the first of March, the Report of it was made to the Houfe this Day, by the Lord Keeper, with the King's Anfwer to it, in Manner following :

This ended, the Lord Keeeper proceeded thus in his Report;

• Now, my Lords, concerning his Majefty's Speech; it is not to be express'd or reported, becaufe it is a Speech of Affection as well as of Narration, not possible to be uttered, but in the fame Words it was delivered: Therefore, unless a Marr had Myron's Art, Qui Animos Hominum depinxis dicitur, who could paint to the Life the Souls and Affections of Men, he cannot do this as it flould be done; for, as Livy faid of Gicero, Ad laudandum Giceronem, altero Gieerone opus eff.; there had need to be another Cicero to undertake the commending An. 21 James 1. of Cicero; fo, furely, he ought to have as large a 1623. Heart as our gracious King, that will report his powerful and gracious Expressions.

⁶ I will therefore crave Pardon of the Houfe for delivering it in Writing, very near the Words and Syllables in which it was pronounced ; and, firft, to be read once or twice, if your Lordfhips pleafe, to the Houfe, and then to be enter'd in the Journal Book, as a Record of no finall Comfort and Confequence to the Public: For I may, without Flattery, which, for ought I know, I have been ever free from, declare, That fuch Servants as thefe, funt Inftrumenta boni Sæculi, are Tools and Inftruments to carve out a brave and happy World to enfuing Pofterity, as Symmachus writes in one of his Epittles.'

This faid, the Lord Keeper read his Majefty's Speech, out of a Paper, in hac Verba:

My Lords and Gentlemen all,

I Might have Reafon to speak nothing in regard of His Majefty's the Person whereof you speak, but, in regard of Answer thereto. your Motion, it were not civil; for, if I be filent, I shall wrong neither myself, nor that Nobleman which you now speak of, because he is well known to be fuch an one as stands in no Need of a Prolocutor, or Fidejustor, to undertake for his Fidelity, or well carrying of his Bussies: And, indeed, to fend a Man upon so great an Errand, whom I was not resolved to trust for the Carriage thereof, were a Fault in my Difcretion scarce compatible to the Leve and Trust I bear him. It is an old and true Saying, That he is a happy Man that ferves a good Master; and it is no lefs Truth, That he is a happy Master that enjoys a faithful Servant.

The greatest Fault, if it be a Fault, or at leastwise the greatest Error, I hope he shall ever commit against me, was his desiring this Justification from you, as if he should have need of any Justification from others towards me; and that for these Reasons: Vol. VI. H First,

An. 11. James I. Firft, Becaufe he, being my Difciple and Scholars may be affured I will truft his own Relation.

Secondly, Because he made the same Relation unto me, which he did afterwards unto both Houles; fo as I was formerly acquainted both with the Matter and Manner thereof; and if I should not trust him in the Carriage, I was altogether unworthy of fuch a Servant. He hath no Interest of his own in the Bufinefs: He had ill Thoughts at home for his going thither with my Son, altho' it was my Command, as I told you before : And now he hath as little Thanks for his Relation on the other Part ; yet he that ferveth God and a good Master cannot miscarry for all this.

"I have noted in his Negotiation these three remarkable Things, Faith, Dillgence, and Discretion; whereof my Son hath borne Record unto me; yet I cannot deny, but, as he thought to do good Service to his Mafler, he hath given ill Example to Ambaffadors in Time to come, because he went this long Journey upon his own Charges. This would prove an ill Example, if many of my Ambaffador's should take it for a Precedent. He ran his Head into the Yoke with the People kere for undertaking the Journey, and when he there Spent about forty or fifty thousand Pounds, never of-fered bis Account, nor made any Demand for the fame, or ever will. I hope other Ambaffadors will do fo no more. I am a good Master that never doubtedof him; for I know him to be fo good a Scholar of mine, that I fay, without Vanity, he will not exceed his Master's Distates; and I trust the Report not the zoorfe be made, becaufe it is approved by you all; yet I believe an honest Man as much as all the World, and the rather; because he was a Disciple of mine. I am glad he has fo well fatisfied you, and thank you very beartily for taking it in fo good Part, as I find you have done

When this Anfwer of the King's was also read to the Houfe, and was ordered to be enter'd in the Journals, the Duke of Buckingham flood up, and gave unto the Lords his most hearty Thanks for the great Favour they had done him; and profef-An. 21. James L 1623. fed to their Lordships, ' That they had absolutely engaged him for the Time to come, to employ all the Power and Favour, which he had in his Majefty's Service, for the public Good of the Kingdom, and for the Service of every one of their Lordships, The Duke of in particular, who should have occasion to make Buckingham's Thanks to the use of him. Concerning his Journey to Spain, Lords for their it did not coft him fo much as his Majefty was plea-Juftification of fed to name; yet, whatfoever it was, he might him. very well expend it in his Majefty's Service, being but the Produce of his Bounty and Goodness towards him. And, if his Majefty fhould extend his Liberality to any one of his Ambaffadors, in fo large a Proportion, they would be very unthankful, if they did not do as much for him as he had done.'

The Duke further declared, ' That it was his Majefty's Intent to fend a prefent Difpatch into Spain, in order to break off the two Treaties of the Match and the Palatinate, as was required by Parliament, with the Reafons moving him thereto."

The Lords no fooner heard this latter Part of the Duke's Speech, than they fent a Meffage to the Commons to defire an immediate Conference with them, in order to communicate this pleafing News to that Houfe. And joyful News it was to all England, as well as to the Parliament. The City Public Rejoicings. of London, Rufhworth tells us, teftified their Ap-upon breaking off probation of it by Bonfires, ringing of Bells, and the Treaty with other Demonstrations of Joy : But, as it is com-Spain. mon in those Cases, for the Mob to exult too much, and carry their Zeal too far, fo, in this, they exceeded their Bounds, as appears by the following Abstract from the Journals. The King had publifhed a Declaration of this Breach with Spain the Day before, which occasioned the Rejoicings. And,

This Day, the Duke of Buckingham fignified to the Lords, ' That the People making Bonfires, Yefterday, for Joy of the King's Declaration, fome of the Servants of the Spanish Ambassador looking out at them, were very uncivilly used.' Therefore his

The Houfe approved well of the Duke's Motion, and agreed, That if they could, by firict Enquiry, which they intended to make, find out the Offenders therein, they would caufe them to be punifhed, according to the King's late Proclamation, forbidding any Abufes to be offered to Ambafiadors. And they further agreed to fignify this to the Commons at the next Conference.

March 25. The Feftival of Easter now drawing nigh, the Lords agreed to a Recess of Parliament till Thursday, April 1, in that Week. In the mean Time they appointed a Committee of their House, to affist the King's Secretaries, in that Vacancy, in drawing up a Manisesto of this great Affair; of which they also agreed to inform the Commons.

The fame Day, a Committee of Lords being returned from a Conference with the Commons, the Lord Prefident read the King's Declaration, which he made two Days before to a Committee of both the Houfes; which was in these Words:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The King's De-THE last Time I spake to you anent this great elaration for that Russieness, I told you what, in my Opinion, was Purpofe. necessarily required for the beginning of it, the Rea-3 1. 1 fons whereof you have truly fet down out of my last BAR MARIE . Speech; wherein I shewed you what Good it would do; and what Harm it might free us from, to express particular Aids at this Time as well as general Promises. It is true, I must confess, that how far you declare yourfelves, is sufficient for the present Enterance into the Busines, tho' a great deal short of what I told you it would require. But, as God bears me Record, and, I think, the Hearts of all my loving Subjects will testify for me, I never did flick for Mo-. ney, but only defired you to clear yourfelves by Particulars, that I may fee how I may be able to go thro? fo great a pat great a Matter, at least to make a good Beginning of An. 22. James I. the War; for what the End will be, God knows. 1624.

So, on the other Part, I gave you Thanks for your general Offer, by which you did engage yourfelves, in your Lives and Estates, which is more than forty. Subfidies, if you had named them, and more worth than a Kingdom; for the Strength of a King; next under the Protection of God, flands in the Hearts of his People. And I must needs (ay, in this Particular, it is without Example, that ever any Parliament, for a. Beginning, gave to a King for great a Supply to be levied in fo short a Time. This may well ferve for a Preparation : And, for my Part, first, confidering your general Offer, (which is ten Times more to me than all Subfidies) and, next, confidering that thefe Particulars, coming from you, be as much as at once you are able to pay in fo short a Time, being within a Year, and as much as may be well expected : Therefore, with as much Love, and as great Thanks, as abying and kind King can give to fo loving and dutiful People, I thank you for your Offer, and do accept it.

I told you before, that I would never have craved your Advice to reject it, and fo put a Scorn upon you: Think me not that Man.

It is true, I think no wife King can undertake for great a Bargain, but he must well bethink himself before-hand : And I account it better that a King advife well before he take a Refolution, than advise rashly, and after repent. Therefore, my Lords and Gentlemen, I'declare unto you, That as I am willing to follow your Advice in the annulling and Breach of the two Treaties, both of the Match and of the Palatinate; fo, on the other Part, I affure myfelf, you will make good what you have faid, That what you advise me unto, you will affift me in, with your Wildom. and Council, and Forces, if need require.

"I pray you have a charitable Opinion of me, as you are to have of a King who hath fo long ruled and governed over you; and I may vaunt myself thus far to have done it with Justice and Peace: But, as I told you before, all my Forbearance bath been for H 3 sparing

An. 22. James I, Sparing the Effusion of Christian Blood, and as the most easy and provable Way for recovering the Palatinate for my Children. It is true I have been fo long delayed and payed with Generals, that I dare not longer, truft unto them; which made me enjoin Buckingham to make (t) a particular Relation unto you of all that Business. (and I am sure such an Account was never before given in Parliament) that thereby you may know what to trust to. I could, in this Cafe, have replaced myfelf; but, I thought it could not but be both a Strength and Honour to me to have the Advice of my People.

> My Lords, in the late Parliament, I then declared it unto you, That I was refolved, without Refpect of Friendsbip, or Match, or what sever, to have the Palatinate one Way or other. I hope you remember it.

God is my Judge and Saviour Inever bad any other End, and it is Pity I should live to have any other End; and, for my Part, except, by fach Means as. God may put into my Hands, I may recover the Palatinate, I could with never to have been born. I am old, but mine only Son is young, and I will promife for myself and him both, that no Means shall be unused for the Recovery of it. And this I dare fay, as old as I am, if it might do good to the Busines, I would go in my own Perfon, and think my Labour and Travel well bestowed, the' I should end my Days there: For if I should spare any Means possible for the Recovery of it, then let me be thought not worthy to reign over you; and, in-good Faith, I never refolved to live with other Mind. And, I will fay more, there was never any Enemy of my Son-in-Low, with whom I talk'd of that Business, or any that ever I spake with of the same, which did not say, and confess. I had Reafon to have the Palatinate, one Way or other : And when they fay that it is good Reason, and themselves allowed it, it is a good Spur to me to think on it. - My Lords and Gentlemen, thus far affure yourfelves, I will go chearfully about it, to prepare all Things possible for it; and as you have given me the An. 22. James I. Means, so will I employ them toward it. 1624.

In the next Degree, I hope you will think of me; but that I leave to your own Counfel and Confideration: But, I proteft to God, a Penny of this Money fhall not be beforwed but upon this Work, and by your own Committees: And, I affure myfelf, you will think of me for a double Reason, my Customs are, likely to fall, by Occasion of the War, and my Charges increase; but, undertaking the War, I must ga thro' with it one Way or other, tho' I fell my Jewels and all.

In the next Seffion you will confider how this hath been husbanded, and, according to that, think what is next to be done; and it will spur you the more to enable me for the rest, whereof I speak to you before. I will clear you in some Things (for I will not deal with you in any Thing but fairly and clearly as a King): Tho' I have broken the Necks of three Parliaments, one after another, I hope that, in this Parliament, you shall be so resolved of the Sincerity of my Heart, and of your Duties and Affections, that this shall be a happy Parliament, and make me greater and happier than any King of England ever was.

In my last Speech I promised you, That if I accept, ed your Offer, I would follow your Advice, and would not after hearken to any Treaty of Peace, without first acquainting you, and requiring your, Advice; and I likewife promifed nothing should be spent of your Monies but by your own Committees : But I defire you to understand, that I must have a faithful secret, Council of War, that must not be ordered by a Multitude, (for fo my Defigns, may be discovered beforehand) and one Penny of this Money Shall not be beflowed but in Sight of your own Committees. But where I shall send twenty thousand Pounds, or ten thou fand, Pounds, whether by Sea or Land, East or West, by Diversion, or otherwise, by Invasion upon the Bavarian or Emperor, you must leave that to your King.

An. 22. James I. 1624.

Affure yourfelves my Delay hitherto was upon Hope to have gotten it without a War. I held it by a Hair, hoping to have gotten it by a Treaty; but, fince I fee no Certainty that Way, I hope that God, who hath put it into your Hearts thus to advise me, and into my Heart to follow your Advice, will fo blefs it, that I shall clear my Reputation from Obloquy; and, in despight of the Devil and all his Instruments, shew that I never had but an honest Heart: And I desire that God would blefs our Labours for the happy Restitution of my Children; and whosever did the Wrong, I deserved better at their Hands.

Which Declaration being ended, the Houfe was adjourned, according to Order, to the fuft Day of April.

On that Day the Lords read feveral public and private Bills; after which the Duke of Buckingham informed the Houfe, ' That he had been to take a View of the Navy, according to his Place

Account of the of High Admiral. He told them likewife, That Preparations on he had certain Information from abroad, that the the Part of Spain. King of Spain had then in Readiness a far greater and ftronger Navy than that in 1588: That, at Dunkirk, he had already built 100 flat Bottoms: That they had taken many of our Men upon our own Shores, and out of our own Harbours :) Therefore he moved, " That fince the two Houfes had agreed to give a Supply to the Affiftance of this great Bufinefs in Hand, tho' the Grant thereof be not yet paffed into an Act, that the fame may be fo handled as to be useful; which will not be, if the Time be now neglected; or this Month and the next overflipp'd : Wherefore the Duke further moved, That a Meeting might be inftantly prayed with the Commons to propole to them, that certain monied Men might be dealt with, to disburfe fuch a Sum as was requifite for the prefent Ufe, the Repayment of which to be fecured by Parliament, out of the Subfidies intended in the Grant, according to what had been heretofore done in the like Cafes. A Meffage was immediately difpatched to the Commons to inform them, That the Lords had a Bufinels of Importance to communicate to them, and therefore defired a fpeedy Conference. Their a Conference in Anfwer was, That they would attend their Lord-regard to the Supfhips Pleafure.

The Duke of Backingham acquainted the Lords, That the Spanifb Ambaffador, being lately at Court, his Majefty had declared to him the Diffolution of the two Treaties, and that he had fent a Difpatch into Spain concerning the fame. The Lords agreed, That these Matters be fignified to the Commons at the intended Meeting.

The fame Day, the Committee of Lords being return'd from the Conference, the Houfe received a Meffage from the Commons, importing, 'That they had taken the Propolition made to them, at the laft Meeting, into ferious Confideration; but, becaufe many of their Members were not yet come to Town, and the Matter is of fuch Importance, they have deterred, for a Time, to come to a Refolution; but, as foon as poffibly they could, they would attend their Lordfhips with their Anfwer.'

April 2. This Day the Archbifhop of Canterbury reported to the Houfe; That, in a Committee appointed to examine the Stores and Ammunitions of War, fome Speeches had paft, the Day before, which concerned the Honour of a Lord of that The Lord Treafurer's Conduct Houfe; and that the faid Lord defired Examinations afperfed, might be taken, upon Oath, for the clearing thereof. Whereupon the Houfe ordered, That a Sub-Committee fhould be conflituted to take fuch Examinations, and the Witneffes to be fworn in Court. The Lords alfo ordered, That the following Officers of the Crown fhould be fent for, to be examined on Oath, relating to this Affair, viz. Sir Edward Wardour, Clerk of the Pells, Sir Robert Pye, Sir Thomas Mounfon, Sir Thomas Dallifon, Sir Richard Morrifon, Sir John Keyes, Sir Arthur In-

An.22. James I. Ingram, Sir Thomas Cook, Sir Thomas Morris Cletk 1624. of the Ordnance, and Sir John Male.

April 3. After reading fome Bills, the Lords received a Meffage from the Commons to this Effect, 'That they defired a Conference with their Lordfhips about a Petition they had drawn up to be prefented to his Majefty, touching Popi/b Recufants, to which they defired the Concurrence of that House.' Hereupon a Committee was appointed, and, being returned, the Petition was read to the whole House; but their Lordships took Time to confider of it, before they would come to any Refolution about it.

The next Day this Bufinefs was refumed ; and, to the end the Lords might more freely debate the Matter, the Houfe was adjourned ad Libitum, the Lord Keeper removing to his due Place, on the Earls Bench: And the Preface to the Petition being again read, the Lords debated. Whether a fhort Induction was not fitter to be used, that the Reafons for the Petition might be a Part by itfelf, and not delivered at all, unlefs his Majefty demanded the fame, as was delivered in the Advice to the King, the 5th of March laft, to diffolve the two Treaties. The other Parts of the Petition being alfo read, it was debated, Whether any more was requifite to be defired of his Majefty than the Execution of the Laws now in Force against Recufants, left it fhould be noifed they were beginning a Perfecution; but they came to no. Refolution about it at this Time, only agreed to defer the further Confideration of it till next Day. The Petition itfelf, as drawn up by the Commons, follows in these Words:

The Commons propose a Petition against Reculants.

And tho' Mr Wilfon has dated it the third of April, yet neither of these Authors give us the leaft Intimation where they had the Copy of a Letter wrote with fo great an Air of Secrecy and Truff.

When the Lords had heard the above mentioned Petition read a fecond Time, they difpatched Meffengers to the Commons to inform them, That they had taken it into their Confideration, and did hope to be ready by the next Day, to fend to them for a Conference.

It now appears who the Noble Lord was whole Conduct was objected to in Yesterday's Proceedings; for, fome Orders being made this Day, relating to the Sittings of the Committee on Munitions, Stores, &c. That they had modelled another Petition out of the former, which the Commons defired might be prefented to his Majefty, with a fhort Introduction : That their Lordships had thought fit to leave out the whole Preamble of the other, with the Reafons for the faid Petition, and only to be delivered if the King fhould demand it. TT having pleafed your Majefty, upon our humble Suit and Advice, to diffolve both the for Execution of Treaties, to our great Joy and Comfort, we your . Majefty's most faithful and loyal Subjects, the Lords and Commons affembled in Parliament, do, in all Humblenefs, offer to your Sacred Ma-· jefty thefe two Petitions following :

First, That for the more Safety of your · Realms, and better keeping of your Subjects in ⁶ their due Obedience, and other important Reafons of State, your Majefty will be pleafed, by fome fuch Courfe as your Majefty shall think fit, to give prefent Order, That all the Laws be put in due Execution, that have been made, and do ftand in Force againft Jefuits and feminary Priefts, and all others that have taken Orders by Autho-· rity derived from the See of Rome, and generally against all. Popi/b Recufants; and as for difarm-6 ing them, that it may be according to the Laws, and according to former Acts and Directions of State in the like Cafe: And yet, that it may ap-· pear to all the World, the Favour and Clemency your Majefty useth towards all your Subjects, of what Condition foever; and to the Intent the · Jefuits and Priefts, now in the Realm, may not ⁶ pretend to be furprized, that a fpeedy and certain Day may be prefix'd by your Majefty's Procla-" mation, before which Day they fhall depart out of your Realm; and all other your Highnefs's. Dominions; and neither they nor any other, to return or come hither again, upon the fevereft · Penalties of the Laws now in Force against " them; and that all your Majefty's Subjects may be thereby also admonished not to receive, entertain, comfort, or conceal any of them, upon 6 the

 may be imposed upon them.

· Secondly, Seeing we are thus happily delivered from that Danger, which these Treaties, now * diffolved, and that Use which your ill-affected "Subjects made thereof, would certainly have drawn upon us; and yet cannot but forefee and fear leaft the like may hereafter happen, which " will inevitably bring fuch Perils into your Maje-6 fty's Kingdoms, we are most humble Suitors to · your gracious Majefty, to fecure the Hearts of · your good Subjects, by the Engagement of your * Royal Word unto them, That, upon no Occa-⁶ fion of Marriage, or Treaty, or other Requifite ⁵ in that Behalf, from any foreign Prince or State " whatfoever, you will take away or flacken the · Execution of your Laws against Jesuits, Priests, and Popilb Recufants. To which our humble · Petitions, proceeding from our most loyal and · dutiful Affections towards your Majefty, our · Care of our Country's Good, and our own confident Perfusion that these will much advance * the Glory of Almighty God, the everlafting Ho-· nour of your Majefty, the Safety of your King-6 doms; and the Encouragement of all your good Subjects, we do most humbly befeech your Ma-' jefty to vouchfafe a gracious Anfwer.'

This fecond Petition was prefented to the King by a Committee of both Houfes, on the 23d of April; and, the next Day, the Lord Archbifhop of Canterbury reported it to the Houfe of Lords; and that, after his Majefty had heard the fame read, he gave them the following most gracious Answer to it.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Although 1 cannot but commend your Zeal in offer-The King's Aning this Petition to me; yet, on the other Side, fiver. I cannot but hold myfelf unfortunate, that I fould be thought to need a Spur to do that which my Conficience and Duty binds me unto. What Religion I am of my Books do declare, my Profession and Behaviour VOL. VI. I doth

An. 22. James I. doth shew; and, I hope in God, I shall never live to be thought otherwife; fure I am I shall never deferve it: And, for my Part, I wish it may be written in Marble, and remain to Posterity as a Mark upon me, when I shall swerve from my Religion; for he that doth diffemble with God is not to be trusted of Men.

My Lords, for my Part, I protest before God, that my Heart hath bled when I have heard of the Increase of Popery : God is my Judge, it hath been fuch a great Grief to me. That it hath been as Thorns in my Eyes, and Pricks in my Sides; and fo far I have been, and shall be from turning any other Way. And, my Lords and Gentlemen, you shall be my Confessors, that if I knew one Way better than another to hinder the Growth of Pepery, I would take it; for, knowing what I do, and being perfuaded what I am, I could not be an honeft Man and do otherwife (x). And this I may fay further, That if I be not a Martyr, I am fure I am a Confestor: And, in some Senfe, I may be called a Martyr, as, in Scripture, Ifaac was perfecuted by Ishmael by mocking Words; for never King fuffered more by ill Tongues than I have done, and, I am fure, for no Cause ; yet I have been far from Perfecution, for 1 have ever thought that no Way more encreased any Religion than Persecution, according to that Saying, Sanguis Martyrum eft Semen Ecclefiæ.

Now, my Lords and Gentlemen, for your Petition, I will not only grant the Substance of what you crave, but add somewhat more of my own ; for the two Treaties being already annulled, (as I have declared them to be) it necessarily follows of itself that which you defire; and therefore it needs no more, but that I do declare, by Proclamation, (which I am ready to do) that all fefuits and Priests do depart by a Day; but it cannot be, as you defire, by our Proclamation, to be out of all my Dominions; for a Proclamation here extends but to this Kingdom.

This

(x) In Rusbroorth it runs thus: One Way or other it bath been my Defire to binder the Growth of Popery; and I could not be an boneft Man if I fould bave done otherwife.

This I will do, and more; I will command all my An. 22. James I, Judges, when they go their Circuits, to keep the fame 1624. Courfes, for putting all the Laws in Execution against Recufants, as they were wont to do before these Treaties; for the Laws are still in Force, and were never dispenced with by me: God is my Judge, they were never so intended by me; but, as I told you in the Beginning of the Parliament, you must give me Leave, as a good Horfeman, fometimes to use the Reins, 1 A A and not always to use the Spurs: So now there needs nothing but my Declaration ; and, for the difarming of them, that is already [provided for] by the Laws, and shall be done as you defired : And more, I will take Order for the shameful Diforder of the resorting of my Subjects to all foreign Ambassadors; for this I will advise with my Council how it may be best reformed : It is true that the Houfes of Ambaffadors are privileged Places; and the' they cannot take them out of their Houfes, yet the Lord Mayor and Mr Recorder of London may take some of them as they come from thence, and make them Examples. Another Point I will add concerning the Education of their Children ; of which I have had a principal Care, as my Lord of Canterbury, and the Bishop of Winchester, and other Lords of my Council, [and, indeed, all my Council] can bear me witnefs, with whom- I have advised about this Business; for, in good Faith, it is a Shame their Children should be bred here, as if they were [brought up in Madrid or] at Rome: So I do grant not only your Defire, but more. I am forry I was not the first Mover of it to you; but had you not done it, I would have done it myself.

Now, for the fecond Patt of your Petition, you have here given me the best Advice in the World; for it is against the Rule of Wisdom that a King should fuffer any of his Subjects to be holding and depending on any other Prince than himself; for what hath any King to do with the Laws and Subjects of another Kingdom (y)? Therefore affure yourl 2 felves, (y) In Rushworth it is: Transgress the Laws by the Intercession of other Princes.

An. 22. James I. felves, that, by the Grace of God, I will be careful 1624. that no fuch Conditions be foifted in upon any other Treaty what foever; for it is fit my Subjects should stand or fall by their own Laws.

Proceedings against the Earl of extraordinary Nature, wherein one of the princi-Middlesex, Lord pal Officers of the Crown was charged with very High Treasurer, high Crimes and Misdemeanors; which Instance, with fome foregoing, evidently flews, That no Man was then fo great in himfelf, or fo powerfully fcreened by the Court, but a Parliamentary Enquiry would reach him. We fhall make no Apology for the Length of this Trial, fince the Rarity of it, and extraordinary Incidents in the Proceedings therein, mult recommend it to the Public; efpecially as neither Wilfon nor Ru/hworth have given us one fingle Word of this Matter, nor any other Hiftorian, excepting Sir William Dugdale, by a flight Note upon it in his Baronage of England.

The first Notice, the Lords' received from the Commons, of this Busines, was on the 8th of April, when they received a Message from them to this Effect;

'That whereas they, Yefterday, fent to defire a Conference with them, for the better accommodating the Bill of Monopolies, to be this Morning at nine, which their Houfe intended to have done accordingly; but, that now a great and weighty Affair, as ever yet came before them, intervening; and many of their Committee being employed in the Examination and Enquiry thereof, who were formerly appointed to attend their Lordfhips at this Conference; they humbly defire to be fpared at this Time, and they will attend at any other which their Lordfhips fhall appoint.'

- April 9. The House of Lords being reminded of the Words used by the Lord Treasurer, April 5. of a dangerous Plot, Confpiracy, and Combination against him; and because the Words were doubtful and generally spoken, his Lordship was required to name the Parties that had so combined and con-

spired against him; for, otherwise, an Imputation An. 22, James L. might reft upon that House, or some of the Members, there being, at that Time, a Committee on Munitions, &c. fubfifting, who had taken divers Examinations concerning his Lordship as Lord Treafurer.

Whereupon his Lordship stood up and cleared the Houfe, abfolutely, from any Combination at all against him; and he further protested, at that Time, that he did not name or mean any Member of that Houfe; which Protestation he reiterated to them.

Nothing more occurs of this Matter till April the 12th; when a Message came from the Commons to the Lords in order to put off the intended Conference again; becaufe they faid, That a Lord of that House had defired to be heard, by his Counfel, in theirs, in the Afternoon; which they had yielded to.

On this a Motion was made to confider, that it might trench deep into their Privileges, for a Lord of that Houfe to answer an Accusation in the House of Commons, either by his Counsel, or by fending his Anfwer in Writing. But, upon the humble Request of the Lord Treasurer, the House gave him Leave to fend his Anfwer to the Complaint of the Commons if he pleafed. However, an Order was made, That no Lord of that House Shall, hereafter, without Licence, anfwer any Complaint in the House of Commons, either in Person or by his Counfel.

Then the Archbishop of Canterbury reported to the House, That a Committee being appointed to confider of the Stores, Munitions, &c. fomewhat had happened in their Examination thereof, which touched the Honour of the Lord Treasurer. Whereupon the faid Lord defired, that the utmost Truth thereof might be enquired into and examined. Accordingly Witneffes had been fworn here, and a Sub-Committee appointed to take their Examinations; which, being reduced into Writing, his Grace delivered to be read.

But,

An. 22. James I. 1624.

But, before that was done, the Lord Keeper fignified to the Houfe, that he had received a Petition from Sir Thomas Dallifon, delivered unto him by a Member of this Houle, who defired it might be read before the faid Report. Which Petition ran in these Words:

To the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament affembled.

The Humble Petition of Sir Thomas Dallifon, Son of Sir Roger Dallifon, Knt. and Bart. deceas'd.

W Hereas there was an Examination, before a Committee of your Honours, concerning the Lands of bis faid Father, compounded for with my Lord-Treafurer; whereupon there is an Account given to your Lordfhips, by one Mayle, a Scrivener, on his Lordfhip's Behalf, of 26,000 l. or thereabouts, to be given by the faid Lord-Treasurer for the faid Lands, as Mayle reported.

Now, for that this Petitioner and his Mother were forced out of their Estate therein by his Lordship for a very small Matter, by colour of his Majesty's Extent; and is able to make appear to your Lordships that there hath not been much more than half the Sum of 26,000 l. really, either in Money or Money's Worth, given for the same by his Lordship; and for that the faid Lands are of far greater Value; and this Petitioner ought, in all Equity, to have the Beness of compounding his Father's Debts, and the Beness that should accrue by the Surplusage of the Estate:

He most humbly defireth your Honours to stay the Report, and grant your Petitioner a Copy of the Account before the same pass from the Lords of the Committee; and that your Petitioner may be allowed to make such just Exceptions thereunto, as to the bonourable Lords of the Committee shall seem reasonable. And he shall ever pray for your Honours, &c.

THOMAS DALLISON.

Of ENGLAND. 135

A Motion was made, Whether, by the Orders An. 22 Januar I. of the Houle, the Lord-Treasurer may be prefent when the Report is read; because the fame concerns his Honour? It was agreed, That he might be prefent, at the first Reading, but not when the fame shall be debated by the House.

Then the Attorney-General read the Report in, bace Verba:

The STATE of the BUSINESS referred to the SUB-COMMITTEE for MUNITIONS, &c.

N the 28th of May, 6 Jac. 1608. a Privy-Seal was directed to the Lord Treasurer and Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer, for the Time being, for the isluing out such Sums of Money not exceeding 6000 l. per Annum, as by Quarter-Books should appear to be due to the Office of Ordnance, for Wages or Provisions.

'The Allowance was duely paid untill the 1ft of April 1614; but then, or fhortly after, by the Default of Sir Roger Dallifon and the Officers of the Exchequer, fundry Payments were unorderly made, whereby the Office was unfurnished; and Dallifon, who had receiv'd those Moneys and not employ'd them as he ought, became indebted in great Arrears to his Majesty.'

⁶ In February 1619, his Majefty's Commiffion was awarded to the Commiffioners for the Navy, whereof the now Lord-Treasurer was one of the chief, to furvey the Office of Ordnance: And they, in July 1620, made a Return hereof to the Council, with their Opinions how the Magazines might be furnished with a prefent Supply of 13,6401. 14 sand 2 d. how the ordinary Allowance of 60001. per Annum, might be reduced to 30001. and how, by cutting off many unneceflary Charges, and other

136 The Parliamentary History

An. 22. James J. Other Means, his Majefty might have yearly near 1624. 10,000 l. And those Propositions made by them, in Michaelmas Term 1620, receiv'd Allowance: from the Lords, and, at laft, from his Majefty himfelf.

' In December 1620, the Lord Vifcount Mandeville became Treasurer; and, in May 1621, a Privy-Seal was drawn by the Officers of the Ordnance, for fettling the faid 3000 l. yearly, and for . Payment of the faid 13,640 l. 14 s. and 2 d. But the fame, being confider'd of by the Commiffioners of the Navy, was rejected, because it fwerved from their Propositions; and fo, the Lord Mandeville leaving the Treasurership about Michaelmas 1621, nothing was done. In October, 1621, the Earl of Middle/ex became Lord-Treasurer, and having continued in that Place two Years and fix Months, in all that Time none of the three Eftablifhments, viz. that of 6° facobi by the dormant Privy-Seal; that of 1617 by the Lords; nor that of the Commissioners of the Navy in 1620, have been observ'd; whereas, if that of the Commif-. fioners of the Navy (being the least chargeable to: his Majefty, and in which the Lord-Treasurer. himfelf was principal Agent,) had been obferv'd, it is conceiv'd that the Stores had been in much better Cafe, and a Courfe had therein been fettled to have retrench'd a needless Charge of near 10,000 l. per Annum, as aforefaid.'

⁶ And whereas, in April 1621, a Contract was made with Mr. Evelyn, to ferve his Majefty yearly with 80 Lafts of Powder, at 7 d. per Pound: The Want of the Payment of about 500 l. a Month, hath depriv'd his Majefty of the Benefit of that Contract; which, for twelve Months of the Timefince that Contract, hath been forborn for Want of Payment; which twenty Months Proportion, if it had been ferv'd in, there would have been in Store at this prefent above 260 Lafts of Powder, befides 60 Lafts of Salt-Petre, which would have made 80 Lafts of Powder more: But, by the Want of due Payment, not only the Store is unfurnish'd An. 22. James F. of so confiderable a Proportion; but his Majesty, it is conceived further, hath loss the Benefit of 3 d. in every Pound of 80 Lasts, which hath been fold to the Subject, amounting to 4050 l. or thereabouts.'

And whereas it was intimated, that the Lord Treasurer hath made other Payments, less importing the Public, to the faid Office of Ordnance for old Arrears; which have a Dependency upon another Point referr'd to the Sub-Committees, touching the Lands and Debts of Sir Roger Dallifon : It. appears that 28 July 1621, which was about two Months before the Earl of Middlefex became Treafurer, he made an Agreement with the Officers of the Ordnance for buying their Extent and Intereft in the Lands of Sir Roger Dallifon and Sir Thomas Mounfon, which they had by Affignment from his Majesty, for a Debt of 13,062 l. and thereby his Lordship did agree, fo foon as conveniently he might, to do his best Endeavour to procure from his Majefty a certain Affignment and Order for the Payment of the Sum of 8000 l. to the Ufe of the Servants and Creditors of the Office of Ordnance, before the laft Day of November next, for and towards the Payment and Clearing of all fuch Sums of Money, as, by the Pay-Books of the faid Office, fhould appear to be be due unto them, over and above the faid Sum of 13,062 l. And his Lordfhip was, before the fame last of November, to pay them 1062 l. and, at the Annunciation, in the Year 1623, 500 l. and afterwards, 500 l. half-yearly, till the 13,062 l. were paid: But his Lordship, before the prefix'd last of November, becoming Lord Treasurer, did not procure any such Order or Affignment from his Majefty; but, by Warrant of the first-mentioned dormant Privy-Seal of 6° Jacobi, did, in the first Michaelmas Term after he became Treasurer, and the two Terms of Easter and Michaelmas following, (being all within a little more than a Year after his becoming Treasurer) pay to them 9131 l. of Arrears due to the Office; and

An. 22. James I. and hath, at other Times fince, paid to them other Sums; which make up the former Payment of 19,034 l. 8 s. 11 d. whereof was paid fince the Beginning of this Parliament 2480 l. II s. 2d. And touching the Payment, which, by the aforefaid Agreement, his Lordship was to make unto them of his own Money, it appeareth that, upon a fecond Payment, those Payments due from him were discharged; and, in lieu thereof, his Lordship affign'd to them his Part in the Petty-Farms of the Wines and Currants; which they effimated to be worth for the first two Years 1000 l. per Annum, and for feven Years after 1400 l. per Annum; and odd Pounds. It also appeareth, that about the fame" Time when he made the faid Agreement with the Officers, he bargained with Sir Thomas Mounfon for his Eftate in Dallifon's Lands; for which he agreed to give him 3000 l. in Money, the making of fix Baronets, and fome fit Suit from his Majefty when Sir Thomas could find it. This 3000 l. was duly paid by his Lordship; and then it was agreed that the Baronets were not to proceed, but, in lieu thereof, his Lordfhip gave way to a Suit, which Sir Thomas made to his Majefty, for the Benefit of compounding with the Copy-holders of Wakefield, for reducing their Fines to a Certainty; which his Lordship did eftimate at 2000 l. and promised him further Recompence; yet Sir Thomas Mounfon affirms, He had neither Benefit thereby, nor further Recompence. In this Bargain, nevertheleis, there are fome Things favourable for the Lord-Treafurer, especially two. First, That, by this Bargain, his Majefty is freed from all future Demands from the Officers of the Ordnance, concerning the Debt of 13,062 l. owing by Dallifon; which his Majefty, upon the affigning those Extents, had covenanted to fatisfy, in cafe the Incumbrances fhould hinder them of Satisfaction; and this appeareth to be, true. Secondly, Some Intimation hath been. that this Bargain was no Bargain of Advantage, but of Loss to the Lord-Treasurer; and therefore fore not probable that he should have undertaken, An. 22. James I. 1624. but for his Majefty's Service, and the Good of the Office. And touching this Point, it appears, by the good Teftimony of Sir Thomas Dallifon, that, before the Troubles of his Father, the Lands and Leafes being of about fixty Years to come, bought by the Lord-Treasurer, were rented at 1500 l. per Annum, or thereabouts; whereof the Leafe-Lands. are about 300 1. per Annum: And that, befides the Recompence given to the Officers of Ordnance and Sir Thomas Mounfon, there is allow'd to him and his Mother, for clearing their Interefts, 200 l. per Annum for their Lives : But Sir Arthur Ingram offereth to lett the whole, for forty or fifty Years, or any other reasonable Time, at 11001. per Annum. And it appears, by the Teftimony of him and Mr. Mayle, that the Lands were incumbred with an Annuity of 200 l. per Annum to Mr. Beddingfield for Life; for which, and the Arrears, about 1200 l. hath been given, by way of Computation; and with 140 l. to Mr. Smith for Life, for which, and the Arrears, hath been given, by way of Compofition, about the Value of 800 l. and with an Affurance, on the Part of Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davy, for which is to be given 3000 l. befides many other Incumbrances not yet brought in. But the Certainty thereof appears not, nor that any of them, of any confiderable Value, are precedent to Sir Roger Dallifon's becoming Officer.'

This Report being read, the Lord Treafurer put the Houfe in mind of the Imputation laid on him by Sir Robert Pye, fome Time fince, touching the Extent of Sir Roger Dallijon's Lands; and that therein they had defired Witneffes to be fworn and examined, and he hoped he had fully fatisfied their Lordfhips in that Caufe. But, as for any other Matter relating to the Ordnance, Munitions, & they never came into his Thoughts, as yet, what Anfwer to make; wherefore he defired he might have a Copy thereof, in Writing, with Liberty to examine his Wit-

Ap. 22. James I. Witneffes, and he would answer the fame fully in . Writing. He alfo defired that his Actions might not be examined by Pieces, but totally and together; and then he doubted not but that his Care, touching the Store for Munitions, &c. would appear to be fuch that their Lordships will clear his Honour therein. This being faid, the Lord Treafurer left the Houfe whilft the Matter of the Report was in Debate.

> After fome Time fpent therein, it was agreed, That another Committee should be appointed to draw up the Heads of a Charge against the Lord Treasurer, out of a Brief of the last Report, and Examinations taken by the former Committee.

> Nothing was done by the Lords (except reading and paffing feveral Bills, of no Confequence to thefe Enquiries) untill the 15th; when a Message was brought from the Houfe of Commons by the Lord Cavendift, and others, to this Effect;

> " That whereas they had received divers and fundry Complaints against a Member of that House. which are of high and grievous Nature, they defire a Conference thereon to impart the fame to their Lordships.' This was agreed to by the Lords ; the Place, the Great Hall at Whitehall; and the Time, at Three that Afternoon.

> April 16. The Lord Keeper, according to Order, reported the faid Conference held the Day before at Whitehall, between the two Houfes, in this Manner;

At this Conference Sir Edward Coke, on the Behalf of the Commons, fhewed, ' That the ference between Knights, Citizens and Burgeffes, affembled in Parboth Houses on a liament, are always elected, the Knights by the Counties, the Citizens by the Cities, and the Burgeffes by the Burroughs of this Kingdom: That your Highness and my Lords do enjoy their Places' by Blood and Defcent; fome of your Lordships by Creation, and the Lords Ecclefiaftical by Succeffion : but the Members of the Houle of Commons by free Election: They appear for Multitudes, and bind Multitudes, and therefore they have no Proxies ;

• I. Becaufe they have beft Notice from all Parts thereof.

• 2. They are most fensible it is not your Lordfhips, but the weakest Commons that go to the Walls.'

• 3. As, in a natural Body, not the Difeafe, but the Neglect of Cure killeth; Non Morbus fed Morbi neglecta Curatio interfecit; fo the long Delay of Grievances, Corpus Politicum interfecit; and this would happen if they were not found out by the Commons.

⁶ In their Inquifition they met with, what they fcarce ever found before, many great Exorbitancies and heinous Offences, againft a Member of this Houfe, the Earl of Middlefex, the Lord Treafurer; and they found him guilty after a ftrange Manner; for, in all their Houfe, not one Man faid No, but concluded againft him Nemine contradicente.

That Sir Edward Coke faid further, 'The Houfe had appointed him to prefent three Enormities to their Lordfhips, much againft his Mind; others being far more fufficient, as well in regard of his great Years, as of other Accidents; yet, he faid, he would do it truly, plainly and fhortly.'

• There were two greatOffences in general, which they had diffributed into two Parts; one of which fhould be reprefented by him, and the other by his Colleague. That which he fhould fpeak to was to confift of two Charges.'

⁴ The fir/t, Grofs and fordid Bribery. The fecond, For procuring the good Orders of the Court of Wards to be altered : For that this was done by his principal Procurement, to the Deceit of the King, Opprefilion of the Subject, and the Enriching of his own Servants. He would begin with prefenting to their Lordships the Bribery. Here the Charge againft him open'd by Sir Edward Coke.

The first Part of DY the Lord Treasurer's Privity (for it, con-D cern'd his Skill properly which was Merchandize) a Leafe of the Subfidy and Imposts of the French Wines, was lett to the Farmers of the Petty Farm, Anno 17. Jac. at 44,000 l. yearly Rent, and for 50,000 l. Fine; with a Covenant from the King, that no more Impost should be laid during their Leafe; becaufe that they knew that the Impost would overthrow their Trade.

> · Yet the Farmers were not content with this Covenant for their Money and their Trade, (for Money is their Plow, and Trade their Life) they defire the Addition of the King's Word for this Covenant. Accordingly they had Accefs to the King, and the Covenant was confirmed and repeated by him, Verbo Regio, in the Prefence of the Lord Treasurer. Then they, thought themselves in Tuto, and that they did in Portu navigare, free from all Storms and Tempests.'

> But behold, Anno 1621, the first Thing my Lord did in his Office, was the laying of an extream Impost of 31. per Ton upon the French Wines, which the King, by reafon of his Covenant, could not, and, by reafon of his Word, would not furely do.'

> · This Imposition was against Justice, the Covenant, and the Honour of the King. The King, furely, had he been rightly inform'd, would never have done it.'

> ' Upon this the Trade fank, and they became Suitors to his Lordship for Relief, for ten Months together; but with no Succefs."

> . In Michaelmas, 1622, they petitioned his Lordfhip, that the Trade was overburdened, and themfelves quite undone. It is a Rule, that a Commodity overburdened enricheth not the King, but quite

quite destroyeth the Trade; but hereof they have An. 22. James I. no Success.'

' In December 22, 1622, the Term is out, they are out of their Money, and the Trade is gone. They appeal, therefore, to the Fountain of Justice, the King's Majesty. The King is very gracious to them, and faid, God forbid that any Man (hould lofe by him. He knew nothing of this. It was the Lord Treasurer's Act and Device. And fo his Majefty allowed them a Deduction of 9500 l. to be made to them in nine Years Time. Well, Verba funt hac; these were but good and gracious Words, but filled not their Purfes: They must have a Warrant from the Lord Treasurer to put this Favour of the King's into a public Act : and this they could not obtain from December to the End of June. The Men understand themfelves very well, and look about them how this Stay comes: One of them tells another, The Bufinefs flicks, my Lord looks for fomewhat: And the Man was in the right, for fo the Sequel proved."

• Five hundred Pounds Bribe was paid to Jacob for my Lord's Ufe, and ftraightway all was well; the Warrant went current, and all was paffing well.

An. 22. James I. . Here Sir Edward alfo observed, (in a Parenthefis) That it is a bleffed Thing of those that love Parliaments; and that furely this Lord, of all others, loved them not; becaufe he caft himfelf into dark Mifts, when he fhould meet them; Nefcio quid Peccati portat ista Purgatio. This argues much Guiltinefs.'

> · Then he nominated his Witneffes; which, he faid, were without Exception.'

> " This Bribe is proved by Hide, Daws, Bilbob, and by Abraham Jacob : The laft is a Witnefs with a Witnefs.'

> · For Jacob blanch'd his Bribe as well as he could, and was taken in three notorious Falfities."

> 1. ' Being charged, that the Money was delivered to him by Hide, he vowed he had never received it; yet, being confronted with Hide, he confefs'd it :- There was one.'

> 2. " He pretended he had received the Money; but gave his Bond for it. Hide affirming to his Face, the Bond was for other Money, and no Bond at all for this; then he likewife confeffed this: ---- There were two.'

> 3. " He faid he never had any Warrant to enter the fame in the Petty Farm ; yet, afterwards, he avowed he had :- And this is the third Falfiry."

"Here Sir Edward observed, That Jacob was my Lord's neceffary Creature and petty Chapman, and had a Son that was his Secretary; and, becaufe he was a Facob, that is, a Supplanter, he defired their Lordships to take good care of him."

· About the Beginning of this Parliament my Lord fent for this Jacob; ask'd him, If he had enter'd this Money in the Petty Farm? he faid, Yea: Then faid my Lord, Go about it prefently, and fee that the Cocquets, and all Things elfe, be fupprefs'd in the Petty Farms, and that this Money be removed to the Great Farm; for I would have all hid and fuppress'd. Here Sir Edward observed, That fordid Bribery is like Adam, and would fain get fome Fig-Leaves, if it could tell but where to gather them.' · Upon . ^{} Upon the Delivery of this Charge (as was de-An. 22. James I. fired by his Friends) to the Lord Treasurer, they of the House of Commons expected an Answer of fome rare Wit; for fo this Nobleman was reputed in that House: But his Lordship deceived their Expectation; for he declared it was utterly, in every Point, he would not fay false, but furely untrue.^{}

• Four Things he denied as he was a Chriftian; and these were all directly proved and made good against him.'

⁶ The Farmers of the Great Cuftoms were to renew their Farms, and put in Security of 48,0001. Rent, July 29, 1622.⁹

• Here Sir Edward faid he would not enlarge himfelf; for the Bufinefs lay in a narrow Room. The Bribe is the Point.

• My Lord liked the Sureties well; but fome of them fell off, and my Lord would not accept of the reft; and 7500 l. of the Rent was referved for a Year and a Quarter. After Delay of their Leafe; and 500 l. in Gold paid unto him by the Hands of Jacob, then the Security formerly rejected was now accepted: Which Act of his Lordship the Knight confuted by this Syllogifm.

• The Sureties were fufficient, or infufficient; if fufficient, the Bribe was too much, and the Farmers opprefied; if infufficient, the Bribe was too little; and the King was cozen'd.

• The fecond Bribe was proved by Wolflenholme, Garraway, Williams, and, if you pleafe, Abraham Jacob; and fo much of thefe two Bribes taken in the Capacity of a Treasurer.

• Now he comes to the Court of Wards, and thewed, That the Lord Treasurer's Offences herein are of a rare Strain. First, the Knight noted, by way of Preface, That Honos, the Honour, mult be given to him that deferved it. All the good Yoh: VI. K Artifice

An. 22. James I. Artifice began under Treasurer Salisbury. Then were Articles invented that helped the King to all his Revenues, and tied the Officers to their own Fees and Places. The King's Revenues profpered well then : And thefe Articles, by the Advice of the Judges, were confirm'd under the Great Seal.'

"When this last Lord came to be Master of that Court, (for now, faith the Knight, he is not charged as a Lord, but a Mafter) he complained he had not Elbow-Room for those Articles; he was too much bound by them; (and bound he was indeed) and therefore he projects new Articles : And these new Articles are charged with high Extortion ; for in them are raifed double Fees: One Fee the Surveyor formerly had, and ftill retains juftly, another paralel Fee to this my Lord hath raifed unjuftly and oppreffingly.'

· For Extortion is a grievous and confuming Enormity in a Common-Wealth. It was the greatest Evil the High God could forefee would befal the Enemies of God. Let the Extortioner consume what he hath, and the Stranger devour his Labour. Pfalm cix. v. 10.'

. In these Articles his Lordship created a new Officer, a Secretary. The chief Proceedings there go by way of Petition. In the former Articles thefe Petitions were received by the Court, and entered by the Clerk without any Fee, and fo were to be found on Record : But, in the new Articles, this new Officer is to receive thefe Petitions, and may, for any Rule to the contrary, suppress them; and, for his Fee, he taketh what he pleafeth; and it is prov'd he hath taken 10 1. 201. 41. 51. three Difhes of Silver, and the like: He is altogether unlimited, unlefs, peradventure, his Oath doth limit him."

· Another Charge in this Court is this Abufe, viz. The Lord Treasurer's Place requires a whole Man. and fo doth the Mastership of the Court of Wards; whereupon his Lordfhip was fain (as unable to weild those two great Places) to invent a new Device, a Stamp even with his own Name, Middlefex': Now this this Hand moves and guides the Seal of the Court, An. 22. James h and therefore, being turn'd by the Hand of a young 1624. Secretary, may produce ftrange Confequences.'

· Never any King did fuffer a Subject to use a Stamp.'

· Old Lord Burleigh had a Stamp, because of his Gout, but never suffer'd it to be used but in his own Prefence."

. King Henry VIII. had alfo a Stamp; but, fuffering it to be employ'd by another, an Act of Parliament was overthrown thereby.'

' He would conclude with one Example: ----If a Ward be not found within one Year, he is reputed concealed, and fo falls within the Difpofe of the Master of the Court of Wards : Now, by the Secretary's keeping of this Stamp and Petitions, he may fo carry the Matter, that any Ward may prove concealed; and that is no remote Poffibility. He brought this Instance, a posse ad esse.'

" My Lord's Secretary hath put to, and used this Stamp for, the deferring of an Office for Half a Year; and it's therefore poffible it may be done for a whole Year.'

" The Knight faid he never knew any Man before truft a Stamp, in the Hand of another Man, to command the King's Revenue."

· He concluded this Point with this Obfervation, That my Lord was a Man raifed very high, and very lately, and for Expectation of Service: That the King had been very beneficial to him; and for him to be fo fupine in the King's Revenue, and fo vigilant in his own, was the highest Ingratitude."

Et si ingratum dixeris, omnia dixisti.

" Here the Knight preffed upon him his Three Oaths, taken as Mafter of the Wards, as Chancellor, and as Lord Treasurer.'

1. As Master of the Wards, You shall well and truly ferve the King and People.

⁶ Sir Edward Coke (a) (this learned Knight) faid, That all this he fpake by Command; and fo he prayed their Lordfhips to weigh it well, with due Confideration, and to give Judgment according to the Demerits of the Caufe.²

Sir Edwin Sandys (b) proceeded to this Effect, viz. And feconded by ' The Knights, Citizens and Burgeffes in the Sir EdwinSandys. Lower Houfe of Parliament affembled, had commanded him (undefirous of any fuch Employment) to fecond this Charge to their Lordfhips: That he was undefirous thereof, for he had rather defend the Innocent than difcover the Culpable; yet he was the Son of Obedience, and muft perform what, by that Houfe, he had received in Command. · The Want of Meafure and Moderation most Men complain of in this great Perfonage."

• That he would make his Entrance with two Protestations; which (as you know) are Exclusions, not intended Conclusions.

· · For this Time, he defired the Word Imposition might be forborn, and the Word Oppreffion taken up in lieu thereof; yet with a Reference to the Lord Treasurer only, but in no Means to the King."

⁶ The fecond Protestation, That they intend to lay none, no not the least Afperfion upon the Council-Table, or any one Member thereof, the Lord Treafurer only excepted.'

* The Houfe of Commons remain fully fatisfied that he was the first Propounder.'

· These Protestations premised, he branch'd the Oppressions into three Natures, used in the Wines, Sugars, and Grocery-Wares.'

And he promifed to use this Method to difcover, first, some General Matters, then fall to Particulars."

The Generals are two:

"The first, The House of Commons conceive, that my Lord Treasurer cannot be ignorant; that in the Lay of the first Imposition, in the Time of the Earl of Salifbury, it was promifed, in the Banqueting-Houle at Whitehall, That his Majefty would never lay any more Impofition upon Commodities, without the Confent of the People." 4 ...

K 3

The

An. 22. James I. 3624.

⁶ The fecond General, That my Lord Treafurer knew well that, in that Affembly of Parliament, Complaint was made in the Lower Houfe, that the Overburthening of Trade was the Deftroying it; and that he was himfelf employ'd by the Houfe to the King to negotiate for Redrefs therein; and he promifed there, that he would make it his Mafter-Work.'

Quid dignum tanto foret hic Promissor.

• The Ifiue of all was this, for his Lordship to devise new Burthens.'

• These were the two Generals; from these the Knight descended to Particulars, and began with the Wines.*

⁶ But this Imposition was not laid till 2700 Tun of Wine were arriv'd in the River of Thames; and yet the Lord Treasurer, gave Command, that no Entry thereof be made in the Custom-House untill Security was taken to pay this intolerable Imposition.^{*}

' He left your Lordships there to confider their Circumstances.'

• 1. Ships all laden with this perifhing Commodity.'

• 2. Great and exceffive Leaking, by being upon the River, and Abufe in the Paffage.

• 3. Thirty Shillings per Tun formerly imposed by the Rochelers.

4. Twenty Shillings per Tun laid by the An. 22. James I. Merchants, for their feveral Apparel taken away by 1624. the Robelers.

5. This 3 l. per Tun to fill up the Measure of their Afflictions."

'Yet, initead of Compafion in this Extremity, fuch as refueed to pay, were celled at the double the Imposts; others; who could not put in Bonds, after Afperity of Language and petitioning to the King, were committed to Purfuivants; yet the King's Privy-Council used the Merchants honourably; for they fent for the Vintners, and, to help the Merchants, they raifed the Wine a Penny in a Quart.'

"Notwithstanding this the Merchants fell into the Hands of Customers, who used them rigoroufly, and they loft great Part of their Principal: First, They paid half of this new Imposition in hand, and gave Security to pay the other half; afterwards, the Payment was divided into three Parts, and fecured by the Merchants accordingly. On the 20th of August following, another Privy-Seal was iffued to determine the former; yet 40 s. only of this Impofition was taken off thereby, and 20 s. laid on the French Wines partially and without Limitation; viz. 20's. the Tun for London, and 13 s. and 4 d. for the Out-Ports, whereof the Londoner complained; and it was inferted in the Privy-Seal, to be at the humble and voluntary Affent of the Merchants; which is abfolutely deny'd, for they only confented to pay 20 s. the Tun, untill the Remainder of the former Impofition, fo fecured as aforefaid, were paid, and no longer ; yet they were haunted by Purfuivants till they had paid; and they complain they are undone, unless their Bonds be delivered up. They further complain, That they do pay for their Trade Cent. per Cent. and fhew'd the Particulars, viz."

• One Merchant had paid 800 l. to the King for his Part in a fhort Time, and now unable to pay any more.—Here the Knight faid, That he would

An. 22. James I. would willingly fupprefs what follows, for Acerbity of Speech is no Breeder of good Blood : But the Commons had commanded him to fpeak it, and to declare further, That the Merchants compared their Sufferings under these Impositions, to the Sufferings of the old Israelites in Egypt, when they were commanded to make Brick with lefs Straw; and generally confess, that they would drive twice as much Trade, if their Trade were not overburthened."

Hereupon they thought they had fufficient Ground to complain ; this being diffionourable to the King and oppreflive to the People, the King's Promife, Word, and Covenant, being violated; thefe Impolitions, double the Value, being grievous to the Subject and fearful to Posterity; for belides the old Imposition, by Statute, upon Wines, there are three more upon one another."

· Et quis erit Modus, of feeding upon Trade."

· Here ended the Complaint touching the Impofition on Wines.'

' Then he proceeded to the Complaint of the Leafe of Sugars procured by the Lord-Treafurer. viz.'

' That whereas George Herriot held the Farm of Sugars, upon a Rent of 10,000 Marks per Annum, the Lord-Treasurer procured him to furrender that Leafe, and obtained a new Leafe thereof unto two of his Lordships Servants to his own Ule, at 2000 l. per Annum for the fame.'

" What Merits had his Lordfhip, in the great extreme Want of Money, as to draw from his Majesty so great a Reward as 4000 l. per Annum for 21 Years? But the Commons Complaint herein is of a higher Nature.'

. That the King having granted, that the Merchants importing any Merchandize, and paying the Duties for the fame, if they export the fame within 13 Months, their Imposition is reftored: This is offery'd in all other Merchandizes fave that of Su-

gars. The Reafon is plain if your Lordships know An. 22. James I. who is the Farmer of it.'

⁶ That the City of London had yielded to a Composition for Grocery, but the Out-Ports refused, and especially the City of Bristol; and that in the Lord-Treasurer Salisbury's Time, Anno 11. Jacobi, that City had a Decree in the Exchequer, that they should be freed from any such Composition, upon condition to yield to Purveyance in Kind, when the King or Queen comes within 20 Miles of their City; which Purveyance cost them 800 l. when the Queen's Majesty was there. Nevertheles the Lord-Treasurer had directed his Warrant to levy a Composition upon the Merchants of that City and the other Out-Ports, against their Wills, with Commandment to ftay the Landing of their Goods untill it be paid.'

⁶ And this, he faid, was the Substance of their crying Complaint; what more can they fay, but, with wife King Soloman, If thou feelt the Oppression of the Poor, and violent Perverting of Judgment and Justice in a Province, marvel not at it; for he that is higher than the highest regardeth, and there be higher than he, Eccl. v. 8.³

• Their Complaint is of an high Lord, the Lord-Treafurer; but your Lordthips are higher than he; the King higher; and God higher than all; whofe Juftice your Lordthips execute. This Juftice they, humbly and inftant'y, demand of your Lordthips againft these Oppressions.'

This Report being ended, the Lords took into their Confideration how to proceed in the Bufinefs, and then referred the Examination thereof to the Sub-Committee on Munitions, &c. adding to the faid Committee the Lord-Keeper, the Lord-Steward, the Bifhop of Bath and Wells, the Lords Went:

An. 22. James I. Wentworth and Spencer: That their Lordships may divide themfelves into feveral Committees, if they pleafe, for expediting this Bufinefs; and may fend for any Witneffes to be fworn here in Court, that may conduce to the Examination thereof.

> April 17. We hear no more of the Lord-Treafurer's Affair for fome Time, the feveral Committees of Lords being bufy in examining Witneffes, in fupport of the Charge the Commons had exhibited against him. But, this Day, another Conference was required, by a Meffage from the Lords to the Commons, in order, as they faid, to clear fome Doubts that had arifen concerning the Breach of the Treaties. This Meffage was agreed to, and the Conference was to be in the Painted-Chamber immediately.

> Upon this the Duke of Buckingham got up and acquainted the Houfe with a Letter, written from the Lord-Deputy of Ireland, unto the Lord Chichester, concerning the Weaknefs and imminent Danger of that Kingdom : And alfo with Intel-ligence from Mr. Trumball, the King's Agent at Bruxels, concerning the Vaunts and Threats of the Adverfary. His Grace alfo opened to their Lordships the Danger of a War in Ireland; and that the fame may be prevented by a War of Diverfion in the Enemy's Country; and that the Counfel given his Majefty to break off the Treaty will prove dangerous, if he be not fupplied with Means to undertake a War.

> The Lords agreed to acquaint the Commons with this Business, and that the King had fent a Difpatch into Spain, according to his Majefty's former Intimation, for the Diffolution of the two Treaties.

> April 20. The House of Lords was adjourned from Saturday the 17th to this Day, on a Motion of the Prince, becaufe the Funeral of the Duke of Richmond was to be performed on Monday. This Lord, who was Coufin-German to the King, died on the first Day of this Parliament, as has been before related.

Eighteen Witneffes were fworn, a Cloir dire, in An. 22. James I, the Lord-Treasurer's Cause, touching such Matters as shall be demanded by the House, or any Committee appointed by them. And, the next Day, seventeen more were sworn on the same Occasion. Nothing more of Moment was done till the 24th.

On that Day, after fwearing twenty-eight more Witneffes in the Treafurer's Caufe, and reading the King's Anfwer to the Petition against Papifs, &c. already given; the Archbishop of Canterbury reported to the House, That the Committee, appointed to examine into the Complaint against the Lord-Treasurer, had met, and examined divers Witnesses, who were fworn here in the House, and had made a Collection of Part of the faid Charge; which Mr. Attorney read in Form following:

PART of the CHARGE against the LORD TREASURER.

I. THE Farmers of the Petty Farms of Wines and Currants, having fuftained great Lofs in their Farm, by an Impost of 31. per Tun of Wines newly fet, were long and inftant Suitors to the Lord Treasurer for Relief; but finding none, exhibited their Bill into the Exchequer, and afterwards a Petition to the King, for Reparation of their Lofs; to which having received a gracious Anfwer from his Majefty, the Lord Treasurer agreed with them upon a Recompence of 95001. to be defalked by 1000 l. per Annum out of their Rent; yet, after this Agreement made, he protracted their Warrant about fix Months, and, in the End, took of them a Bribe of 500 l. for their Dispatch, which was fet upon the Account of the Petty Farms: But fince the Summons of the Parliament, the fame was, by his Lordship's Direction, posted to the Account of the Great Farms."

II. ' The Lord Treasurer being presented with a Tun of Wine, by the Farmers of the Petty Cuftoms,

An. 22. James I. ftoms, was not contented therewith, but exacted 1624. Money of them alfo; who were thereupon drawn to give him 100 l.'

III. ' The Farmers of the Great Farm having, by their L'eafe, covenanted to give Security for the Payment of their Rent, divided their Farm into 32 Parts, appointing every Partner to give Security of 15001. for every Part. Five of the Partners relinguishing their Parts, the Security fell short 75001. Whereupon the four Patentees, refuming those five Parts to themselves, tendered their own Security; which his Lordship agreed to accept; yet protracted about three Quarters of a Year, untill they gave him 5001. for his Difpatch. And whereas his Lordship pretends, by his Answer to the House of Commons, that he had this 500 1. and the other 500 1. first mentioned in one entire Sum, for four thirty-two Parts of that. Great Farm, it appeareth his Lordship had no Parts at all in that Farm."

IV. . George Herriot having the Farms of Sugars upon the Rent of 1000 Marks per Annum, the Lord Treasurer procured Herrist to furrender that Leafe; and, to effect the fame, gives Order for the Payment of 14,865 1. due to Herriot for Jewels ; all which was paid between the 15th of December. 1621, and the 10th of January following. The Leale was no fooner furrendered, but the faid Treafurer procures a Leafe to two of his Servants, by Indenture, dated Jan. 13. 1621. for 21 Yeats, at 20001. Rent per Annum; which Rent his Lordship paid fo flowly, that there having only 40001. thereof grown due fince the Leafe, 3000 l. thereof was paid on and fince the 31ft of December laft : And whereas the Merchants. importing any Merchandize, and paying the Duties, are freed to export within the Year, without any new Payments; that Cuftom was observed in all other Farms, but denied in this, for the faid Lord Treasurer's Benefit.'

V. 'The City of London having yielded to a Composition for Grocery Ware, which the Out-Ports,

Ports, particularly the City of Briftol, refufed ; An. 22. James I. upon long Debate and Advisement, in the Time of the Treasurer Salisbury, it was refolved they fhould not be prefs'd thereto : Neverthelefs, the Lord Treasurer hath given Warrant to levy that Composition upon the Merchants of the Out-Ports against their Wills, or elfe to stay the Landing of their Goods; which hath been put in Execution accordingly.'

VI. 'In December, 1618, his Majesty, upon great Deliberation and Advifement, did fet forth Inftructions, very fitting and neceffary for the well ordering of the Court of Wards : The Lord Treafurer becoming Master of the Wards, and, for his own private Gains, aiming at an Alteration of those Instructions, first procured a Reference to divers of the Council to confider thereof, yet after waved that Reference; and, by his own Power and Greatness with the Officers of the Court, (tho' much against their Wills) and by Misinformation of his Majefty, (tho' much to the Difadvantage of the King and Subject) in the Year 1622, procures new Instructions; thereby taking the Petitions from the Clerk of the Court, and appropriating them to himfelf and his Secretary, who takes great Rewards of the Subject for procuring Answers to the fame; and, by Colour of those new Instructions, he doubles Fees of Continuance of Liveries; and, having concealed the Wardships to himself, he may eafily make Wardships concealed by the Course of the new Instructions."

" Alfo he hath made a Stamp, and delivered the fame to his Secretary to be used; thereby, unlawfully, putting into the Hands of his Secretary the greateft Part of the Power and Truft appertaining to the Office of Master of the Wards. This the Secretary hath used, stamping therewith, in the Absence of the Master, Tenders, Continuances, Warrants to the Great Seal, Grants of Wardships and Leases, Indentures of Liveries, &c. And whereas, by a Privy Seal of 6° Jacobi, there was an Allowance fettled James I, fettled for the Ordinary of the Office of Ordnance : which, being put out of Order in the Time of Sir Roger Dallison, in Anno 1617, the Lords, upon Reference from his Majefty, fet, under their Hands. a Proportion, both for prefent Supply and future upholding of that Office : But his Lordship, being Treasurer for the Space of two Years and a Half. hath observed none of these Proportions or Establishments; whereby the Stores are, in effect, wholly unfurnifhed."

· And there being a Contract made with Mr Evelyn, by himfelf and other Commissioners for his Majefty, for ferving his Majefty with Gun-Powder. being a Bargain of high Confequence to have been kept, his Lordship hath also neglected and broken that Bargain, to the Hazard of the Kingdom and Prejudice of the King."

· He hath also made unlawful Bargains for the Lands of Sir Roger Dallifon ; wherein, for compaifing those Lands, he has contracted to do his Endeavour to procure Payment of 80001. of old Arrears, (which he performed when he became Treasurer) and to pay for the Land with making of Baronets and Suits to the King; and, in particular, a Suit, for compounding with his Majefty's Copyholders of Wakefield by himfelf, worth 2000]. And, having agreed with Sir Thomas Dallifon and the Officers of the Ordnance, he, to gain, indirectly, and by oppreffive Means, an Effate which Sir Roger Dallison had paffed to Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davy, he fetteth on Foot an Outlawry of Sir Roger Dallifon, and thereby disposses Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davy, who had been in Poffeffion, by a Trial at Law; using the Power of his Place, and Countenance of the King's Service, to wreft them out of a Leafe and Effate of great Value.'

After the Reading of this, it was ordered, That the faid Part of the Lord-Treafurer's Charge fhould be fent unto him To-day. And that he be warn-

Then follow the Names of near forty Witneffes,

This Petition being read, the Lords appointed a fpecial Committee to confider what Anfwer should be made to it, confisting of the Lord-Prefident, Lord Viscount Rochford, the Bishop of Rochester, and the Lords Wentworth, Howard, and Say. These Lords having withdrawn themselves fome Time, and being returned, the Lord-Prefident reported to the Houfe the Anfwer agreed on, in these Words:

i. That Warrants shall be given for calling in The Order of the Lords thereupon. of fuch Witneffes, whofe Names shall be exhibited in Writing, and thought fit by the Houfe to be examined : the Interrogatories and Witneffes Names to be fent to the House To-morrow in the Afternoon, and the Witneffes themfelves to appear, that fuch of them may be fworn and examined as the Houfe shall think fit. 2. The Houfe fees no Caufe, when the Witneffes Names and Interrogatories are fent in, why the Examination of them should be deferred : But the Day for his Appearance and Aniwer was to hold. 3. His Lordship may may use what Council he pleases to advise for his An. 22. James I. 1624. Defence; but it stands not with the Orders of this Houfe to allow Council, at the Bar, in Cafes of this Nature.

This Answer, being read and approved, was fent to the Lord-Treasurer. A Memorandum is made. That the Earl of Bridgewater, one of the Committee to fearch Precedents, &c. reported, That they could find none where a Member of this Houfe did answer, by his Counfel, to a Complaint exhibited against him : But that divers Members of this House and others had answered in Person and not by Counfel; and that Counfel was denied to Michael de la Pole, Lord-Chancellor, Anno 10; Richard II: when he required the fame.

April 28. The Lordsbeing inform'd that the Witneffes, whom the Lord Treasurer defired to be examined, waited without for that Purpose; they ordered the Usher to go forth and enquire, whether any from the Lord-Treasurer attended with Interrogatories to be exhibited by his Lord (hip to the Witneffes. And, being informed there was none, the Lords agreed, for gaining of Time, to fwear the faid Witneffes according to the usual Oath.

Soon after this came another Petition from the Lord-Treasurer to the House, which was read inhac Verba:

To the Right Honourable Affembly of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in the Higher Houfe of Parliament.

The HUMBLE PETITION of the Earlof MIDDLE-SEX, LORD-TREASURER of England,

The Lord Treafurer's Petition

MOA humbly Speweth, That, according to your as to Interroga-Lordhith Directiont in Angener to his Pati twice Depositi Lordships Directions, in Answer to his Peti- tories, Depositition humbly prefented Yesterday, he had appointed the ons, &c. Witnesses there named to attend the most honourable House this Afternoon, to be sworn to answer such Interrogatories as, on his Behalf, shall be exhibited. Vol: VI; E But,

An. 22. James I. 1624.

But, whereas your Lordships did further direct that the said Interrogatories should be presented this Day; he most humbly desires your Lordships to be truly informed, that, having neglected no Time since he received his Charge to prepare his Answer, he finds the Matters objected so many and of such divers Natures, that he cannot yet, possibly, furnish the same, in such perfect and particular Manner, as he ought and desires to do for your Lordships best Satisfaction, and the clearing the Matters laid to his Charge in all Points.

And therefore, his Anfwer being not yet ready, upon which all the Interrogatories must properly be grounded, and without which your Lord/hips Judgments of the Pertinencies of the Interrogatories cannot be rightly informed, he humbly befeecheth your Lordships to respite them, and as soon as his Answer is finished he will forward them with all possible Speed. And he doth, once again, humbly propound to the Confideration of this most honourable House (because therein your Lordships have not been pleased to give Auswer unto his former Petition) whether your Lordships will not, in your noble Justice, permit him to have Copies of the Depositions taken and to be taken in this Gaufe, on both Sides, without which he shall be utterly difabled to make that just Defence, which a Caufe, of that Importance to him, doth necessarily require.

MIDDLESEX.

Order thereupon.

The Lords, upon reading this Petition, did all agree, 'That it is againft the Order of this Court, as well as of all other Courts, for a Delinquent to have Copies of the Examinations before he anfwers.' And, as to the reft of the Petition, the following Anfwer was agreed on to it.

'The Lords expected to be obeyed and not to have been directed; and hold for a Difrefpect unto the Houfe, That Witneffes fhould be produced and fworn, and no Interrogatories fent whereon to examine them as was required.'

The Copies of Depositions already taken, for Proof of the Charge, was not directly prayed in the the former Petition, therefore it was not precifely An. 22. James I. 1624. answered; but it is fo unfit a Defire that the Lords think the Petitioner ill-advised to make fuch a Requeft. And, according to the former Order of the Houfe, the Lords expect the Lord-Treasurer's Appearance To-morrow Morning, to hear fuch Anfwers as he shall make.'

April 29. Another Petition from the Lord-Treasurer was prefented to the House, and read in hac Verba ; directed as before :

MOA humbly shewing, That, befides the weighty The Lord Trea-Gares of Mind which now do lie upon him, by furer's Petition the Charge he hath received from that most honourable for further Time; Houfe, he is fallen into fuch an Indisposition of Body, as he is once more enforced to befeech your Lordships; in your noble Justice and Favour, to grant him a farther Day for prefenting his Answer and Interrogatories, which fall out to be much longer than he himfelf expected. It being no small Addition to his Sorrows, that, in a Cafe fo nearly concerning him, he cannot conceive by their Lordships former Answers to his former humble Petition, that they purposed to allow him Copies of the Depositions, whereby, after his Answer delivered in Writing, he' shall prepare himfelf for his just Defence against the Hearing.

MIDDLESEX.

To back this Petition, his Royal Highness the Prince moved the House, ' That in respect of the Lord-Treasurer's great Office; and Sickness pretended by his Lordship, he might have a longer Day given him; and that Day to be abfolute. • On which, the following Answer to the Petition was agreed on.

' That the Lords, only, in respect of the Lord-Which is grant. Treasurer's Indisposition of Health, are pleased to ed him. respite his Appearance this Day; but do enjoin that on Saturday next, May 1. at Nine in the Mor-ning; if his Health fo permit, he bring his Anfwer ac-

Likewife, the Lords do peremptorily affign Friday, the 7th of May next, at Nine in the Morning, for his Appearance in Perfon, and for the final hearing and determining the Caufe.'

> This Conceffion of the Lords was gained by a Letter, which the Treafurer had wrote to the King, to intreat him to intercede with them for longer Time. The Letter itfelf is too confiftent with this Defign to be omitted.

The Earl of MIDDLESEX to the KING (d).

Sacred Majefty and my moft gracious Mafter, His Letter to the Your Goodnefs is fuch to me your oppreffed Servant, in this my Time of Perfecution, as I know not how to exprefs my Thankfulnefs; otherwife than by pouring forth my humble and hearty Prayers to the great God of Heaven and Earth, to grant your M.ijefty all Happinefs here and everlafting Happinefs hereafter.

> Between Five and Six of the Clock on Saturday in the Evening, I received my Charge from the Lords affembled in Parliament, with an Order by which I am commanded to appear at the Bar, on Thursday next, by Nine of the Clock in the Morning, with my Anfwer; and in the mean Time to examine my Witneffes.

This Charge of mine hath been in preparing, by examining Witnessen on Oath, and otherwise, twentythree Days; and hath been weighed by the Wisdom of both Houses; and doth concern me so nearly in Point of Honour and Faith to your Majesty, to answer well, as I value my Life at nothing in comparison of it.

I may grieve, the' I will not complain of any Thing my Lords shall be pleased to command; but do hope that, upon a second Confideration, they will not not think three Days a fitting Time for me to make An. 22. James I. my Anfwer, and to examine Witneffes in a Caufe of fuch Importance and fo nearly concerning me, when twenty-three Days have been fpent, almost from Morning untill Night, in preparing my Charge.

I know the Houfe (whofe Judgment I shall never defire to wave) is the proper Place for me to move to be refolved herein; and therefore shall, on Wednefday Morning, make my humble Motion there, to have feven Days longer Time, as well to make my Answer and Appearance, as to examine my Witneffes, who are many, and upon several Heads.

But because the Prince his Highness and many of the principal Lords are now with your Majesty at Windsor, my humble Suit to your Majesty is, that you would be pleased to move them, on my Behalf, to yield me so much further Time, that my Cause may not suffer Prejudice for want of Time to make my just Defence; that which I have propounded being as moderate as is possible.

With my most humble and hearty Prayer to Almighty God for Continuance of your Health, with all Happiness, I humbly kiss your Majesty's Hands, and will ever rest, April 26. 1624 Your Majefty's most humble Subject and Servant, MIDDLESEX.

To go on with our Journal:—The fame Day, April 29, the Attorney General read fome additional Articles to the Charge against the Lord Treafurer, in hac Verba:

An. 22. James I. . Instead of doing Service, he hath brought that Place into Diforder and Confusion; he hath not duly ferved the Warrants which he should have ferved, nor paid the Workmen and Creditors; he hath neither kept orderly Accounts, nor yielded any; but, under Colour of pretended Service of great Importance, hath procured Gifts and Difcharges of great Sums of Money, which he received for the Execution of that Place, and for the Queen's Funeral.'

• II. Whereas, in the former Charge delivered to his Lordship, it is mentioned that Merchants, importing Sugars, have been denied to export the fame without paying new Duties: It appears, upon further Confideration of that Bufinefs, That the Prejudice the Merchants have fuftained concerning their Sugars, is, that they have been denied, upon Exportation of Sugars, the Imposts paid on Importation; which is contrary to the Direction given by his Majefty's Letters Patents 5 Sept. 8 Jac.

A Copy of this, figned by the Clerk, was fent to the Lord Treasurer by Mr. Sergeant Davis and Mr. Sergeant Finch.

May 1. This Day the Lord Treasurer fent yet another Petition to the Lords, with his Anfwer to his Charge, and the Interrogatories to four Parts of the fame; which, being read, were referred to a Committee, who were to report to the Houfe what Interrogatories they reject. The Tenor of the Petition was as follows;

To the most Honourable Assembly of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in the Higher Houfe of Parliament.

THE. Lord Treasurer, with most humble. Thanks, acknowledgeth the honourable Favour of this House, by their noble Order made in this House on Thursday last; and doth most humbly take bold of the Liberty thereby granted him, (in respect of lis Indifposition, which yet continueth) most humbly to prelent fint to your Lordships herewith all his Answer, in An. 22. James I. Writing, as well to the Charge he received the 24th of April, as to the Additions thereto which he receiv'd the 29th of the same, together with as many of his Interrogatories for Examination of Witneffes as he could possibly make ready by this Time, which are full and perfect for four of the Articles of his Charge; most bumbly defiring Monday Morning at the Sitting of the Court for the bringing in the reft; and that your Lordships will pardon the Length of his Answer; the Variety and Multiplicity of the Particulars necessarily requiring it, as well for the readier informing of your Lordships Judgments, as for Relief of his own weak Memory, whom as yet you have been pleased to appoint to stand alone without Counsel at the Hearing : He doth withall humbly explain his Meaning in the former Petitions, which were not to defire Copies of the Depositions before his Answer were put in, and all Witneffes for and against him fully examined : But, when that shall be done, he hopes it will stand with the Honour and Justice of that most honourable House, to allow him Copies of the Depositions on both Sides. MIDDLESEX.

The Tenor of the Lord-Treasurer's Answer to his Charge followeth.

The HUMBLE ANSWER of the Earl of Middlefex, LORD-TREASURER of England, to the Part of the CHARGE which was deliver'd him from the most honourable Court of the Higher House of Parliament, on Saturday the 24th of April, 1624.

C the first and third Articles concerning His Answer to the two pretended Bribes of 500 l. a-piece, the first Part of alledged to be taken by the Lord-Treasurer for the the Charge afeveral Caufes mentioned in the faid Articles : His gainft him. Anfwer is, That no fuch feveral Sums were ever paid unto him, nor any Money at all for any of the Caufes mentioned in the faid Charge; but he acknowledgeth that, the 27th of June last past, he, by his Servant, did receive at the Hands of Abraham

An. 22. Jomes I. Abraham Jacob, one entire. Sum of a 1000 l. in confideration of his, the faid Lord-Treafurer's, Intereft in four 32 Parts of the great Farm, which he had formerly referved unto himfelf, upon fettling the new Leafe thereof; and for no other Caufe, as he hath truly alledged in his Anfwer to the Houfe of Commons: And, for better Satisfaction of this most honourable House therein, he hath here set down a true and particular Declaration of the State and Carriage of that Bufinefs, as followeth :

"He is very well affured, that as his general Course, in all Bargains of the like Nature for the King, hath been to look to his own Duty and the King's Service, as the Husband of his Majefty's Eftate; fo in this particular, touching the 9500 l. allowed to the Petty Farmers in recompence of . their Loffes, he carried himfelf fo carefully and fo ftrictly for the King, as he could no ways expect fo much as Thanks, much lefs any Gratuity or Reward from them : For though, at first, they, demanded of his Majefty a very great Sum, pretending, that the Interruption they complained of was 10,000 l. Difadvantage to them in their first Year only; yet, upon good Reasons, shewed by the Lord-Treasurer, on his Majesty's Behalf, they were brought to accept of 9,500 l. whereof, though they earneftly prefied to have prefent Satisfaction, yet he over-ruled them to take it in nine. Years and an Half, (which was not worth more than 5000 l. in hand) and that, alfo, to be in full Satistaction of all their Demands, not for one Year, but for the whole Term of nine Years and an Half; to, as, in that Particular, the Lord-Treasurer was To far from doing them Favour, that he thinks, they have maliced him ever fince, rather for holding them fo hard to it, than for any Regard to the King's Service.

' And for the Great Farm, the faid Treasurer faith, That the old Farmers, becoming Suitors to renew their Leafe, propounded to leave the Silk-Farm upon his Majefty's Hands; and, withall, to have an Abatement of the Rent they then paid for the Great Farm: Whereupon the Lord-Treasurer, An. 22. James Le finding how much that Offer tended to his Majefty's 1624 . . Difadvantage, defired Sir Arthur Ingram, by himfelf and his Friends, to get a better Offer made to the King, which was done accordingly; and there-: by his Majefty's Rent was not impaired (as at first was proposed) but increased 4000 l. per Annum; and the Silk-Farm-Rent was also made good; which, otherwife, to have been lett by itfelf, would not have yielded the old Rent by 5, or 6000 1. per Annum; fo that the Bargain was better to the King than the old Farmers first offered by 9, or 10,000 l. per Annum : Notwithstanding, it was thought fit by his Majefty that, the old Farmers, coming to the Rate offered by others within a 1000 l. per Annum, fhould have the Preference of the Bargain. But withall, the Lord-Treasurer, to gratify those, who, by their faid Offers, had done the King Service, by advancing the Rent as aforefaid, did, at the Instance of Sir Arthur Ingram, on his and their. Behalf, referve certain Parts of the faid Farm, with no other Intention but to difpofe the fame among them; and then gave Order for the Leafe to proceed to the Patentees, who were named, in Truft, for themfelves, and all the Partners.'

"And, afterwards, the faid Lord-Treasurer did dispose of the faid Parts, referved to the faid Sir Arthur Ingram and others, according to the first Intention; four of which Parts, the Parties which had them did afterwards, at feveral Times, give up to the faid Lord Treasurer, and left the fame at his difpofing. Some Months after, Sir Philip Garey, who had one of the Lord-Treasurer's Parts, and fome others placed by the Farmers, upon fome Miflike of Carriages of) that Farm, did alfo relinquish and give up their Parts; upon Occasion whereof, the Lord-Treasurer, being put in mind by Sir Arthur Ingram of the faid four Parts, which were returned unto him by those to whom he had formerly disposed them; and being ask'd what he would do with them, did, upon Jacob's next coming to him, alk him, How the Farmers meant to ufe

An. 22. James I. ufe him for his four thirty-two Parts of the Farm ? He answered, That-because his Lordship had formerly fign'd a Warrant, for the King's Security of all the thirty-two Parts, and faid nothing of those four Parts, they thought his Lordship had waved them; but he would fpeak with the Partners about it, and then give him a full Anfwer. Within few Days after, Jacob returned to him, and very freely offered a 1000 l. for his Parts, according to the Rate which, he faid, they had lately given to Mr. Chancellor for his; which the Lord-Treafurer was contented to accept: And within four Days after, he told Mr. Chancellor what Bargain he had made with the Farmers, for his Interest in four thirtytwo Parts of the Great Farm, viz. That he had fold them to the Farmers for a 1000 l.'

· This Agreement being thus made with Jacob, and the 1000 l. paid accordingly; it falls out, by that which was fince difcovered, That he and his' Partners, which fhared those four Parts, agreed together, to eafe themfelves of that Money; (which fhould have been properly born upon their own private Accounts,) by laying the fame upon the general Accounts of the Great and Petty Farms; (themfelves being Farmers in both) and thereupon, the 1000 l. as is fince difcovered, was by them divided into two Parts; the one Half enter'd upon the Books of the Petty Farmers, and the other, upon the general Account of the Great Farm; as Gratuities to the Lord-Treasurer; who little knew of their unjust Proceedings, both with himfelf and their Partners, untill about Christmas laft; when he had first Intimation of some such Charge laid upon the Petty Farms, not hearing then that which was done upon the Great Farms Account: Hereupon he prefently fent for Facob, and was much offended with him, that he fhould fuffer any fuch unjust Thing to be done; who, at first, denied it; but, the next Day, confess'd it; and faid, it was ill done; and faid, he was over-ruled in it; and promifed to fet all ftraight again, according to the Truth and Right of the Cafe; which, the Lord-Trea-

Treasurer understands was done accordingly; not An. 22. James I. by pofting the 500 l. from the Petty Farm's Ac-1624. count to the Great Farm's, but by discharging both unjust Charges out of both Accounts; the Patentees returning back the Money which they had taken off the Petty Farmers, upon the Lord-Treasurer's just Exception thereto; and also making like Reftitution, of their own Accord, to their Partners in the Great Farm, whom they had likewife wronged ; whereof the Lord-Treasurer heard nothing till of late: So, he hopes, the Proofs of this Caufe will make it evidently appear, that all this Scandal hath fallen upon him, by this underhand working of the Patentees for their own private Gain; by wrongfully charging their Partners' in both Farms, to eafe themfelves, without the Lord-Treasurer's Privity or Knowledge : And tho' the Patentees, to make their own Tale good, have lately denied that the Lord-Treasurer had any Part in the Farm; yet, it will manifeftly appear upon Proof, by the Oaths of Men of good Reckoning, that themfelves have acknowledg'd, that his Lordship had referved Part of that Farm at his difpofing."

• For the 1001 and the Tun of Wine, alledged, in the fecond Article, to be received: The Truth is this, That Abraham Jacob being with the Lord-Treafurer about other Bufinefs, told him, That the Farmers of the Petty Farms, had, or did intend, to prefent him with a Tun of Wine, for a New Year's Gift. The Lord-Treafurer then answered him merrily, That other Lord-Treafurers had been better respected by those Farmers, and that he would have none of their Wine; and shortly after, Bernard Hyde brought him an 1001. for a New Year's Gift only, and for no other Cause.'

An. 22. James I. 10,000 Marks per Annum, as is alledged in the. Charge, but at less by a 1000 l. per Annum, viz. 5666 l. 13 s. 4 d. Rent."

· Afterwards, the 17th of November 1620, in the Time the Lord Vifcount Mandeville was Treafurer, Herriot obtain'd a Privy-Seal of Affignment, whereby he had Power to pay himfelf out of the Sugar Farm-Rent, by way of Retainer, a Debt of 13,089 l. 16 s. formerly due to him, viz. for his Fee-Arrear in the Exchequer 1871. 10 s. and upon fix Privy-Seals for Jewels, formerly bought of him, 12,902 l. 6 s. in which Privy-Seal of Affignment, there was one special Clause, That if the faid three Years Rent would not fuffice to pay the whole Debt, by reason of Defalcations which might fall out upon the Farm, the reft fhould be, made good out of the Exchequer; and afterwards, in May and August 1621, in the Viscount Mandeville's Time, Herriot obtained two other Privy-Seals, for two other Debts due to him, amounting to 1962 l. 15 s. which, being added to the former Debts by Privy-Seal, makes up the great Sum of 14,865 1. mentioned in the Lord-Treasurer's Charge.?

And whereas it is alledged, that this whole. Sum of 14,865 l. was paid to Herriot by the now, Lord-Treasurer's Order within the Space of 26 Days; the Truth is, There was not one Penny. paid at all in Money, but Herriot being indebted to his Majefty 7799 l. upon account of the Rents and Profits of the Sugar-Farm untill Christmas 1621, the fame was allowed in difcharge of fo much of his Debt of 14,865 1. viz. 5666 1. 13 s. and '4 'd. which he had Power to pay himfelf, by virtue of the faid Privy-Seal of Affignment; and z132 l. 6 s. and 8 d. which was done by him upon his Account before the Leafe of the Sugar-Farm began. And whereas he might, by the faid Privy-Seal of Affignment, have paid himfelf the. other 7066'l. within less than 15 Months; the Lord-Treasurer did, by Herriot's Consent, transfer the fame to be paid out of the Tobacco-Farm, Vizo viz. 4000 l. at Michaelmas 1622, and the reft at An. 22. James L. Michaelmas 1623; which was a longer Time and 1624. more advantageous Affignment for the King than the former was: So, although there were feveral Orders fign'd, as if the Money had been paid immediately out of the Exchequer; yet that was done. of Necessity, to enable the ftriking Tallys, for the Tellers Charge and Difcharge, as the Form of the Exchequer required, without iffuing any Money at all: So that it will appear upon Record, this Charge upon the Lord-Treasurer is wholly miftaken; and that he was fo far from paying fo much ready Money as he is charged with, that he paid no ready Money at all, but by Affignment; which he made at longer Days, than it was formerly fettled in his Predeceffors Time. And thereupon Herriot, having his Debt thus fettled and paid to his Content. did furrender up his Leafe; which, he had procured to no other End, but to fecure the Payment of the Debts owing to him by the King. Afterwards, it is true, his Majesty granted a new Lease of the Sugar-Farm to the Lord-Treasurer's Use, at the Rent of 2000 l. per Annum; in the granting whereof his Majefty was truly inform'd of the State of the fame, and particularly made acquainted, That the faid Farm of Sugars might be improv'd to 6000 l. per Annum, though Herriot had it but at 5666 l. 13 s. 4 d. it being his Majefty's Pleafure, out of his own Grace and Goodness, to grant the fame, in Form aforefaid, to the Lord-Treasurer, for his many Services, and for Confiderations beft known to himfelf.'

• For the flow paying his Rent, it is true, that one of the 3000 l. was paid three or four Days after the Rent-Day, and the other two Half-Years Rents were forborn in refpect of fome private Difburfements of his Lordfhip's for the King; upon Bills of Exchange to the Commissioners for Ireland; and other Engagements for his Majefty; which his Lordfhip intended fhould be difcharg'd and clear'd by the faid Rent.'

An: 22. James I. 1624.

⁶ And, laftly, The Liberty of transporting Merchants Sugars, formerly imported, remaineth now in the fame Eftate and Condition, without any Alteration, fince the Lord-Treasurer's Lease, as it did at any Time before; neither is there any fuch Reftraint or Denial made by him, or under him, to the Merchants Prejudice or his own Profit, as is alledged in the Charge.⁵

· To the fifth Article, touching the Compofition for Grocery-Wares in the City of Briflol and the Out-Ports; the faid Lord-Treasurer faith, That Complaint being made unto him on his Majefty's Behalf, That, the faid Composition-Money being no lefs due in the Out-Ports than in the Port of London, no certain Courfe was fettled for the receiving of it, or bringing it to account for his Majefty's Ufe, fo as little or no Benefit thereof came to the King: He thereupon thought fit to fend a general Warrant to the Out-Ports, to authorize Abraham Jacob to take care of that Collection; and receive fuch Duties of that Nature; as had been formerly ufed to have been paid; to the end the whole Collection thereof might come in upon one Man's Account; with no Intention to raife a new Charge upon the Subject, but only to fettle the Collections of the King's Duties in Order : And, as foon as the faid Lord-Treasurer had notice, That the Citizens of Briftol had formerly yielded to furnish his Majesty's Houshold with Grocery in Specie, upon Purveyance, at the King's coming into those Parts; and, thereupon, had obtain'd an Order in the Exchequer, to exempt them from the Payment of the Composition; the Lord-Treasurer did prefently discharge the former Warrant fent thither before, and referred the Merchants (who acquainted thefit with it) to Sir Simont Harvey, one of the Officers of the Green Cloth, who certified his Lordfhip, that he had agreed with them to their good Contentment.'

⁴ To the fixth Article, concerning the Bufine's of the Court of Wards, the Lord-Treasurer makes this humble Answer, That in December 1618, his

Ma-

Majefty did fet forth Inftructions for the ordering An. 22. James I, of the Court of Wards; which Orders were fet 1624. forth by the Procurement and Solicitation of fome of the Officers; without the Privity of the Lord Vifcount Wallingford then Mafter, and fome other of the Council of that Court, and near about the Time of his Lordship's leaving the Place; divers of which Articles tended to the Abridgement of the antient Authority and Profits of the Mafter's Place, and for the Profit of others of the Officers of the Court.'

· Whereupon the Lord Treasurer, being made Mafter, was an humble Suitor to his Majefty to reftore him to the former Rights of the Place, by altering the faid Instructions in fome Points, not prejudicial to his Majefty's Profits, nor grievous to his Subjects; upon which it pleafed his Majefty to refer the fame to fome Privy Counfellors, as is mentioned in the Charge; after which Time, and before any Thing was done, upon the humble Motion of the Lord Treasurer, his Majesty was pleased to direct, That the Master and Officers should first confer and agree (if they could) among themfelves, and refort to the Referrees, if they agreed not : Whereupon the Master and all the Officers, upon fundry Meetings and Debatings, agreed among themfelves for the new Instructions, and thereupon voluntarily fubfcribed their Names. There was no Mifinformation ufed to his Majefty; neither are the Points contained in the new Instructions difadvantageous to the King or Subjects more than the former, and, in fome Points, of much more Advantage both to the King and Subject.'

An. 22. James I, who was to prefent it at the Sitting of the Council, which could be only in Term Time; whereas, by the former antient Courfe, and by the laft Instructions, the Petition being delivered to the Master, he only giveth Order for finding and returning an Office, which must also be entered with the Clerk; and, the Office being returned, the Grant is made by the Master and Council, at the Council Table. By this Courfe the Suitor hath Expedition at all Times, and the Mafter no Profit at all; and the Secretary neither hath taken, nor exacted, any Reward of the Subject for procuring Anfwers, to the Knowledge of him the Lord Treafurer.'

· Touching the doubling Fees for Continuance of Liveries, by the new Instructions, he faith, That, ever till the Inftruction of 1618, the Suitor might continue his Livery, either with the Mafter or Surveyor; and the Mafter's Fees for fuch Continuance was ever ten Shillings. The Instructions of 1618 appropriated the Continuance only to the Surveyor, which was an Encroachment by the Surveyor upon the Master; now the new Instructions enjoin the Continuances to be with both, for which the Mafter taketh no other Fee than ten Shillings; which was the antient Fee for Continuances taken by all Mafters before him : And, for Tenders, the Mafter doth now take but five Shillings; whereas the antient Fee is ten Shillings."

· By the Continuance before both Houfes, Men are rather forced to fue out their Liveries to the Benefit of the King, and Good of fuch as have Caufe to fue against them.'

. . Touching the having of concealed Wardships, and, to that Point, that the Mafter may eafily make Wardships concealed by the Course of the new Instructions, the Lord Treasurer faith, That altho' he hath the disposing of concealed Wardships; vet the Benefit of them is to the King's own Ufe : and it is not in his Power to make a concealed Wardfhip: For if the Petition fhould be suppress'd, or not answered, yet it is no Concealment, by the 1 . . nevi new Instructions, if any Suit be made for it with-An, 22. James I. in a Year after the Death of the Tenant, neither 1624. is the Lord Treasurer charged to have done, or fo much as to have attempted any fuch Act.

· Touching the Stamp, which he is charged with having delivered to the Secretary, he doth humbly acknowledge the fame ; but, withall, defireth your. Lordships to take into Confideration, that the whole Purpofe and Scope of doing thereof was only for the prefent Difpatch of Suitors in ordinary Matters of Courfe; and for fuch Bufinessas could not be effected by the Stamp alone, without the Affiftance or joining of other Officers therewith; either before or after putting the Stamp: And the Lord Treasurer was rather induced to give way thereto, becaufe he had understood that the Lord Burleigh, when Lord Treasurer, made use of the like; and for that Stamps are in use in other Offices at present : Yet, if the Lord Treasurer had ever conceived, or been informed, that it had been unlawful or unfit, he should not have used it : Also he directly affirmeth. That, by the Ufe thereof, neither the King's Majefty, nor the Subject, hath hitherto any Charge or Prejudice, but much Eafe in their Difpatch.'

And as to Dallifon's unfettling the Office of Ordnance, that fell out eight of nine Years fince ; and the Supply fet down by the Lords, Anno 1617, was four Years before the Lord Treasurer was in Office; neither did the Commission of the Treafury, nor his Predeceffors, purfue any Point thereby directed; but it lay wholly neglected; and now only revived against the Lord Treasurer, who never faw it but in this Parliament : And for the Book made up by the Commiffioners of the Navy, in Anno 1628, for supplying the Stores and future upholding of the Office of Ordnance, (tho', being the last of the three Settlements mentioned in the Articles, it might be fufficient to fuspend both the former) it was fo far from being an Eftablishment to govern the Office by, that all the Officers have, and still do oppose it, and protest against it to this Day; to as there being only Propositions Vol. VI. with-M

An. 22. James I. without Refolutions, and no fettled Rule of Eftabliffmient and Direction, why fhould the Lord Treasurer be bound to keep it? Or why the Breach thereof be made his Fault now, when it was broken and neglected in his Predeceffor's Time, who was then the only proper Officer to have put it in Execution, the now Lord Treasurer being but one of the Propounders of it."

" Notwithstanding, he humbly conceives, and hopes to prove clearly, that there hath been no fuch wilful Negligence as is alledged ; for tho' it be true, that the Officers of the Ordnance, always oppofing that Book of the Commiffioners, would never fue out the two Warrants thereby required, the one of 13,6401. 14 s. 2 d. for Supply of the Stores, and the other of 30001. per Annum for the Ordinary ; yet there have been other Privy Seals of the fame Nature fued out, whereupon hath been islued to that Office, fince that Book of the Commissioners was delivered, as follows, viz: for the Supply of the Stores, 11,0961. 17s 6d. which Sums want not much of the Commissioners Preparations, confidering that the ordinary Quarter-Books are yet unpaid for a Year and a Quarter; all which argue no wilful Negligence in the Payments, howfoever the Officers have difpofed of the Monies; nor any great Unfurnishing of the Stores, which, if they have lefs Proportion of fome Stores of Provisions than were fet down in the Commissioners Books, vet they have more of other Stores of Provisions, which have fince been thought more ufeful and more neceffary.'

As to what concerns neglecting the Supplies for Gun-powder, the Lord Treasurer faith, 'That the Bargains with Evelyn were made in the Lord Mandeville's Time, who continued in the Office the first five Months after; in which Time Evelyn ferved in Powder for the first three Months; but, getting no Money for it, made a Stop of his Delivery, according to the Liberty of his Contract : So that the fame was broken in the Lord Mandeville's Time; and left wholly in Diffraction to the now Lord

Trea-

Treasurer, with a Debt for three Months Powder, An. 22. James Le delivered as aforefaid ; his Predeceffor not paying 1624. one Penny upon that Contract in all that Time."

· Neither did that Bargain with Evelyn fuffer any fmall Interruption, by the continual Complaints ftirred up against him by Mr Sadler, and new Propositions made by him for, fettling the Powder-making otherwife ; wheteby Evelyn's Contract flood under Question, and both the Lord Treasurer, and Mr Chancellor, and the Commisfioners of the Navy, had feveral Times the Trouble to examine the fame; the Lord Treasurer having a Purpole to bring Evelyn to Account for the Profit, made by him, of the Surplufage of the Price of the Powder put to Sale: By this Means, and by reason of other Mishaps, of blowingup the Powder-Mills by Fire, Evelyn grew difcouraged; and the Service was neglected, till Sadler's Suggestions were found frivolous, which was near a Year's Interrup-

Befides, when the Lord Treasurer enter'd, he found in the Stores but one hundred and fixteen Lasts odd hundreds of Powder; and, the 20th of Marth last, he left in store above one hundred and forty one Lafts, notwithstanding the great Expence of Powder, upon Extraordinaries, in the now Lord Treasurer's Time, which also might have been one hundred ninety four Lafts, if the Lord Mandeville had fettled and maintained the Contract in his Time, by Addition of his five Months Provision; and the three Months which he left the now Lord Treafurer to pay for; whereas the whole Proportion of Gun-Powder, affign'd by the Commissioners of the Navy's Book to be in ftore, was but one hundred and forty three Liafts of Powder; and good Reafons given wherefore there fhould be no more."

Lafly, It will appear, by comparing the Quantity of Powder, paid for by the now Lord Treafurer, with the Time before, that his Lordship had paid for as much, in this fort Term of two Years. and a Hilf, as hath been paid for in the next feven. Tears' before; to as never, in the King's Time, were

Treasurer's Time.'

To the last Article of the Charge, about the Bargain for the Land which was Sir Roger Dallifon's, the Lord Treasurer faith. 6 That he hath not made any unlawful Bargain for the Lands of the faid Dallifon; neither hath he paid for the faid Lands with making of Baronets, or freeing Copyholders, or any other Suit to the King, as by that Article is pretended ; but hath really paid for the fame in Money and Money's worth, out of his own Effate, to the full Value of the Lands and more: And, for more full Declaration of the Truth, he faith, That the faid Sir Roger Dallifon being indebted to the King in 13,062 1.24 s. 107 d. whereof Sir Thomas Mounfon, his Surety, was found Debtor 31001. the faid Dallifon's Lands were extended for 9962 1. 4 s. 10 d. thereof, and the faid Sir Thomas Mounfon's Lands for the faid 3100 l. and thefe for extended, together with the faid feveral Debts, were granted by his Majefty's Letters Patent the 20th of July, 18. Jacobi Regis, unto Francis Morrice, and other Officers and Creditors of the Ordnance; for 13,062 l. owing to them by his Majefty; with a special Command to the Lord Treafurer and Chancellor of the Exchequer, to make out fuch Writs and Process for the faid Debts as fhould be required; and, with a Covenant on the King's Part, that if, by reafon of Incumbrances, they could not receive the fame in convenient Time, then it should be paid unto them out of the Exchequer.' 1

90621. due Debt, long forborne; but that they An. 22. James I. must of Necessity have Recourse to his Majesty 1624. again for their better Satisfaction, according to his Majefty's Covenant contained in the faid Leafe, made unto them in that Behalf; and yet there was nothing allowed to relieve the poor diffreffed Lady of the faid Sir Roger Dallifon and her Son; whereupon the now Lord Treasurer, in July, 1621, being then but one of his Majefty's Commissioners for his Debts, was made acquainted by the faid Francis Morrice, and other the faid Officers and Creditors of the Ordnance, of their Intent and Purpole ; and, being willing to do his Majefty the beft Service he could therein, after divers Conferences, did come to an Agreement with them for their Interest in the faid Extents, and to make them Payment of the faid 13,062 l. for the fame, as follows, viz. 1062 l. before the last Day of November following 1621, and the reft by 500 l: every fix Months, at and after the Annunciation, 1623: After which Agreement made for the Extents, he not perceiving how he could make any Ufe thereof, unlefs he compounded also with fuch as had the Inheritance and other Estates in the faid Dallifon's Lands, did deal with fome of them for the fame; and then came to a fecond Agreement with the faid Francis Morrice, and the reft of the Officers and Creditors of the Ordnance, to convey to them an Eftate, which he then had for nine or ten Years to come, in the Petty Farms of Currants and Wines, of the yearly Value of 1400 l. (and worth 7000 l. and more, to be fold) which he did grant, and they did accept in full Satisfaction of the faid 13,062 l. 4 s. 101 d. and for their Interests in the faid Extents accordingly.'

⁶ Not long afterwards, the Lord Treasurer, being defirous to free himself of any further Trouble or Care, by reason of many other the Incumbrances which were upon the faid Lands, did, in or about November, 1621, agree with Sir Arthur Ingram, to deliver the faid Lands, with other Lands then of him the faid Lord Treasurer, in the County of M 3 York,

An. 22. James I. York, unto the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, in Exchange for other Lands of his, and to give unto him 9000 l. in Money, for the compounding and freeing the faid Eftate and Incumbrances, which were upon the faid Lands, late Dallifon's, and of a Leafe he had of one Anthony Meers, of other Lands intermixt with the faid Dallifon's Lands, efteem'd of the yearly Value of 400 1. per Annum; of which 90001. the faid Lord Treasurer, afterwards, in February and in March 1621, by the Confent of the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, did pay unto Sir Thomas Mounfon, Knt. for his Interest in Dallifon's Lands, the Sum of 3000 I. befides the freeing of his the faid Sir Thomas Mounfon's own Lands of the faid other Extent, for the faid 3100 l. and all the Refidue of the faid 9000 l. he the faid Lord Treasurer hath paid and fatisfied, as it hath been required by the faid Sir Arthur Ingram accordingly; which faid feveral Sums of 70001. and 90001. amounting together to 16,0001. are more than the faid Leafe and Lands are worth, at and from the Time of the faid Agreement for the Exchange, fo made between the faid Lord Treasurer and the faid Sir Arthur Ingram: And thereupon the Lady Dallifon, and Sir Thomas Dallifon, her Son, upon a Composition made with them by the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, did, in February 1621, make an Affignment of the faid Leafe, to certain Perfons named by the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, in truft for his Ufe; and, fince the faid Agreement and that Time, the Lord Treasurer had no more to do therein than as the Duty of the Place requires, and (as he hath been advised by his Majesty's learned Counfel) convenient and fit to be done on his Majefty's Behalf: And therefore, as touching the reft of the faid last Charge, That the Lord Treasurer, having agreed with Sir Themas Dallifon, and the Officers of the Ordnance, he, to gain, indirectly, and by oppreffive Means, an Effate which Sir Roger Dallifon had passed to Sir-Richard Smith and Sir John Dayy, did let on Foot an Outlawry of Sir Roger Dallifon's, and thereby disposses of Richard Smith and Sir John Davy, who had been in Poffeffion, by

by a Trial at Law, using the Power of his Place, An. 22. James L. and Countenance of the King's Service, to wreft-1624. them out of a Leafe and Eftate of great Value, the Lord Treasurer faith, The fame is wholly mistaken ; and that the Truth is, That the faid Sir Richard Smith, having a Conveyance of all the Freehold Lands which were the faid Sir Richard, Dallifon's. in Scotten, as a Mortgage for Payment of 13001. and the faid Sir John Davy having an Affignment of the faid Leafe, as a Mortgage for the Payment of 6001. by Year, for ten Years, upon a very hard Contract for Money, he the faid Sir Richard Smith, long before the faid Treasurer had any Thing to do with the faid Lands or Leafe, was difpoffeffed of Freehold Lands, by virtue of the faid Extent, for the King; and, after fuch Time as the faid Lord Treasurer had fo bargain'd and agreed with the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, and had left the faid whole Bufinels to him as aforefaid, it was found that the faid Sir Roger Dallifon ftood outlawed, after Judgment, at divers feveral Men's Suits, whereby the fame Leafe and Intereft was in his Majefty; by Means whereof fome Difference grow between the faid Sir Richard Smith, Sir John Davy, and the faid Sir Arthur Ingram, which the faid Treasurer used the beft Means he could to reconcile; and, to that end, endeavoured to have the fame arbitrated and ended by Sir Thomas Savage and Sir Nicholas Fortescue, Knights: But their Travel and Pains therein taking no Effect, after fome Suits in the Prerogative Court, the Exchequer, and Common Pleas, between Sir Richard Smith, Sir John Davy, and Sir Arthur Ingram, in Conclusion (by and with the Confent of all Parties) the faid Differences were heard and ended by Sir Henry Hobart, Knight and Baronet, Lord Chief Juffice of the Common Pleas, and by the reft of the Juffices of the fame Court; by whofe Mediation and Order, there is to be paid to the faid Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davy; in fatisfaction of their Eftates and Interest in the faid Lands and Leafe, over and befides other great Sums of Money by them formerly received, the Sum

An. 22. James I. Sum of 30001. And touching the Charge of the Contract, about paying the 8000 l. old Arrears, the Lord Treasurer faith, That all the 8000 l. was not old Arrears, as is pretended, for that 3,8001. thereof was then newly due by Quarter-Books, for certain Quarters ending at Midfummer, the next before the faid Year of our Lord 1621. And also faith, That his Promife therein was made before he became Lord Treasurer; and that Promise was but to do his Endeavour to get the 80001. paid; the fame being a just and due Debt owing to about 100 poor Families, whole prefling Neceffities would have forced him, after he came to the Place of Treafurer, to have given them Satisfaction, if he had made no fuch uncertain Promise before; and the faid Debt was paid at thirteen feveral Times, by feveral Portions, as Money could be beft fpared, between March 1621, and May 1623; and the King's Majefty was fo far from being prejudiced by the Lord Treasurer's Dealing in this Bargain, that his Majefty was thereby eafed from the repaying of the faid 13,0621. 4 s. 101 d. according to the faid Covenant : And, 'to make it appear that no Oppreffion or Power was used in this Purchase, for any private Benefit, or otherwife, nor that the fame was paid for by making of Baronets, and Suits to the King, as is pretended, the faid Treasurer will undertake, and freely offereth, that the Lands shall be conveyed again to whom this Honourable Houfe thall appoint, upon Payment of the faid 9000 1. and reaffuring of his faid Leafes and Interests in the faid Petty Farms, with Repayment of the Monies received upon the fame. It being alfo apparent by his Declaration, That if any fuch Suits, Oppreffions, or other hard Meafure, had been offered touching the faid Lands or Leafe, as is alledged in the faid Charge, the fame were no Way done by the Lord Treasurer, or by his Privity or Direction, or whilst the faid Lands remained in his Hands, which was not for above five Months; fo as the fame can in no Manner concern the Lord Treasurer, neither L. Winne a doth doth he know of any Thing done therein by any An. 22. James I. other, but what hath been just and lawful."

• And as to the Baronets, the fame nothing at all concerneth this Matter; but was a Grace of the King's Majefty, (upon the Suit of a Nobleman, who was affifted by the Lord Treafurer) which he was pleafed to confer upon Sir Thomas Mounfon; in regard of the Lofs of his Office of Hawkes; and the fame taking no Effect, his Majefty, upon the faid Sir Thomas Mounfon's late Petition, was pleafed, in lieu of the Baronets formerly intended him, to grant another Suit for the compounding with certain of the Copyholders in Wakefield, for the Value of 501. by the Year; whereof as yet he hath received no Fruit at all.

The HUMBLE ANSWER of the faid LORD TREASURER to the Addition of his CHARGE received from the Most Honourable Court of the Higher House of Parliament, on Thursday the 29th of April, 1624.

TO that Part which concerns him, as he was The Lord Trea-Mafter of the Great Wardrobe, the faid furer's Answer to Treasurer faith, 'That he held that Office for the the additional Articles of his three Years mentioned in the Charge, and that, Charge. within that Time, he did receive the ordinary Affiginment of 20,000 l. per Annum, or thereabouts; wherein, he conceives, he did no ill Service to the King when he did reduce the vaft Charge of that Office to 20,000 l. per Annum; and, by three Years Experience, to fhew his Majefty the Means how that 20,000 l. might be again reduced to 12,000 l. which, he conceives, is no Argument that he hath brought that Place to any Diforder or Confusion, as, in a Generality, is objected.'

• It is true that he made no Account, for his Time, neither for theWardrobe, nor for the Queen's Funeral; neither was there any Caufe why he fhould fo do, for that, by his Majefty's Contract with him for the Wardrobe, he was to difcharge the ordinary Charges thereof for 20,000 l. at his OWA

An. 22. James J. own Hazard ;- and, for the faid Funeral, having Warrant, by Privy Seals, to receive 20,0001. he received but the Sum of 13, 500 l. and yet faved fome Part thereof, belides what he yearly faved upon the ordinary Allowance of the Wardrobe: With all which Sayings he, from Time to Time, truly, and particularly, acquainted, his Majefty, not being willing to gain fo much by the fame as he found he did, without his Majefty's Privity and gracious Allowance; who, being rightly and truly informed of all the Particulars, did, upon the faid Lord Treasurer's yoluntary surrendering of that beneficial Contract for the Wardrobe, for Advancement of his Majefty's Service, having therein an Eftate for his Life, grant him a general Release and Pardon, by Indenture under the Great Seal of England, for all Matters concerning the faid Office of the Wardrobe and Funeral aforefaid."

He further faith, 'That, in the Time of his being in that Office, he paid divers extraordinary Sums, which were not within his Bargain, upon feveral Warrants and Privy Seals ; as, 3000 l. to the Earl of Garlifle, about 2000 1. for new furnishing Ely House for the Spanish Ambassador, above 1000 l. is on the for a new rich Barge: Cloth, and other extraordinary Disburfements of about 10001. more; for all which, amounting to 7000 l. or thereabouts, he never yet received, or demanded, any Allowance ; and, if any Man hath any Thing owing to him, in the Time that the faid Lord Treasurer was Officer. (as he is well affured there is none, except fome imall Remains upon the Foot of fome private Reckonings) the fame are no way chargeable upon the King; the faid Lord Treasurer being their proper Debtor, and bound, by that Indenture, to difcharge the fame, which he hath been ever ready, upon their Demand, to do accordingly ; it being acknowledged by the Creditors of the Wardrobe, that they have been better paid and used in his Time, than either before or fince. And, concerning the Charge, of his not duly ferving the Lord Chamberlain's Warrants for Supplies, it may well JWO. be very bank o 1 of the west end to missine be that fome few Parcels, in fome Warrants, which An. 22. James J. could not then be fuddenly provided, were, upon that Occafion, or by fome Fault or Negligence of his Servants, trufted in that Bufinefs, left unferved : But that neither hath been, is, or fhall be, any Lofs to the King ; for he acknowledgeth it to be juft and fit, that he fhould provide and furnifh the fame at his own Charges ; tho' the Neglect of that little is no great Matter, confidering he has disburfed fo much for his Majefty in Extraordinaries, as aforefaid, for which he never yet had any Allowance.

. To that Explanation of the former Charge, concerning his not repaying the Merchants the Imposts due unto them, upon the Exportation of Sugars formerly imported, according to his Majefty's Letters Patent, of the 5th of September, 1610, the Lord Treasurer faith, That the Usage in that Particular is fuch now, as hath been ever fince the Impost was first laid, without any Alteration by him, or any for him, in his Time ; neither did any Merchant bring his Certificate, and make his Demand for that Allowance, according to the Form prefcribed by these Letters Patent, as the Lord Treasurer is informed by those that farm the Imposts of him : And therefore there could be no Denial when there was no Demand made. And, befides, this is fo far from being a Matter of Benefit to the Lord Treasurer, that the Farmers of the Impost under him, (who should have that Profit, if there be any) have been, and are willing to give the Merchants Content in their Defire, if they will petition his Majefty, and fue out a Privy Seal to warrant it; without which, it hath ever been underftood, it could not be done in respect to the King's Interest therein, and in regard it never hath been allowed heretofore.'

• All which the faid Lord Treasurer doth averr tobe true in all Points, and shall be ready to juffify and maintain the fame, in fach Manner as this Honourable Court shall award.'

An. 22. James I. 1624.

After these Affairs were all read, the Lords received a Meffage from the Commons, along with five Bills, importing ' That they defired a Conference with their Lordfhips, on the Subject of two other Bills, then before them; and, at the fame Time, they prefented a Petition to the Houfe from divers Merchants, whole Names are thereunto fubicribed, containing a Complaint against the Lord Treasurer. for an Imposition on Hops; which Complaint they humbly referred unto their Lordships, and compared the fame with the Imposition laid on French Wines, even when their Merchandize was in the River of Thames: And affirmed that this had doubled the Oppression on the Merchants; for that the Archducheis, out of whole Country the Hops came, did thereupon lay new Impolitions upon the Manufactures of this Land. Laftly, The Commons conceive, that this new Imposition on Hops was laid, without any other Warrant than the Lord Treasurer's Letter.

This Petition from the Merchants was ordered to be read and was contained in these Words:

To the Honourable Affembly of the Commons House of Parliament,

The HUMBLE PETITION of fundry MERCHANTS whofe Names are here under fubfcribed,

The Merchants Petition against him. MOST humbly thew, That whereas, in the Reign of the late Queen Elizabeth, continually, and untill the fecond Year of the King's Majefly's Reign that now is, Hops were rated for the Cuftom thereof at Twelve pence per every Hundred Weight. Afterwards, in the Time when the Earl of Salifbury was Lord Treasurer, there was imposed on Hops Six-pence upon every Hundred, which was done by Confent of the Merchants; which faid Cuftom and Impost hath continued so untill October 1622.

At the Time, when your Petitioners, and others, had brought into this Kingdom, and into the River Thames, great Quantities of Hops, the now Lord Treasurer wrote his Letter to the Custom House, That

That no Entries of any Hops should be taken till farther An. 22. James Is Order from bim; fo that your Petitioners Hops lay 1624. long in Ships and Lighters, to their great Charges, and Damage of the faid Hops; which was done without your Petitioners Knowledge, they nothing mistrusting any fuch Composition; so that before your Petitioners could be suffered to take up their Goods, they were forced to pay ten Shillings for every Hundred of Hops, over and above the Duty and Impost aforefaid. -a. 7 '2

That divers Strangers of Flanders, and others, have received up their Goods upon Bonds, by reafon of the Archduches's Ambassadors; but divers of them have not yet paid their Monies, nor entered to pay, as they themselves have given forth in Speeches; notwithstanding the Petitioners, most of them, were forced to pay in their Monies, without any Favour, to their great and intolerable Lofs and Hinderance ; and others have entered into Bonds for the fame, which are yet in Force.

That, by reason of the said Impost, so exacted from the Petitioners, and others, as aforefaid, there was a great Impost laid on in Flanders, in the Archduches's Country, from whence the faid Hops came, upon Fuftians and other of our native Commodities; which have been to the great Lofs of the Petitioners, and to the great Hurt and Prejudice of the Common-Wealth in general, and of no Benefit to his Majesty for the present; for that, fince this great Imposition, there hath not come hither the twentieth Part of those Commodities as formerly.

The Petitioners humbly intreat the Honourable Affembly to take Confideration of the Premiss, and to be a Means unto his Majefty that the faid Petitioners may be repaid the faid Money fo exacted ; and that the Imposts upon the Hops as aforefaid, which are still continued, may be reduced unto the former Rate of Eighteen-pence upon every Hundred Weight of the faid Hops; whereby your Petitioners may be the better enabled to continue their Trade, which otherwife they must of Necessity defert. And further, that their Bonds, formerly entered into, may be re-delivered unto them to be cancelled." · May

An. 22. James I. May 3. After fome other Bufinels done by the 1624. Lords, another Petition from the Lord Treafurer was exhibited to that Houle, and read in these Words;

> To the Right Honourable Affembly of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in the Higher House of Parliament.

The Lord Treafurer's Petition for Copies of the Depositions a- concerning the rest of his Charge, as he humbly defires gaint him. his Witnessen may be examined upon; as well those formerly delivered to the most Honourable House, as those whose Names he now humbly presenteth to that Purpose hereunder written.

And fince your Lordships have appointed Friday the 7th, peremptorily, for the Hearing of his Cause, his most humble Suit is, To know the Pleasure of this most Honourable House, concerning the Copies of the Depositions, if he may receive them in some convenient Time before, whereby to prepare himself for his just Defence against the Day appointed.

MIDDLESEX.

The Names of the Witneffes annexed, and the Interrogatories being alfo read, it was ordered. That the Lord Treafurer fhould have Copies of all Depolitions, taken on his Part, two Days before the Hearing. The Lord Keeper moved the Houfe ' To confider of the Lord Treafurer's former Petition for Copies of the Depolitions concerning him, which were denied becaufe they were unfeatonably prayed, his own Witneffes not being then examined; and whether their Lordfhips will not now think it fit that the Lord Treafurer fhall have Copies of all Depolitions before his final Anfwer; and the rather, becaufe this may prove a leading Cafe to Pofterity.

The Lords referred the Confideration thereof unto the Lords Committees for Privileges, \mathfrak{Gr}_{c} , who being withdrawn upon it, and returned, they gave in their Anfwer, as fit to be entered for an Order.

His MAJESTY'S SPEECH at Whitehall, to the Upper House of Parliament, May 5. 1624, concerning the LORD TREASURER.

James I. your felves in this great Bufinefs; and the Caufe hereof is this, because I am bound in Conscience to be careful of your Carriage herein; for, if your Judgments (hould fall contrary to my Approbation, I protest to God it would be a great Mifery to me, and a greater Grief unto your Hearts.

Before the last Parliament, I never faw any Precedent of this Nature : In the last, against another great Officer of mine there needed no Admonition from me, because ye had Reum Confitentem ; in this the Party Rands upon his Justification; and therefore ye have more Need to take and examine it well. There is no Doubt at all of your doing Justice; you are most of you nobly born, the rest are noble by their Places ; you are the most honourable fury of England; nor do I intend further to instruct you, than to give your Eyes, many Eyes fee more than one, fome Light into this Matter. No King is the worfe for the Advice of his Council, nor shall you be for receiving my Advice and Instruction.

In all Matters of Tryal where are Denials, two Things are specially to be confidered, the Verity of the Fact and Greatness of the Guilt.

For the first, You cannot be too diligent in the Search of the Verity of the Fast; for Satius eft Reum dimittere quam Innocentem damnare.

For the fecond; You are to confider duly the Quality of the Offence; for, if your Punishment be far inferior to the Crime, it is an Invitation to commit new Offences. And, if it be over and above the Offence, it is plain Injustice and Tyranny ? Therefore your Punishment must be ever bounded in Measure and Moderation, according to the Quality of the Offence. You will do, I am fure, what a Jury doth, for you have taken a greater Oath than they; you have fworn, upon your Honcur, to me; by your Confcience, towards God.

And here I thall give a Touch of two Things ; first, I shall speak of the Person of the Man, and then of my Opinion of the Courfe which you are to hold in your Judicature at this Time. So Levels Fint

For the Perfon of the Man; the first Acquaintance An. 22. James 1. that I had with him was by the Lord of Northampton, (who is with God) who often brought him unto me a private Man, before he was fo much as my Servanit. He then made fo many Projects for my Profit, that Buckingham fell in Liking with him, after the Earl of Northampton's Death, and brought him into my Service. For I profess it here openly, and I am glad he is not by to hear me, That, befides him, I never faw young Courtier that was for careful for the King's Profit, without any Respect, as Buckingham was. He found this Man fo fludious for my Profits, that he back'd him against great Personages and Mean, without Sparing any Man. Buckingham laid the Ground and bare the Envy ; he took the laborious and ministerial Part upon him, and thus he came up to his Preferment.

I was deceived if he was not a good Officer; he was an Infrument, under Buckingham, for Reformation of the Houshold, the Navy and the Exchequer; Buckingham fetting him on; and taking upon himfelf the Envy of all the Officers. And he himself protested many a Time to me, That he had not been able to do me any Service, in the ministerial Part, if Buckingham had not back'd him in it. Hereupon I thought him the fittest Man for this Place ; he had seen before the Abuses in the Exchequer, in the Navy, and in a thousand other Particulars.

I must therefore put you in mind of one Thing, and Justice forceth me fo to do: He cannot but have a many Enemies; all Treasurers, if they do good Service to their Masters, must be generally hated, as Monf. Rofney was in France. And a Treasurer cannot oblige me more, than when I find Suitors beg from me, and pray me not to fend my Reference to the Treasurer, because he gives them no good Answer.

Two Kinds of People are continually hated in Court, Treasurers and Ushers; because this latter must of Necessity put Difgraces upon Men, and the Treasurers must keep the King from Importunity of many Suitors: I pray judge not by the Affections of the People, nor by the Hatred of the People; you must avoid both VoL. VI. thefe

An. 22. James 1. thefe; and therefore Judges of old were painted 1624. blind.

The second Thing I recommend to your Consideration is, That you look upon a found Trial, so that the Offence be clear; and, in the next Place, when you find a Cause of Punishment, let it be within and not without the Limits of his Desert.

Now I. Shall recommend to you fome Generals; not for his Respect or Particular, but my own, my Son's and Posterity's, and your own, my Lords, whose Part God knows when it may fall unto. Let no Man's particular Ends bring forth a Precedent, that may be prejudicial to you all and your Heirs after you; Precedents there are none of many Years, before this and the last Sessions. The Informers are the Lower House, and the Upper House are the Judges. If the Accusation come in by the Party wronged, then you have a fair Entrance for Justice; if by Men that fearch and hunt after other Men's Lives, beware of it, it is dangerous; it may be your own Cafe another Time. No Man can fland upright before God and Man, if every Act of his should be enquired after and hunted out by every Man, though it concerns bim not - -1

The main Ground in an Information is this. The Party complaining fould fay, This Wrong he bath, done me; if he hath corrupted Judicature in Judgment, or taken a Bribe to the Hurt of the Innocent; if, in Extortion, he hath wrested, by Violence, from the Party; here is a just Ground for an Accusation. But for every buly Fellow to turn Inquisitor is a Thing infufferable; bow far it falls thus, in this Particular, I know not. Bribery, as I would define it, is where a Judge receives a Reward against the Innocent; Extortion is done, when Money is wrung from the Subject by the Greatness of a Man's Power, and by the Denial of Justice; Misdemeanor is, when a Man abuleth his Place, and oppresseth the poor Subjests. I have difcuffed this Point, and I do not doubt but, when he comes before you, you will bear him with Tesper and Patience.

Now, my Lords, I fpeak for Justice; if this An. 22. James 1. Party bave done so, after such an Example shewed the last Session, his Fault is double; for he came in upon a Reformation, and he discovered the Corruptions of others. This I would say to you, if I was to die this Hour: Errors by mistaking, God forbid that you should be rigorous in censuring them; but Errors that are wilful, spare them not.

Some curious Men may fay, peradventure, he might, in fome Points, have done better; but this is not criminal in him: But if, by Deceit and Cozenage, by helping himfelf, he hath hindered my Eftate, he is worfe than a Devil. Treasurers cannot be barred from sueing, and the King's Liberality no Man can controul. If he hath helped himself, with the King's Lofs, 1 speak not for him.

Lastly, there are divers Things laid to his Charge, which were done with my Knowledge and Approbation; let him bear no Charge for that, for that is mine, and I must bear it. For if you question him for any such Thing, you punish me; if any Thing touches upon him in that Kind, either meddle not with it, or stay and know the Verity from me. I love my Servants, God is my Witness, but it is only for Virtue's Sake; and he is an unhappy Master that doth not love a faithful Servant. But, if there appear in any of them Falshood and Treachery, and Deceit under Trust, my Love is gone. If, of an Angel, he become a Devil, I will never excuse him: I will never maintain any Man in a bad Cause.

The Report of the King's Speech being made, which feems to ferve as an Introduction to the Trial, the Lord Keeper obferved further, 'That his Majefty faid, he did not deliver this Speech out of any Sufpicion of their Lordfhips, but only in Difcharge of his Duty and Confcience.' Which the House ordered to be entered.

The Lord Treasurer being to appear this Day at the Bar, it was first agreed, That when his Lordship came he should kneel. And being brought to the Bar, by the Gentleman Usher, not having his

THE Commons of England, being the general Inquifitors of the Sores and Grievances of the Kingdom, have prefented their Complaint againft this great Lord and Officer; whereof, and of other Mildemeanors, their Lordfhips have before taken Cognizance. That he is to charge him, the Lord Treafurer, with Violation and Breach of Truft, in defrauding the King who trufted him; and with Bribery and Oppreffion.

' That he would begin with his Lordship's Mifdemeanors in the Office of the Wardrobe; and shew, That, heretofore, that Office being very expensive to his Majefty, by reason of the Charge and Provision of the King's Majefty, for the Queen, for Prince Henry, the Queen of Bohemia, and the Prince's Highness that now is, he, the faid Lord Treasurer, inform'd his Majefty of the Greatness of his Charge, and that he would fave his Majefty a great Part thereof; whereupon he procured the Office to himself; but he stood charged with nothing, fave the ordinary Provision for his Majefty.'

. Dec. 27. Anno 18. · The Clerk should have furveyed the Parcels ; but could not, thro' my Lords Default; neither is there any Account made as ought to have been : And all this is contrary to the Patent, to the Prejudice of the King, and of the Officers and Workmen in the Wardrobe. And, to the end his Proceedings in that Office might not be difcovered, this enfued further upon it, That the Warrants were-ferved fhort, and many not ferved at all; those that were ferved, were base and ill, stuffed with great Delay and long Suit; and yet the Suitors for the fame were flighted by my Lord and his Officers.'

for all he hath received, without any Account, and An. 22. James I. obtained a Leafe of the Sugars, for a Recompence 1624. of his Surrender of that Office.

Mr Sergeant Crew having thus far opened the Charge; the Clerk, by his Direction, read the Depofitions of Witnefles taken here to prove the fame, viz.

The Examination of Sir Bevis Thelwal, Knt. taken the 26th of April, 1624.

He deposeth to the first Question, ' What Money Depositions and " was affured for Provisions for the King's Service Examinations of in the Wardrobe, ordinary and extraordinary, du-Witneffes there-' ring the Time the Lord Treasurer was Master • there ? I fay, that I cannot certainly inform your · Lordships; for that the Warrants for the Empti-' ons, that were usually entered in the Clerk of the • Wardrobe's Book, were not brought in at all by the · faid Mafter of the Wardrobe, during the Time of • my Service in the faid Office, as fhould have been. 'For the fecond Part of the Charge, Whether' any Thing were put upon the Extraordinary, " which was heretofore used to be furnished upon • the Ordinary? I cannot tell; for that there was · no Account made by the faid Mafter of the Ward-" robe, (which fhould have been done) tho' he was • very often folicited by me fo to do, and feemed ' not to believe me, that he, by the Courfe of his · Office, ought fo to do; for that, as he faid, he · had agreed with the King's Majefty, at a certain • Rate, to furnish the Wardrobe. · For comparing the Expences of the faid Lord · Treasurer, for Ordinary and Extraordinary, with ' the King only, with the Expences of former' • Times, I cannot make any direct Anfwer; for-• that the faid Master made no Account as he ought ' to have done. 7 than in former Times, I cannot certainly inform your Lordfhips.

To certify the Charge of the Funeral of Queen Anne, I cannot inform your Lordfhips thereof; for that it was before my Time, and there was no Account made thereof, nor Entry thereof, as heretofore was wont to be.

To certify whether all the Provisions of the Wardrobe, during all the Time the Lord Treafurer was Mafter thereof, are paid, I heard that divers of the Creditors are not paid; but how much is behind will best appear by the Examinations of the Creditors.
For the Abuse of the Wardrobe, committed during the Time of the Lord Treasurer being Master there, I fay, That he hath altered the Frame and Course of that Office, to the Prejudice of the King's Majefty, and the Artificers and Creditors that furnished the faid Wardrobe; and, as I conceived, to the end his Proceedings in the faid Office might not be discovered.

The Certificate, upon Oath, of Sir FRANCISAD. 22. James I. GOFTON, Knt. one of his Majefly's Auditors. 1624.

May it please your Honourable Lordships,

There hath been no Accounts made, for the Office of the Mafter of the Great Wardrobe, during the Time the Right Honourable the Earl of Middlefex was Mafter of the faid Wardrobe; which, as I conceive, was for the three whole
Years, endedat Michaelmas, 1621, Anno 19. Jac.
Regis; for which Office I am, by his Majefty's
Letters Patent, one of the Auditors.

'The Sergeant having ended, the Lord Keeper moved the Houfe, That the Lord Treafurer might answer his particular Charge touching the Wardrobe. His Lordship thereupon demanded Ink and Paper, and had it.'

Then the Lord Treasurer answered, That his The Lord Treas-Majesty used his Service in many Particulars touch-surer's Answer ing his Estate; as, in the Navy, the Houssold, and as to the Ward-Wardrobe.

That he found the Expenses of the Wardrobe of a vaft Sum; every one made what Bills they would, and did fet what Prices they would.

An. 22. James I. 1624:

-I. F. 3

When he was Master of that Office, he fent for the Artificers, and told them. That he would not look upon what was past; but that, hereafter, the Prices (hould be reafonable, and the King's Money hould be ready, and they duly paid. Our is much sond i'

That there were many Fees to be quarterly paid in the Wardrobe; all which were duly paid. SUR DERIA

As for Canning and Pulford, he gave them 2's. in the Pound more than another would have fold for : He bought little of those of the Wardrobe, but chiefly much of the Merchants; and had a good Merchants Shop in the Wardrobe, and bought of the best.

That Pulford complains not of a hard Price, but that he had not the antient Price.

As touching the not ferving of divers Warrants. That his Business being many, he referred those to his. Servant Colebeck: That not above the Value of 7'or 800 l. remained unferved ; whereas he hath laid out 6 or 7000 l. upon the Extraordinaries of that Office; as, for furnishing Ely House for the Spanifh Ambaffador, a rich Barge-Cloth for the King, and many other Things; and that he gave the Earl of Carlifle, his Predeceffor in that Office, 30001.

As touching the Business of the Stuff Jerved in, He defired they might be compared with those formerly ferved in; and affirmed they were much better. And whereas fome, complain they were flighted, when they were Suitors for the Warrants to be ferved, his Lordship desired they might be examined, whether they were flighted by Him or no.

As touching the Account, bis Lordship answered, That, by the Patent, which was read, he was to account; but that he had another Patent, if he be not deceived, without Account ; which his Lord hip delivered : And the Clerk' read the fame; and alfo his Majesty's Explanation upon the Lease of Sugars, granted to the Lord Treajurer, upon his Surrender of the Wardrobe."

"Then Mr. Sergeant Crew observed to the Lords, out of both those, That his Lordship was to account for the ordinary Disburfements of the Wardrobe.' Frishiv.

The

The Lord Treasurer answered, That he concei An. 22. James I, wed he was not to account: That he first reduced that Office from the wast Charge he told the King of; and whereas he was allowed 20,000 l. per Annum for the fame, he told the Duke of Buckingham, two Years fince, that he got too much thereby; and that it might be defrayed for 12,000 l. per Annum; and that he, having reduced that Office from 30, nay 40,000 l. per Annum, unto 12,000 l. is a good Account.

'Hereupon divers Lords prefently affirmed, That the Duke of Buckingham had acknowledged, that the Lord Treasurer, when he was to furrender the Wardrobe to the Earl of Denbigb, did acquaint his Grace with the Greatness of Gans in that Office; but, to the end he might have a great Recompence, first he named 40001. per Annum, and afterwards 80001. and that this drew on the Lease of Sugars to his Lordship.'

⁶ Then Mr. Sergeant Crew observed, That the Charge against the Lord Treasurer is upon Proof; his Lordship's Answer upon Averrment; which he humbly referred to their Lordship's Confideration. And thus ended the Charge touching the Wardrobe.'

· And then the Lord Treasurer was withdrawn.

• The Lord Keeper removed to the Earls Bench to fatisfy the Houfe touching the Lord Treasurer's Speech, That the Duke of Buckingham knew of his Gains in the Wardrobe; and told their Lordfhips, That he well remembers, that when the Duke of Buckingham moved his Majefty to place Sir Lionel Granfield Treasurer, (which he defired, tho' afterwards he feemed unwilling) that then the King required the Surrender of the Wardrobe to the Earl of Denbigh. That when the Lord Treasurer heard of it, he magnified the Profits of the Place; first to the Duke, that it was 4000 l. per Annum; fecondly to the King, that it was worth 6 or 7000 l. per Annum; whereby he got the Leafe of Sugars at 4000 l. per Annum lefs than they are worth ; and his Succeffor, the Earl of Denbigh, had 4000 l. per Annum less than his Lordship for Disbursen ments i.l

That the Duke being moved at this, the Lord Treasurer then told his Grace, that his Gains in that Office had been 80001. per Annum; nay, more than he could well tell; and, till then, his Grace knew not of the great Gains of that Office; and if his Grace, who hath been ever careful for the King's Profit, had known of it fooner, the Lord Treafurer had not held that Place fo long; for his Grace is Amicus usque ad Aras."

. Then it was ordered, That the Lord Treafurer be warn'd to be here again, at Two in the Afternoon, at the Bar.'

" The King's Attorney being commanded to open the fecond Charge against the Lord Treafurer, his Lordship faid, He was unprovided in the Morning for the Wardrobe ; and befought their Lordships to take into their Consideration, that he is denied Counfel to speak for him, being charged with great Matters, for it may be their own Cafe; and he hath Precedents, as he is informed, that he might have Counfel allowed him : That, however, he would speak out of his own Strength; but defired their Lordships, that, if he forgot any Thing, no Advantage be taken against him; unto which their Lordships agreed."

His Lordship's further Requests;

Two of which are refuled by the Lords.

The Lord Treasurer made two other Requests unto their Lordships; the one, For that his Witneffes have not fully unfwered touching the Wardrobe, that he might have a Re-examination upon the same Interrogatories. This the House denied, as not ufual to be granted in other Courts, after Publication, for that it might produce Perjury. His Lordthip's other Request was, That he might produce bis, Proofs, or Records, that the Workmen of the Wardrobe were paid: Which was also denied; for that the Non-payment of the Workmen is but an Accident to his Charge.'

• Then

Then Mr. Attorney was willed to proceed :' ' And he proceeded in this Manner, viz.

An. 22. James I. 1624.

⁶ The fecond Charge wherewith the Lord Treafurer is charged, is for three feveral Corruptions; two of them difguifed under the Shadow and Pretext of a Bargain; and the third of a New-Year's Gift.'

Concerning the two former.

. It cannot be denied, That, February 6. Anno Mr. Attorney 17. Jacobi, his Majefty did leafe unto Sir Nicholas proceeds on the Salter, and others, the Cuftoms and Impofts of Charge of Bribe-French and Rhenifb Wines, from Michaelmas, 1622, for nine Years and an half; and did covenant with the Leffees not to lett any new Imposition upon the Wines, during the Continuance of that Leafe, without the Affent of the Leffees. And, January, Anno 19. Jacobi, the King made a Leafe unto Sir John Wolftenholme, and others, for divers Years, of the Great Cuftoms; in which Leafe there was a Covenant, on the Part of the Farmers, that they should put in Security for the Payment of their Rents; and, for Performance of, this Covenant, they were to have the Allowance and Warrant of the Lord Treasurer, without which the King's Remembrancer would not take their Bonds. January 14. Anno 19. Jacobi, a new Impost of 31. per Tun, was fet upon the Wines; and the fame being done without the Confent of the Farmers, and to their great Damage, they were to expect Recompence for the fame upon their Covenant. Upon thefe two Occasions, the Farmers of the feveral Farms were neceffarily occasioned to become Suitors to the Lord Treasurer; the one for Recompence and Reparation of their Lois, the other for Allowance of their Security, and his Warrant to accept it.'

• The Farmers of the Wines began their Suit to the Lord Treasurer about January or February, Anno 19. Jacobi, and continued it with much Instance untill December, Anno 20. Jacobi, ten or eleven Months together without Success; whereupon they found Means to have Access to the King him-

An. 22. James I. himfelf, and represented their Grief by an humble 1624. Petition; which his Majefty anfwered most gracioufly, and gave ftrait Charge to the Lord Treafurer to give them a fpeedy Difpatch, and conclude with them upon fuch a Recompence, as in Honour and Juffice was fit. And thereupon, December 31, 1622; the Lord Treasurer did agree with them, that they (hould be allowed 95001. to be defalked in nine Years and a Half out of their Rent, after the Rate of 1000 1. per Annum. Thisbeing agreed on, they were to have his Lordship's Warrant to the King's Attorney, for drawing a Book according to the Agreement; which Warrant was speedily prepared and drawn by his Lordship's Secretary; but delayed from December 31. Anno 20. Jac. un-till June 24. Anno 21. Jac. And the Farmers of the Great Cuftoms having divided the Farms into 32 Parts, every of which Part was to give his Malefty Security of 1500 l. for Payment of their Rent, they prefented their Security to the Lord Treafurer, who allowed and gave Warrant to the King's Remembrancer to receive it; but the Parties unto whom five of these 32 Parts were allotted, falling off and relinquishing their Parts, the four Patentees of the Farm refolved to refume those Parts to themfelves; and thereupon tendered the Lord Treafurer their own Security for those five Parts; which he agreed to accept, yet protracted them till June, Anno 21. Jacobi.'

The Bufiner's of both Farms thus delayed, and it being conceived that Money was expected, the Farmers of the Wines refolved to prefent the Lord Treafurer with 500 l. and they of the Great Farm refolved of the like Sum; and Mr. Abrabam Jacob being a Partner in either Farm, was entrufted feverally by the Farmers of each Farm, viz. 500 l. a-piece, to be prefented to the Lord Treafurer ; which he paid, in one entire Sum of 1000 l. to Mr. Catchmay, the Lord Treafurer's Steward, June 27. Anno 21. Jacobi, by the Lord Treafurer's Appointment; and thereupon the Bufiner's of both Farms

Farms had a Difpatch by the Lord Treasurer's An. 22. James I. Means.' A solid set of miny birsh and the set of the set of

⁶ But to palliate and difguife thefe two corrupt Gifts, the Lord Treafurer then pretended to have four Parts of the Great Farm divided into 32 Parts; and, in his Anfwer touching thefe Corruptions, juftifieth the taking of 1000 l. by way of Bargain for those four Parts from the Farmers of the Great Cuftoms: This Anfwer being disproved, and it being made plain that he had no Part in that Farm, it must needs follow that the Money was taken corruptly, for the Dispatch of the Farmers Buliness; and, for Manifestation hereof, it ftands proved,

* That, upon the Treaty of the Bargain for the Great Farm, the Lord Treafurer propounded to the Farmers to have fome Parts in the Farm, not for his own Benefit; but to difpole of amongft his Friends; but this was rather a Proposition than any fettled Refolution or Conclusion : For the Farmers doubting, left, by this Pretence, fome Partners might be put on them with whom they were unwilling to join, defired the Lord Treafurer, that they might make Choice of their own Partners, and, if their Farms prospered, they would be thankful unto his Lordfhip.

• This Thankfulnels was afterwards performed on their Part, for they railed his ufual New-Year's. Gift from 1000 Marks to 1000!. And, upon this Requeft of the Merchants, the Lord Treasurer waved his Proposition of having the Disposal of any. Parts in the Earm; which appeareth not only by the plain and express Testimony of many Witness, but by these Proofs following, viz.

1. The Leafe of the Great Farm bears Date, Jan. 1. Anno 19. Jac. between which Time and April 29. Anno 20. Jac. the Farmers divided the whole Farm into 32 Parts, allowing to each Man his Part, and reduced the fame into Writing, exprefing therein the Sum of the Security which every Man was to give, without mentioning therein any Parts referved to the Lord Treafurer, or his Friends; and this Writing, being tendered to the Lord Treafurer,

An. 22. James I. furer, April 29, 1622, was by him allowed, and 1624. Warrant fign'd by him to the King's Remembrancer to take Security accordingly.

2. When the Partners, to whom five of thefe-Parts were allotted, fell off, and would not give Security, the Patentees refolving to take those Parts to themfelves, tendered their own Security to the Lord Treasurer, and he agreed to accept it; and, tho' he protracted it long, yet he did not, in that long Time of Delay, challenge any Parts untill about June, 1623.

3. The Farmers refting fecure about that Propolition, did, after the 29th of April, 1622, divide the whole Farm by Indentures, allotting to each Man his due Part; without referving any for the Lord Treasurer.

4. 'At Christmas, 1622,' the first Year of the Farm ended; and this Year's Profit was, by Account, in April 1623, divided among the Partners, referving no Share to the Lord Treasurer.'

5. 'But the Truth is, That all this Time the Lord Treasurer rested quiet, and neither did nor would challenge any Parts; the Farm being of that small Expectation of Benefit, as five Partners gave over their Parts, rather than they would give Security; but, about June 1623, the Farm being grown more hopeful by the Return of some East India Ships, the Lord Treasurer having in his Hands the Bussieness of both Farms, which he had to long delayed, meaning to make this a Veil and Cover for taking those corrupt Gifts, then pretended to have four 32 Parts, which he had waved to long before.'

6. The Lord Treasurer appointing Catchmay, his Servant, to receive the 1000 l. of Jacob, which was received the 27th of June, 1623, forbad him to give any Acquittance for the Money, but to leave that to himfelf and Jacob; which, had it been paid upon a plain Bargain, he never would have done.

7. 'This Money was enter'd into the Accounts and Books of the faid Farms; for, in the Journal Books of the Petty Farms, July 31, 1623,

there is 500 l. enter'd to be paid and prefented to An. 22. James I. the Lord Treasurer, by the Hands of Mr. Jacob, for 1624. a Gratification of his Favour in accommodating an Allowance of 1000 l. per Annum to be abated of their Rent for the Time to come; and the like Entry was made in the Ledger of the fame Farm. And, December 20, 1623, upon the general Account of that Farm, this 5001. is put to Account, as a Gratuity given to the Lord Treafurer, and is borne rateably by all the Partners of the Farm, of which Account many Copies were given out to the Partners; and, for the other 500 l. there is extant a Warrant, dated July 29, 1623, fubscribed by Sir John Wolstenholme and Henry Garraway, two of the Farmers of the Great Farm, directed to Williams, the Cashier of that Farm, to pay to Mr. Jacob 500 l. given by him, by Order of the Farmers, to the Lord Treasurer, for a Gratuity, and to put it to the Account of the Farm : which was done accordingly : And these Accounts ftood in this Manner till February last, after the Parliament was fummoned; and then the Lord Treasurer caused Jacob to procure the 500 l. that was fet upon the Petty Farms, to be altered from thence, and to be charged upon the Farmers of the Great Farm; and Satisfaction to be given to the Partners of the Petty Farms of their proportionable Parts they were charged with for that 500 l. upon the aforefaid Account of the 20th of December; and as many as could of the difperfed Copies of that Account to be gotten in. He also procures Facob to write a Letter to his Lordship, and to antedate the fame in June before; by which Jacob did intimate, that the 1000 l. was given his Lordthip for four 32 Parts of the Great Farm; and himself made an Acquittance to Jacob with the like Antedate, acknowledging that 1000 l. to be be received for those four Parts; which indirect Courfes of changing the Accounts, and antedating the faid Acquittance and Letter, manifesteth that the former Proceedings were not fincere, but were to be converted and blanched with these Devices." · Touch-

Touching the faid Corruption, fhadowed un-An. 22. James I. 1624. der pretext of a New-Year's Gift, it ftands proved, That, at Christmas last, 1623, the Farmers of the Petty Cuftoms prefented the Lord Treasurer with a Tun of Wine, intending to have added to it a Pipe of Canary Wine, or the best Sack; but the Lord Treasurer milliking the Smalness of their Prefent, urged them to a further Gratuity in Money, and thereby obtained from them, befides the Wine, 100 l. in Money.' 1 . Duodecimo Januarij, Anno 19 Jacobi.

. The Lord Treasurer procures George Herriot to furrender that Leafe; and, the next Day, takes a Leafe thereof from the King, unto Nicholas Harman and Themas Gatchmay, (two of his Lordships Servants) unto his own Use, at 2000 l. Rent per Annum, and lets the fame unto the Farmers at 60001. per Annum: And, to effect this Surrender, gives Order, in a Time of Scarcity of Money, for the Payment of 14,8651. due unto the faid Herriot for Jewels, which was paid, between the 15th of December, 1621, and the 10th of January following, in this Manner, viz. 7000 l. odd Money, out of the Arreats of the faid George Herriot's Rents, and and 7000 l. odd Money, out of the Tobacco Farm, An. 22. James I. by way of Anticipation.' 1624:

⁶ The Crime objected againft the Lord Treafurer herein is this: Had Herriot's Leafe continued, Herriot's Debt had been paid out of his Rent; and the faid Treafurer has not only caufed the faid Leafe to be furrendered, and procured a new Leafe thereof unto his Servants, to his own Ufe, at a far lefs Rent; but hath laid 7000 l. of that Debt upon the Farm of Tobacco: And this he hath done in a Time of Scarcity of Money, even then when he caufed the Impofitions to be laid on the Wines for a Supply for the Palatinate: And further, he hath paid the fmaller Rent of 2000 l. per Annum, very flowly unto the King; an Arrear of 3000 l. thefeof being paid fince the 31ft of December laft, after the Summons of this Parliament.'

⁶ And whereas, for the Advancement of Trade, the Merchants, upon the Exportation of their Merchandizes, are repaid their Cuftom, which they formerly paid upon the Importation: This is denied upon the Exportation of Sugars, to the Damage of the Merchants, and for the Lord Treafurer's private Gain.⁷

* Then the Clerk read the Proofs, viz.

An. 22. James I. The Examination of Sir JOHN WOLSTENHOLME. Knight, ABRAHAM JACOB, and HENRY GAR-1624. RAWAY, taken the 27th of April, 1624.

> The faid Examinants fay, ' That they and Mr. · Morrice Abbot, and Mr. Dawes, are Farmers to the Lord Treasurer of the Farm of Sugars, at the Rent of 6000 1. per Annum. And fay, There ' is not any Allowance made to the Merchant, ' upon the Exportation of Sugars, of the Impost ' which the Merchant paid upon the Importation of the fame, according as in the Cafe of other "Merchandize. And they fay, That paying fo ' great a Rent, they may not allow the Impost to the Merchant, unless they have their Rent abated, or that his Majefty will bear the Burthen and " Charge of that Allowance." And fay, That they · have moved the Lord Treasurer, that an Allowance be made to the Merchant for the Advance-' ment of Trade; and his Lordfhip took the fame · into Confideration, but hath not given Direction " therein." And further fay, That fuch as farmed the Sugars before these Examinants, did not give that Allowance; and therefore thefe Examinants, 6 ' following the fame Courfes, did not yield any · Allowance, more than had been before their · Time.

* As to this Part of the Charge the Lord Trea- An. 22. James I. furer confeffed, That the Leafe to Herriot was at the Rent of 5666 l. 13 s. 4 d. and the Leafe to his own Ufe, (upon the Surrender) at 2000 l. Rent; The Lord Treaand that he hath let the fame at 6000 l. per Annum; furer's Defence. and affirmed, That his Majesty was first acquainted with it, and well allowed thereof.

⁶ Hereupon the Lord Keeper fignified to the Houfe, that the King had commanded him to tell their Lordfhips, That his Majefty underftood that the Lord Treasurer fhould gain by his Lease 4000 l. per Annum.----So there was no further Proceeding in that Point of the Charge.'

• The Lord Treasurer also confessed, That he paid Herriot 14,000 l. odd Money; but affirmed, That it was a just Debt, and that Herriot had a Power to pay himself, by a Privy Seal, out of his Rent.

• As touching the Impost not return'd upon the Exportation of Sugars, his Lordship denied, That it was ever demanded of him; and affirm'd, That if it he due, then the Farmers are tied by his Lease tothem to repay it; but if they be not so tied, that then he will pay it all, both for the Time past and to come. And thus ended the Charge for the Sugars.

The Charge as to Groceries.

GROCERY.

' Then Mr. Sergeant Crew open'd the Charge against the Lord Treasurer, touching his Lordship's Warrants to levy Compositions for Purveyance of Grocery in the Out-Ports, after this Manner, viz.

5 That the City of London did compound with the King for Grocery : But the Out-Ports refused, especially Bristol, and yielded to Purveyance in Kind; and that Briftol had an Order for this in the Exchequer, in the Time of Robert Earl of Salisbury, late Lord Treasurer : Yet, notwithstanding this, the Lord Treasurer directed his Warrants' to levy this Composition; and, altho' it was not due to the King, nor any fuch Composition entered into the Compting-Houfe, his Lordship commanded their Goods, then in the Ports, to be flayed, and not entered, till it was paid, or Bonds given for it; and thereby constrained fome Ports to pay it, and the Merchants of Briftol, who denied it, to attend his Lordship ten Weeks together, to be discharged; and yet Bonds were exacted from the Merchants of Briftol for the Payment thereof, after the Lord Treasurer was acquainted with the faid Order in the Exchequer, even till the Summons of Parliament; for which Mr. Sergeant Crew charged the Lord Treasurer with Oppreffion and Extortion, contrary to his Lordship's Oath, To do Right to the Poor and Rich in fuch Things as concern his Office.'

. Then the Clerk read the Proofs, viz.

The Examination of JOHN GUY and JOHN BAR-KER, taken the 21 A of April, 1624.

The faid Examinants fay, ' That in the Time f of the Lord Treafurer Salisbury, a Reference was f made by his Lordfhip to the Lord Chief Baron, and Baron Snigg, touching a Composition then demanded of the Merchants of Briflol, for Puryeyance for Wines and Grocery; and, upon deliberate liberate Hearing, the Officers of the Houshold An. 22. James I. being prefent, it was then refolved, That they 1624. " fhould not be prefied to those Compositions, but ' should submit to Purveyance when his Majesty ' or the Queen came within twenty Miles of that · City; and accordingly, at Queen Anne's being ' at the Bath, they did fubmit to Purveyance, to the Charge of 8001. yet, in November was Twelve-. Months, upon a Warrant from the Lord Trea-' furer, they were preffed to pay Composition for Grocery, after the Rate as was paid at London; and were forced to enter Bonds for Payment or discharging by a Day: That hereupon this Examinant, John Guy, attended the Lord Treasurer to be freed, and fhewed him the Proceedings before mentioned; but could get no other Re-· lief but a Letter, of which he now delivered a · Copy to the Lords Committees, which Copy this Examinant had from his Lordfhip's Secretary; ever fince which Time the Officers have preffed the Merchants to enter Bonds, till about the Beginning of the Parliament : But, fince that Time, the Officers have accepted the Merchants Words. And faith, That the Copy of the Lord Treafu-" rer's Warrant, or Letter, dated the 20th of No-· vember, 1622, is a true Copy of the Letter " which came to the Port of Briftol, and is now in • the Hands of the Lords Committees; and fince • that, they have attended ten Weeks at one Time, s and have had Agents for the City of Briftol three · Times, and have spent above 100 l. in Charges, to be eafed of this Burthen. And they further fay, They never paid any Composition for Wines or Groceries, untill the Lord Treasurer's Warrant.

The Examination of Sir SIMON HARVEY.

. That Composition for Grocery was usually collected in all the Out-Ports (fave Exeter and · Briftol) in the Lord of Dorfet's Time; and that · himfelf received the fame for four or five Years; and that they were but for petty Things, for the -most part Things brought in by way of Reprifal, ' in the Time of Queen Elizabeth. That Mr. · Facob was appointed to levy the fame for the King. That the Citizens of Briftol did acquaint the Lord Treasurer with the Order to exempt . them from Composition, and the Lord Treasurer fent this Examinant to treat with them to yield - to Composition, which they denied : Whereupon ' the Lord Treasurer answered, Let them stand to " the Earl of Salifbury's Order ; other Difcharge " he gave them none : 'And this Examinant thought e they went away well fatisfied, for they heard • what the Lord Treasurer faid."

The Examination of JOHN CLARKE.

That Mr. Jacob was appointed to levy the fame
Composition, by Warrant from the Lord Treafurer; the Ground whereof was, because the receiving thereof was taken away from Thomas Barret, the King's Grocer, who had given 1200 l.
And that those Duties had been duly levied in fome of the Out-Ports, but Exeter and Briftol flood out; he hath not known any of those Duties taken fince the Queen was at the Bath; and that there is a Table in the Custom-House of London, to show the Composition for London.

• Mr. Sergeant Crew replied, That there is no Table in the Cuftom-Houfe, to fhew any Compofition fition for the Out-Ports; and caufed the Clerk to An. 22. James I. read the Examination of John Guy, on the Part of 1624. the Lord Treafurer, taken May 1ft, 1624, which agrees, in effect, with his former Examination, taken for the King; and that after he, and others of Briftol, had long petitioned the Lord Treafurer to have their Bond cancelled and delivered; which they had entered for the Payment of the faid Composition, they could not obtain any Thing, fave fome good Hopes and fair Words from Sir Simon Harvey; and that their Bonds are yet detained.

The Lord Treasurer affirmed to the Lords, That himsfelf knew this Composition to be paid by the Out-Ports, and that his Warrant was only to levy the fame, as formerly it had been paid; and promised to send Barret's Books and some Notes out of the Compting-House, to prove the Payments thereof heretofore by the Out. Ports. Then the Lord Treasurer was withdrawn.

• Ordered to be here again at the Bar at Two this Afternoon, and agreed to have a Stool whilst the Charge is in giving.

Post Meridiem. ' The Lord Treasurer being brought to the Bar (in manner as before, and a Stool set for his Lordship,) He informed the House, That, (according to his Promise this Morning,) Barret is come with Account touching the Grocery paid at Bristol; and it was agreed that they should be brought to the King's Council, to be perused.'

⁶ Mr. Attorney General proceeded to the Charge concerning the Office of the Ordnance, and the unlawful Bargain for Sir Roger Dallifon's Lands, in this Manner, viz.

mes I, with Emptions and Stores, for the Safety of the King and his Kingdoms.

Concerning the Bargains, it flands proved, That Sir Roger Dallifon, being Lieutenant of the Ordnance, became indebted to the King in 9962 1. for Monies impressed for that Office, but not employed : And that Sir Roger Dallifon and Sir Thamas Mounfon were indebted to the King by Bonds to the Value of 3100 l. which Bonds were forfeited for not bringing certain Stores to that Office; both which Debts amounted to 13,062. and the Lands of Dallifon were extended for 9962 l. and the Lands of Mounson for 31001. And that July 20, 18 Fac. the King affign'd thefe Extents to Francis Morrice, Clerk of the Ordnance, and others in Truft for the Officers and Creditors of that Office, towards Satisfaction of fo much of their Debts.' · · · · · ·

· The Lord Treasurer, being a Commissioner for his Majesty's Debts, July 28th, 1621, 19 Jac. bargained for those Extents; and by the Articles under his Hand agreed to give for them 1062 l. in Hand, and 12,000 l. more by 1000 l. per Annum, for twelve Years, beginning at Lady-Day, 1623; and also to do his Endeavour to procure Payment of an Arrear of 8000 l. more, due to that Office from his Majefty: But, before this Bargain was performed, at Michaelmas following, he became Lord Treasurer; and when they expected Payment of the 1062 l. and Security for the reft, he propounded that, in lieu of the 12,000 l. to be fecured, they should have his Part in the Farms of the Petty Cuftoms for nine Years, valued to be worth 10001. per Annum, for the two first Years. and afterwards 1400 l. per Annum, which, according to that Rate, would yield in nine Years 11,800 l. but coft his Lordfhip only 3750.1."

"He being then Lord Treasurer, on whom they must depend both for the Payment of the Arrears, and for future Favours, they accepted it; not meaning to lose their 10621. payable in Hand, but it was was then again directly agreed they fhould be paid An. 22. James I. their 8000 l. Arrear out of his Majefty's Coffers." 1624.500

. In February 1621, Affurances were prepared, and the Creditors required to feal, being promifed to have at the Sealing their 80001. Arrears, and expecting their 1c621. from the Lord Treasurer, whereof they never conceived a Doubt; but fo foon as they had fealed, they were fent away without any Money, being promifed to receive their 8000 l. within three or four Days after, which was not performed in fo fhort a Time; but was, after, paid in divers feveral Payments out of his Majefty's Money : But the 1062 l. which was to have come from himfelf was abfolutely denied, the Lord Treafurer affirming, that as well that 1062 l. as the other 12,000 l. was all concluded and recompensed by the Intereft in the Petty Farms; whereupon a new Difference grew against them: But in the end they were enforced, in lieu of that 1062 l. to accept of a further Intereft, which his Lordship had in the Petty Farms, for an Half-year after the nine Years were expired, efteemed worth not above 400 l. to be fold: And it was then further agreed, that his Lordship should then pay them out of the King's Money 4000 l. due to the Office over and befides the former 8000 l. of which 4000 l. his Lordship hath fince caufed to be paid 3303 1.'

⁶ But whereas the Petty Cultoms were valued to them to be worth for the first two Years 1000 l. per Annum, it appeareth that, in the two first Years, it yielded them but 1419 l. 17 s. 7 d. being all the Money that grew due to them out of the Profits of those Farms at Michaelmas last; whereas if they had kept their Extents of Dallifon's and Mounion's Lands, they should have received by Lady-Day last almost 7000 l. for Part of their Debt.

' In which Bargain, (befides the Oppreffions and Extremities put on the poor Creditors and Officers of the Ordnance, that might ill undergo a Bargain of fo much Difadvantage and Lofs,) are observed two Corruptions; the one, in bargaining to pay the 8000 l. Arrears, for though that was agreed before

An. 22. James 1. fore he was Lord Treafurer, yet he then was trufted as a Commillioner for the King's Debts; and, being after Lord Treafurer, perform'd that corrupt Agreement made before."

> ⁶ The other Corruption was, in agreeing to pay the other 4000 l. for as it is a Corruption in a Treafurer to pay the King's due Debt for Money given unto himfelf; fo it is to pay the King's Debt, for gaining to himfelf a Bargain by which he either had or did expect Advantage; and tho' the Lord Treafurer, in his Anfwer, doth pretend he is a Lofer by Dallifon's Lands, it is certain that whatfoever his Gain or Lofs prove upon the other Bargains for the Inheritance of the Lands, this Bargain with the Officers, taken by itfelf alone, was beneficial; and if it were not, it is all one: For if a Judge, or Treafurer, bargain for a Bribe, though he never receive it, he is corrupt; for it fkills not what he had, but what he aimed at and expected."

About the fame Time that the Lord Treasurer bargained for the Extent aforementioned, viz. 28 July, 19 Jac. he contracted with Sir Thomas Mounfon, for the Inheritance of the fame Lands.

. For Sir Roger Dallifon, after he became Lieutenant of the Ordnance, conveyed the Inheritance of his Lands to fecure Sir Thomas Mounfon of divers great Debts and Engagements; fo as the Inheritance of those Lands, after the King's Extent, was in the Dispose of Sir Thomas Mounson, who bargained for it with the now Lord Treasurer; and upon that Bargain, the Lord Treasurer agreed to free Sir Thomas Mounfon's own Lands of the 31001. Debt, to pay in 3000 l. in Money, and to procure the making of him fix Baronets and fome other fit Suit from the King; and when the Baronets could not be obtained, the Number being full then, the Lord Treasurer procured him another Suit of 2000 l. Value, as his Lordship effeemed it, viz. For compounding with the King's Copyholders of Wakefield, to reduce their Fines to Certainty, for which Suit the Lord Treasurer was a Referee from the King; and, for Accomplifhment of this Bargain, made made for his own private Gain, he gave way to An. 22. James I. that Suit whereby fo much was to be taken for his Majefty: Yet there rested another Bargain to be made, for Sir Thomas Dallifon, the Son and Heir of Sir Roger Dallifon, pretended Title to those Lands by an old Entail; and the Lady Dallifon, Widow of Sir Roger Dallison, claimed to have the third as her Dower; and the Lord Treasurer having entred into Treaty with them, and finding their Demand not fuitable to his Defires, he, to make them the more compliant, threatens them, by his Extent, to keep them without any thing for an hundred Years; to lay upon Sir Thomas Dallifon certain forfeited Bonds, which, upon the Agreement with the Officers of the Ordnance, were transferred to him; and he fends for Sir John Wolftenholme, whefe Son had married Sir Thomas Dallifon's Sifter, and rebukes him as an Hinderer of his Lordship's Proceedings with Dallifon: And by thefe and other like Means, for an Annuity of 200 l. per Annum, procures a Release of their Title; and whereas Sir Roger Dallison, being possefied of a Leafe of great Value, had affign'd the fame to Sir John Davis, for Security of Money owing to him and Sir Richard Smith, which Leafe, for Non-payment, had been long forfeited, and the Poffeffion gotten by Sir John Davis upon a Trial and Recovery at Common Law, which Poffeffion had continued divers Years; the Lord Treasurer, by this Agreement with Sir Thomas Dallifon and his Mother, by way of unlawful Maintenance and Champarty, bought their Title to this Leafe; and having hedged in those Lands and the Title to this Leafe, exchanged the fame with Sir Arthur Ingram for other Lands; and then to gain the Possession of those Leafe-Lands from Sir John Davis and Sir Richard Smith, and to make good this Exchange, an old Outlawry against Sir Roger Dallifon, before the Affignment made by him to Sir John Davis, is fought out, the Debt being many Years paft fatisfied ; by colour of which Outlawry and the Power and Countenance of the Lord Treasurer, this Lease was feized

An. 22. James 1. feized into the King's Hands, and Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davis thrust out of Possession; whereupon they endeavoured to reverfe the Outlawry in the Common Pleas, and the better to effect it, they procured an Administration of the Goods of Sir Roger Dallifon to be taken by one Camben a' Creditor of Sir Roger's, to the intent the faid Administrator might fue to reverse this Outlawry; but the Lord Treasurer to prevent them therein, interpofeth in the King's Name, and in his Majefty's Behalf, to revoke that Administration; and the better to countenance the Bufinefs. fends a Cafe to the King's Attorney grounded upon other Matters, without mentioning the Outlawry, which was the chief Thing in queftion; and having obtain'd his Opinion in that Cafe, fends a Warrant to the King's Advocate, to proceed in the Ecclefiaftical Court as for the King; and in a Matter much touching the King, to proceed for Reverfal of the Administration; and in the end, by his Means, the Administration was revoked; and afterwards, the Matter coming in queftion in the Common Pleas, there also he interposed himself : and fent to the Judges of that Court, whereby Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davis were at last enforced to accept of a Composition : Now, in Truth, this Matter no ways concerned the King, for this Leafe was never extended for Dallifon's Debt; and before the Lord Treasurer interposed in the Ecclefiaftical Court, he had caufed a Petition to be made in the Name of Sir Thomas Dallifon and his Mother to the King; and a Reference thereupon to himfelf for this Leafe, among other Things; it being fecretly agreed between him and Dallifon, that the whole Benefit of this Leafe, when his Majefty fhould be pleafed to pass it, should be at the Difpofe of the Lord Treafurer.'

· And whereas the Lord Treasurer would excuse those Proceedings, as being after he had transferred all to Sir Arthur Ingram : It is evident that the Lord Treasurer thus interposed ; which must be either for his own Benefit, to fupport his own Bargain,

Note, That this Agreement also proves the Bargain made by the faid Lord Cranfield, with the Officers of the Ordnance, for the faid Leases of the Extents, in Manner as it is cited by Mr. Attorney.

⁶ And the Examination of Francis Morrice, Clerk of the Ordnance, taken the faid third Day of April, which affirms the faid Bargain made by the faid Lord Cranfield; and that the faid Lord Cranfield becoming Treasfurer, the Payment on his Part did not proceed; but his Lordfhip, upon a new Agreement, did affign to the faid Officers certain Leases, which were far over-valued unto them by his Lordfhip; and that his Lordfhip did not procure the faid Affigument of 80001. according to his Agreement, but hath fince given Satisfaction of the faid 8000 1. and more, in feveral Payments out of his Majesty's Receipt.

An. 22. James I. 1624.

1. And then was read the Deposition of Lewis Tate, containing a brief Relation of the Lord Treafurer's Dealings with certain Petitioners to his Majefty, for Debts owing to him in the Office of Ordnance; whereby it is also prov'd, That the faid Treasurer was then a Commissioner for the King's Debts, and did with the faid Officers to accept of the faid Leases of Sir Roger Dallifon's and Sir Thomas Mounfon's Lands, Sc. and fets out the whole Proceedings of the Lord Treasurer therein at large. And the Examination of John Fletcher, touching the faid Agreement made by the Lord Cransfield, and the Promise to procure the faid 8000 l. Sc.'

And more Proofs offering to be read, the Lord The Lord Trea. Treasurer faid, It is true that he, being a Commiffurer's Answer. fioner for the King's Debts, did advise the faid Officers of the Ordnance to accept of a Lease of the Lands of Sir Roger Dallifon and Sir Thomas Mounson, extended for the King for 13.062 l. viz.

Of Sir Roger Dalliton's Lands, extended for 99621. and of Sir Thomas Mounson's Lands for 31001. and they did accept of them for Payment of 13,0621. due to them by the King, with a Covenant to refort to the King, if they were interrupted in the Posseficient of those Lands.

And that he did then find, that there was due unto the faid Officers, by the King, about 20,000 l.

That the faid Lands of Sir Thomas Mounfon were worth 1600 l. per Annum, and were extended but at 200 l. per Annum, Sir Thomas Mounfon hoping to have had the Benefit thereof for himfelf: But, by Sir Edward Ccke's Rule, it was paffed over to the Greditors. That Sir Thomas Mounfon often petitioned the King, and his Majefty referred Sir Thomas Mounfon to the Lord Prefident and him: That they treated with the Officers, who answered, That they relied on Sir Thomas Mounfon's Lands, for that Sir Roger Dallifon's Lands were fo much incumbered, that they would yield little; yet the Exchequer Chamber would have relieved Sir Thomas Mounfon, if he had paid the Debt for which the Lands

Lands were extended; and then the Officers must An. 22. James I. have reforted to the King for Recompence: And that 1624. if his Lordship gained in that Covenant, by his Bargain with the faid Officers, fo it was beneficial to his Majesty. And his Promise to the Officers to help them to their 8000 l. Arrear, being a just Debt, was before he was Treasurer; and that it is Heathen-Greek to him, how this should be prejudicial to the King.

· To this Mr. Attorney replied, and affirmed the Mr. Attorneyre-Bargains to be unlawful as before; and that there further Proofs. was not 8000 l. Arrear due by the King before his Lordship was Treasurer; and then proceeded to the reading of the other Proofs.

"To prove that, about July 1621, his Lordship contracted with Sir Thomas Mounson for his Lands for 3000 l. which was paid him, for the making of fix Baronets, and a Suit to the King; and, in lieu of the Baronets, a Suit touching the Copyholders of Wakefield, valued by his Lordship at 2000 l. were read,

· 2. The Examination of Sir Arthur Ingram, taken the 12th of April, 1624.'

• For the 3000 l. and that he fignified unto Sir Thomas Mounson, that the Lord Treasurer would undertake to procure him the Making of fix Baronets; for that the Lord Treasurer had told him, he found the King inclinable to do Sir Thomas Mounfon good.'

· 3. The Copy of Sir Thomas Mounfon's Petition. to the King, for reducing the Fines of the Copyholders of Wakefield to a Certainty, in lieu of fome Baronets formerly granted him; and the Warrant thereupon, figned by the Lord Treasurer and Sir Humphry May, (to whom it was referred) delivered upon the Oath of Mr. Brewster, the 16th of April, 1624, was also read."

. And the Examination of Sir Humphry May, Knight, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, S 2 taken

An. 22. James I. taken the 4th of May, 1624, ex Parte Domin. Thefaurarii, That he was prefent when Sir Arthur Ingram did, on the Lord Treasurer's Behalf, bargain with Sir Thomas Mounfon for his Lands ; which · Bargain was, That the Lord Treasurer should give Sir Thomas Mounson 3000 l. should procure him the Making of fix Baronets, and fhould extend Dallifon's Lands unto him at 12001. per Annum; and afterwards, the Baronets being otherwife difpofed of by the King, Sir Thomas Mounfon petitioned the King touching the Copyholders of Wakefield.'

' Unto which the Lord Treasurer answered, That he never promifed the Making of the Baronets, nor authorized Sir Arthur Ingram to propound it.'

. Then was read, to prove the Lord Treasurer prefied Sir Thomas Dallifon to part with his Eftate at Undervalue:

1. The Examination of Sir Thomas Dallifon, 6 Bart, taken the 6th of April, 1624.'

· 2. The Examination of the faid Sir Thomas Dallison, taken the 12th of April, 1624.'

' 3. The Examination of Sir John Wolftenholme, taken the 16th of April, 1624.'

' And to prove that the Lord Treasurer, having made these Compositions, fets on foot an old Outlawry of Sir Roger Dallison, long fince fatisfied, thereby to wreft a Leafe of great Value from Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davis, interpoling the Power of his Place, and the Countenance of the King's Service, to opprefs them for his own private Ends, these Examinations were read, viz.

⁶ 6. The Lord Treasurer's Letter to Dr. Ryves, the King's Advocate, to revoke the Letters of Administration of Dallifon's Goods.'

⁶ Thefe being read, the Lord Treasurer again affirmed, That his Bargain with the Officers of the Ordnance was beneficial for the King, for it gained in his Majefly's Covenant of Refort from the Officers. And faid further, That it was not prejudicial to the Officers; for if his second Bargain be not as beneficial to them as the first should have been, he is to make it good.

And that Sir Thomas Dallifon, and his Lady Mother have Relief thereby, and himfelf a great Lafer, at least 4000 l. having taken up 16,000 l. for it, for which he pays Interest at this Day.

- And his Lordfhip denied, That he drew the Cafe, The Lord Treadelivered to Mr. Attorney, touching the Administra- furer's Answer time of Dellipp's Goods, and foid He defended to thereto. tion of Dallifon's Goods; and faid, He deferved to be bang'd that drew it. And, having fpoken as much as he could, the Clerk read the Heads of the Examinations taken on his Part; and Mr. Attorney confeffed them, and avoided them all; where-A with his Lordship seemed to rest fatisfied, for he did not require any Thing elfe to be read : But faid further, That he had paid Arrears to the Officers of the Navy, as well as those of the Ordnance; which shews he did not pay them by way of a Bargain only. And then faying, He would add no more, hewas withdrawn.'

'Then it was agreed that Mr. Attorney fhould begin To-morrow, where he now left, with the reft of the Charge; and that the Lord Treasurer be warn'd to appear here again at the Bar Tomorrow Morning at Nine of the Clock.'

His Petition for further Time, on nefs,

WIth most humble and thankful Acknowledgement of your Lordships honourable Patience, in hearaccount of Sick- ing those Parts of my Cause which are already open'd, I am now most humbly to beseech your Pardon of mine Appearance before your Lordships this Day; finding myfelf fo diflemper'd in my Body, and my Spirits fo weaken'd and spent, as, out of Necessity, enforceth me to be an humble Petitioner unto your Lordships for this little Respite of Time; my End and Desire herein being to enable myself to obey all your Commands, and to hasten the End of this Caufe of mine ; whereof I doubt not but your Lord/bips, in a true and, noble Senje of my Caule, will honourably confider accordingly.

. These Lords being return'd from Chelfea, where An. 22. And their Lordfhips having delivered their Meffage unto him, he excufed his not afking of Leave first to be absent; for that he had not Warning to be here this Morning untill ofter the House was rifen the last Night; and fince the Pleasure of the House is such, he will attend this Afternoon, if he hears not, by some Message from their Lordships, that they will be pleased to respite him till To-morrow Morning.

· As in the Bargains and Proceedings (which were opened Yesterday) the Lord Treasurer was over much attentive to his own private Profit, fo in the Supply of the Office of Ordnance (a Matter of high Importance for the Safety of the King and his Kingdoms, and in a Time when all Christendom befides ourfelves was in a Combustion,) he was wholly remifs: For whereas, by a Privy-Seal in 6 Jac. there was a private Establishment of 6000 1. per Annum, for the Office of Ordnance, which being put out of Order in the Time of Sir Roger Dallifon, about 12 Jac. the Lords of the Council, in November' 1617, upon Reference from the King, fet down a Proportion of Supply, amounting to 54,0781. 8s. 8d. and the flanding Allowance of 6000 1. per Annum to continue. And after in February 1619, there being a Commission awarded to the Commissioners of the Navy, to furvey the Office of Ordnance, the faid Commiffioners (the Lord Treasurer himself being a chief Man among them) fet down a Proportion of Supply amounting to but 13,640 l. 14 s. 2 d. and a yearly Allowance of 30001. retrenching it to that Rate from 60001. and did fet down a Courfe that this being obferv'd, a needless Charge of about 10,000 l. per Annum, fhould be cut off, and this was allowed both by the Lords and by the King himfelf."

· And whereas in April 1621, a Contract was made with Mr. Evelyn, for ferving his Majefty with 80 Lafts of Powder yearly; by monthly Proportion. at 7 d. the Pound, which Proportion being kept would have yielded a plentiful Supply into the Office of Ordnance, and the Overplus might have been fold at 3d. the Pound Profit to his Majefty. The Lord Treasurer (tho' he was continually folicited by Evelyn) did not make the Payment, which fhould have been made upon that Contract; whereby Evelyn, according to the Liberty that was allow'd by his Contract, fold his Powder to others; and, in thirty-five Months after that Contract, ferved into the Stores but fifteen Months Proportion : and upon Breach of this Contract did enfue thefe Inconveniencies, viz.

. That the Stores which, for the Service of all his Majefty's Kingdoms, might have had in Readinefs 266 Lafts of Powder, and 60 Lafts of Salt-Petre, which would have really made 80 Lafts of Powder more, (in all 346 Lafts) are greatly injured by this Neglect: For, upon a late Survey, there were in all but 130 Lafts in the Stores, and yet Ireland wholly disfurnished: And besides, his Majefty, by Sale of the Overplus of the Powder alone (above the Proportion thought fit to be kept by the Commiffioners of the Navy) might have gain'd '3 d. in every Pound, which would have amounted to 40501. and above, all which his Majefty loft by this Default of the Lord Treafurer. And whereas his Lordship excuseth these Things by

An. 22. James I, by pretence of Sadler's Complaints, it appeareth that those Complaints grew by occasion of Evelyn's felling of Powder to others, not to the King; which had never been if he had had due Payment : And the Lord Treasurer was warned, both by the Lord Crew and by the Commissioners of the Navy, to have fpecial Care of these Points, to fave the Contract, it being of high Confequence.'

Proofs thereof.

" To prove that in November 1617, the Lords, upon a Reference from the King, did fet down a Proportion of Supply amounting to 54,0781. 8 s. 8 d. was read the faid Declaration of the Officers of the Ordnance.²

The Lord Treafurer answered, I had need, in furer's Objections to Mr. At being taken by Mr. Attorney to make me appear a torney's Manner faulty Man.

'Unto which the Lord Keeper reply'd, That the Lords conceive that thefe Words are a Wrong done unto them; and, he conceived, that they are a greater unto his Lordfhip, the Lord Treasurer, who being a Judge, makes no Difference of a Charge.'

'The Lord Treasurer answered, That he is injuriously dealt withall, and that no Peer hath been charg'd in this Place before by the King's Counsel.'

'And being demanded by the Lord Keeper, wherein he is injurioufly dealt withall, he answered, By Mr. Attorney's opening the Proofs by Parcels, and by directing Parts of the Depositions to be read, which should have been done wholly and together.'

. The fecond Settlement by the Lord Treafurer Salisbury, Anno 1617.

" And the third Settlement by the Commissioners of the Navy, 1620. And that the Lord Treasurer had observed none of them.'

. The Lord Treafurer answered, as touching the fecond Settlement, Nothing bath been done upon His Lordship's it to this Day; and yet it was made four Years before the Charge of he was Treasurer.

· · · As touching the third Settlement, It was pro-tions. pounded only, and opposed, but never allowed; if allowed, it was thirteen Months before he was Treafurer, and yet nothing done in it, as by Cook's own Oath: That he had no Privy Seal for it. And how then can be be charged for the Breach of that Settlement which was never fettled? But he will not give that for Anfwer. And then his Lordship affirm'd, That the Stores are furnished, and that he had paid all the faid Ordinary of 3000 l. per Annum, fave 300 l. tho' no Privy-Seal was iffued out upon that Book prefented by the Commissioners of the Navy; and paid divers other Sums of Money for Provisions of the Stores; whereof his Lordship recited the particular Sums: And whereas that Office was unfettled by Sir Roger Dallison, he, being a Commissioner for the King's Debts, found due to the Officers 18,000 l. and caufed 13,000 l. of it to be paid by Dallifon's Lands, and the reft to be paid alfo afterwards; fo that a finall Sum will now fettle that Office, which was then so unsettled.

As touching the Powder, That when he came to be Treasurer, he found but 116 Lasts of Powder, whereof 21 Lasts, delivered by Evelyn, were left unpaid for; and that he paid him 2000 l. As touching his Secretary's Fees, As he is not refirained, fo nothing is allowed; and if he bath exacted any Thing, his Lordfhip will be the feverest Cenfurer of him. He never heard of any till now. As touching the Fee for Continuances, Why should be lose any Thing due for a Favour to the Subject? By this Means there be fewer Continuances; and fo the King has his Money the fooner, and the Party is free for the Subjects Suit the fooner.

As for concealed Wardships within a Year, It is beneficial to the King ; otherwife, within three -Years, the Ward might die, and the King lose the Wardship. Neither bath the Master such Power, alone, therein by these new Instructions : He is only trusted with the Direction unto whom the concealed Wardship shall be granted ; the Composition is left to the Council-Board: But it is not shewed that he ever made one concealed Wardship. They fay this may be done, but do not thew what was done amils. And his Lordthip justified, That thefe new Instructions were more beneficial to the King and Sulject than the former, and not prejudicial; for as touching the Petitions, if the Ward happen in a Vacation, the Petition must be delivered within a Month; if to the Clerk, perhaps he is out of Town: Now they are to be delivered to the Master first, and he may direct the finding of the Office in the Interim; but it is of no Force till the Petition be afterwards entered by the Clerk, and Composition is made by all the Officers.

Indeed the Officers yielded, hardly, to the new Infiructions; becauje they had, by the former, shared the Master's Power and Authority among themselves.

His Lordfhip confeffed, That he yielded to have a Stamp made by the Precedent of the Lord Burleigh's Stamp; which, he faid, he could not prove but by Hear-fay: And Stamps are used in the S* (f) Office and the Outlawries. And that it is no more prejudicial to commit a Stamp to his Secretary, than it hath been her ctofore to leave the Seal with the Clerk. • As for the first, That his Omiffion of an Account in the Wardrobe did neither add to nor diminish the Charge the King was at; and that, altho' bis Lordship omitted to ferve some of the Lord Chamberlain's Warrants, amounting to a Matter of 700 l. yet he had laid out, in the Extraordinaries of that Office, (which he was not bound to do) about 6000 l. and that the good Service which he had done his Majesty in that Office is well known.

• Touching the two Bribes, term'd di/gui/ed Corruptions, Howfoever the Farmers of the Cuftoms prefented the fame, he could not know their Thoughts but by their Words and Deeds. • Then he defired their Lordfhips to take into-Confideration His Difability to anfaver, and the Ability of those that did oppose him; and, if he had been as well able to speak for himself, as they that spoke against him, he doubted not but that he should have given their Lordships very good Satisfaction.

• His Lordfhip fpake much in excule for those. Matters complained of against him as Lord Treafurer, faying, That the King's Necessity and Want of Money-was the Cause of much thereof.

• He acknowledged, That the King had been a good and bountiful Master unto him; and avowed, That he had been a good and faithful Servant unto his Majesty; not for Impositions, for (those two only excepted, which are prefented by the Commons) he ever stood against them, deeming them a Partition-Wall between the King and the Subject.

That his Service has been in Reformations, viz. Of the Houfbold; of the Navy; of the Wardrobe; and of the Kingdom of Ireland; which are Things of that Nature that they beget Enemies: And if, in doing Service to his Majesty, he hath procured to himself many Enemies, their Lordships will not impute that to him for a Fault.

• His Lordship also affirmed, That he had done his Majesty good Service in the Palatinate, by advancing the Exchange of the King's Money thither, wherein he saved the King 60,000 l. And affirmed, That he had advanced the Profits of the Grown at least 80,000 l. the not by Impositions'; these he medled not with, the other two excepted, and they were lagreed unto by the Council-Board. That he hath been a Judge these eight Years, and no Complaint, brought against him for Corruption or Bribery ; which he hoped would weigh much with their Lord/hips.

And as for the Offence taken Yesterday against him, touching the King's Counfel, (whom he ever lov'd well) He knew them to be of that loving Nature, that he doubted not but that they would impute it to his Rashness, and forgive him.

. Then he craved Pardon of their Lordships, if he had omitted any Thing, or fooken ought that might difcontent them; and for with humble, Thanks for their Favour to him, he concluded his Speech.'

. The Lord Treasurer having ended his Speech, he was answered by the Lord Keeper, That the Council-Table difavowed the Imposition on Wines. to begin from them: It came from his Lordship, as belonging to his Place of Lord Treasurer; the Matter was his alone; the Manner alfo was contradicted by the reft of the Council, for that the Merchant Ships were then in the River; only they gave way to it, upon his Lordship's undertaking that the Merchants, would yield thereunto, and that they fhould be no way prejudiced thereby.'

"Whereunto the Lord Treasurer replied, That, this was no Part of his Charge.

The Lord Treasurer being withdrawn, and the The Lords take House adjourned ad Libitum, Mr. Attorney Gene- into Confideraral read that Part of the Charge against the Lord tion the feveral Treasurer which concerned the Wardrobe.'

And the Lords' having duly confidered of the Lord Treasurer's Crimes objected against the Lord Treasurer, for not Answers. entering into a Book of Accounts the Warrants and Emptions, as he ought to have done, whereby the Settlement and antient Inftitution of that Office is altogether broken ; and for not ferving the Warrants directed unto him for the King'so wn Perfon, the' he was often urged thereunto; nor paying divers

And the King's Counfel having fatisfied their Lordfhips, That the faid Pardon to the Lord Treafurer did not pardon his Lordfhip's not accounting; the Houfe was refumed, and the Queftion put, Whether the Lord Treafurer, for his Carriage in the Office of the Wardrobe, be centurable, or No? And it was agreed, Nemine difference, To be cenfured.

Post Meridiem, Mr. Attorney read that Part of the Charge against the Lord Treasurer which concerned his taking of 500 l. of the Farmers of Wines and Currants for a Bribe, and 500 l. of the Farmers of the Great Customs, for a Bribe; and for exacting 100 l. of the faid Farmers of Wines and Currants.

And their Lordfhips took into their Confideration the Lord Treasurer's Answer unto the faid two Bribes, viz. That he accepted of 1000 l. paid him, at one entire Payment, by the Farmers of the Great Customs, upon a Bargain of his four 32 Parts of the Great Farm. And it appeared plainly unto them, by the Examination of divers Witneffes, as well of those taken ex Parte Domini Regis, as of those taken ex Parte Domini Thesaurarii; That 500 l. of the faid Sum was given to the Farmers of the Wines and Currants, called the Petty Cuftoms, to procure his Lordship's Warrant for Defalkation of 1000 l. per Annum of their Rents, for nine Years and a Half, in recompence of their Lofs, acording to his Lordship's farther Agreement with them on the King's Behalf, upon his Majefty's Reference unto his Lordship: And that the other 5001. was given, by the Farmers of the Great 1 11 , 1 20 Cuftoms, Customs, to procure his Lordship's Warrant unto An. 22. James I. the King's Remembrancer, to take Security for Payment of the Rent to his Majefty of the four Patentees of that Farm, in lieu of five Partners who had relinquished their Parts therein : And that his Lordship had not referved to himself any Parts of the faid Great Farm, as his Lordship pretends : And if he had, it had been a great Deceit unto his Majefty, for the Lord Treasurer of England to contract with others for his Majefty's Cuftoms, and fecretly to referve Parts therein unto his own Benefit: And when, as his Lordship affirms, that he received the 100 l. of the Farmers of the Wines and Currants, for a New-Year's Gift, it appeared alfo by the Examinations, That the faid Farmers did present his Lordship with a Tun of Wine for his New-Year's Gift, and his Lordship exacted the 1001. of them afterwards; which divers of their -Lordships conceive to be Extortion.'

" All which being fully difcuffed, the Houfe was refumed, and the Question was put, Whether, upon this whole Charge, the Lord Treasurer be censurable, or No? And agreed generally, To be cenfured.'

· The Houfe being again adjourned ad Libitum, Mr. Attorney General read that Part of the Charge against the Lord Treasurer, which concerned his Lordship's procuring of George Herriot to furrender his Leafe of the Farm of Sugars, which he held at the Rent of 10,000 Marks per Annum to the King, and for procuring a new Leafe thereof immediately to two of his Lordship's Servants, to his own Use, at 2000 l. per Annum; and for denying the Merchants, upon their Exportation of Sugars, the Impofts paid therefore upon the Importation, as his Lordship ought to have done by the Directions of his Majesty's Letters Patent of the 5th of December, Anno 8. Jacobi.

. Upon reading whereof the Lord Keeper fignified to their Lordships, That he had received a Meffage from the King touching this Charge, viz.

· That his Majefty did freely give unto the Lord Treasurer 4000 l. per Annum, out of the faid Lease . 1624.

An. 22. James I. of Sugars, the fame to begin prefently after the 1624. Date thereof.

'And the Houfe being refumed, the Queftion was put, Whether the Lord Treafurer fhall be freed from any Cenfure in this particular Charge, or No' And generally agreed, To be freed.'

" The Houfe was again adjourn'd ad Libitum.

'And Mr. Attorney General read that Part of the Charge against the Lord Treasurer, which concerns the Composition for Grocery Wares in the City of Briflol, which City had refused to yield unto any Composition for the fame; and yet the Lord Treasurer had given Warrant to levy the fame against their Wills, and to stay the entering of their Goods untill the fame was paid accordingly.

'But for that it appeared, that the Lord Treafurer Dorfet's Letter, dated 1610, for levying the fame Composition, agreeth with the Letter written by this Lord Treasurer; and for that divers of Brifiol had paid the like Composition; and for that it did not appear that the Lord Treasurer did thereby feek any Benefit to himfelf, the Lords did not think him fit to be cenfured for the fame.'

Wherefore the Houfe being refumed, it was An. 28. James I. put to the Question, Whether the Lord Treasu-1624. rer shall be free of Cenfure in this Charge of Grocery, or No? And agreed, To be freed.

. The Houfe being again adjourned ad Libitum, Mr. Attorney General read another Part of the Lord Treasurer's Charge, viz.

. That his Lordship, for this two Years and a Half, fince he was Lord Treafurer, hath not obferved the two Proportions or Establishments of the Ordinary, and Supply of the Office of the Ordnance; neither that which was fettled for the Supply thereof by Privy Seal, Anno fexto Jacobi, for the Ordinary of that Office, nor that, in Anno 1620, fet down by his Lordship, and the other Commiffioners of the Navy for the prefent Supply thereof; whereby the Stores are, in effect, wholly unfurnished: And that his Lordship, fince he was Lord Treasurer, neglected and kept not the Contract, made by himfelf and other Commissioners with Mr. Evelyn, for Gun-Powder, to the Hazard of the Kingdoms and Prejudice of the King; and that he made unlawful Bargains for the Lands of Sir Roger Dallifon, contracting to procure Payment of old Arrears of Debt, which he performed when he became Treasurer, and to procure the Making of Baronets, and a Suit to the King for compounding with his Majefty's Copyholders of Wakefield, which he valued at two thousand Pounds; and for using indirect Means and the Power and Countenance of his Place, to wreft Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davis out of a Leafe, which Sir Roger Dallifon had paffed unto them."

· And their Lordships having fully difcuffed the great Neglect of the Lord Treasurer to iffue the King's Money for the furnishing of the King's Stores of Munitions, with Armour and Powder; and that yet he paid the Arrear of Debts to that Office for his own particular Profit upon a Contract with the faid Officers: And having confidered his Lordship's great Misdemeanors in the Bargains for the faid-Lands of Sir Roger Dallifon extended

· And it appearing unto their Lordships, That the faid Lord Treasurer had fet on foot an old Outlawry, upon a Debt long Time fince paid by the faid Sir Roger Dallifon; and that his Lordship, upon Pretence of a Debt to the King where there was none, procured a Revocation of Letters of Administration granted of Sir Roger Dallifon's Goods; and had written his Letter to the Judges of the Common Pleas for the countenancing of this indirect Courfe, to wreft the faid Leafe from the faid Sir Richard Smith and Sir John Davy, formerly granted unto them by the faid Sir Roger Dallifon: All this being fully debated, the Houfe was refumed, and it was put to the Queffion, Whether the Lord Treasurer be worthy of Cenfure in regard of this whole Charge, both for the three Bargains, and for not fupplying the Office of the Ordnance? And generally agreed, To be cenfured.' .

" The Houfe was again adjourn'd ad Libitum :"

"And Mr. Attorney read the reft of the Charge against the Lord Treasurer, viz. That the Lord Treasurer, being Master of the Wards, did, Anno Domini 1622, caufe the Instructions, fet forth by his Majefty, in Anno 1618, for the well-ordering of the Court of Wards, to be altered, against the Will of the Officers, by the Mifinformation of his Majefty; whereby he hath taken the Petitions from the Clerk of that Court, and appropriated them unto himfelf and his Secretary : And that his Lordthip having to himfelf concealed Wardthips, he may eafily make Wardfhips concealed by the Courfe of of the faid new Instructions: And that his Lord-An. 22. James I. Thip hath doubled the Fees for Continuances of Liveries, and made a Stamp and deliver'd the fame to his Secretary, who hath ftamped therewith in the Absence of the Master, Tenders, Continuances, Warrants to the Great Seal, Grants of Wardships and Leafes, Indentures of Liveries, &c.'

"And their Lordships confidering, that it was not proved by the Examination of Witneffes, that the Secretary was appointed to take any Fees for the faid Petitions, either for himfelf or for the Lord Treasurer; nor that the Lord Treasurer had made any Benefit to himfelf for concealed Wards by virtue of the faid new Instructions: Therefore their Lordships thought his Lordship not censurable for those two Points of his Charge. But as touching the doubling of Fees of Continuances of Liveries, they thought his Lordship worthy to be cenfured both in respect of the Grievance of the Subject, and of his Lordship's Answer unto the fame, viz. It is the King's Grace to the People, let them pay for it.'

· And for that he deliver'd a Stamp unto his Secretary, whereby he committed the great Truft, reposed in him by his Majesty, unto his Servant, not deigning to fign the Petitions, Liveries, and Warrants, to the Great Seal, with his own Hand, their Lordships thought him worthy to be highly cenfured for the fame.'

"And thereupon the House being refumed, the Question was put, Whether the Lord Treasurer deferves a Cenfure upon the whole Charge or no? And agreed, nemine dissentiente, To be censured for the fame."

May 13. After reading a private Bill or two, the Lords ordered the Gentleman Usher and the Sergeant at Arms, attending on that Houle, to fummon the Earl of Middlefex, Lord Treasurer of England, to appear prefently before their Lordfhips.

The Warrant was figned by the Lord Keeper, and delivered to the Gentleman Usher.

The House being adjourned ad Libitum; the Clerk read the Heads of the fix Charges against the Lord Treasurer, and the fix feveral Votes of the House which were Yesterday past upon the fame.

And their Lordships having duly confidered upon the Proofs of Bribery, Extortions, Oppressions, Wrongs and Deceits, objected against the Lord Treasurer, found the fame to be most apparently proved.

And, as to the Allegations of the Lord Treafurer of his good and profitable Services to the King ; in the Reformation of the King's Houshold, of the Navy, of the Wardrobe, and the Kingdom of Ireland, their Lordfhips entring into Debate thereof, it was made manifest to them, by many Particulars then declared, That, as touching the Reformation of the King's Houfhold, Wardrobe, Ireland, He, the Lord Treafurer, had deferved very ill of his Majefty; and, as touching the Navy, though his Lordship was but a Commissioner with others, who were more skilfull, and did more Good than he, yet, he affumed to himfelf the whole Glory thereof; and his Manner was fo to do, in all other Bufinefs wherein his Lordfhip and others were ioined.

The Lords also confidered of the Lord Treafurer's Allegation of his advancing the Exchange of the King's Money, fent to the Palatinate, for Payment of the King's Forces there; and it appeared unto them plainly, That his Services therein deferved no fuch Respect, as his Lordship affumed unto himsfelf; the Soldiers of Frankendale being yet unpaid.

- Then the Houfe being refumed, the first Queflion was put,

It was unanimoufly agreed, That he fhould lofe An. 22. James I. them all.

The fecond Queftion,

Agreed, That he fhould be incapable of them all. The third Queftion, III. Whether he thall be imprisoned in the Tower of London, during his Majefty's Pleasure, or No?

Agreed, For Imprisonment.

The fourth Question,

IV. Whether the Lord Treasurer for these Offences shall pay a Fine to the King, or No?

Agreed to a Fine.

But then the Houfe was adjourned ad Libitum, That the Lords might more freely difcufs what Fine to impofe on the Lord Treafurer. And, being refumed,

The fifth Queffion was put by the Lord Keeper,

V. Whether a Fine of 50,0001. be fufficient to be imposed on the Lord Treasurer, or No?

Agreed to this Article.

The fixth Question,

VI. Whether he (hall, hereafter, fit in Parliament, or No?

Agreed, That he shall never fit again in Parliament.

The feventh Question,

VII. Whether the Lord Treafurer fhall come within the Verge of the Court, or No?

These Questions being all put and agreed to, the whole Censure against him was drawn up in Form, read by the Lord Keeper, and passed by a general Vote of the whole House.

Then a Meflage was fent to the Commons, by MrSergeant Crew and Mr Attorney General, That the Lords were now ready to give Judgment againft the Lord Treasurer, if they, with their Speaker, will come and demand the fame.

Accordingly, the Lords being all in their Robes, to the Number of fixty-two, viz. the Prince of Wales, the Lord Keeper, the Archbilhop of Canterbury, twelve other Bilhops, with forty-feven Earls, Vifcounts, and Barons, the Lord Treasurer was brought to the Bar, by the Gentleman Usher and the Sergeant at Arms; when his Lordship making a low Reverence, kneeled, untill the Lord Keeper willed him to fland up. The Commons came in with their Speaker, and the Sergeant attending him let down his Mace, when the Speaker address'd himself to the Lords as follows:

The Lord Keeper answered, This High Court of Parliament doth adjudge,

That Lionel Earl of Middlefex, now Lord Treafurer of England, shall lose all his Offices which he holds in this Kingdom; and shall, hereafter, be made incapable of any Office, Place, or Employment in the State and Common Wealth.

That be fhall be imprisoned in the Tower of London during the King's Pleafure.

That, he shall pay unto our Sovereign Lord the King a Fine of 50,000 l.

That he shall never sit in Parliament any more." And that he shall never come within the Verge of the Court.

We have met with a Story, quoted in an Author of very good Credit (f), That the Lord Bacon, af-

The Sentence against him. ter he was fentenced in Parliament, meeting with An. 22. James I. Sir Lionel Cranfield, whom King James had then newly made Lord Treafurer; Lord Bacon, having firft congratulated his Advancement to fo eminent a Place of Honour and Truft, told him, between Jeft and Earneft, That he would recommend to his Lordfhip, and, in him, to all other great Officers of the Crown, one confiderable Rule to be carefully obferved; which was to Remember a Parliament will come. We do not believe his Lordship had the Spirit of Divination in him, tho' the Event shewed somewhat like it, and verified the familiar Saying of the Lord Coke;

That no Subject, the never so potent and subtle, ever confronted or justled with the Law of England, but the same Law, in the End, infallibly broke his Neck.

One Instance of the Truth of this Maxim is just Some Account of related, for thus fell Lionel Cranfield, Earl of Mid- the Rife and Fall dlefex; who, from a low Beginning, was, for his of the Lord Treaeminent Qualities in mercantile Affairs, raifed to that Title, and to one of the higheft Pofts in the Kingdom. He was the Son of Thomas Cranfield, Efq; but was no more than a London Merchant himfelf; and, being bred up in the Cuftom-Houfe, was looked upon as a fit Inftrument to detect the Frauds in those Officers. The King, in his laft Speech to the Lords, hath given an Account how he was introduced to Court, and by what Steps he rose to the Height he so fuddenly fell from; and, by what his Majefty hints, in that Speech, there might be much Malice and Envy in his Profecution.

Mr. Rapin charges the Prince of Wales and Duke of Buckingbam with a Confpiracy to ruin the Treafurer, for refufing them, at Times, the exorbitant Sums they demanded when in Spain: That they made Use of their Credit with the Parliament for that Purpose, and caused him to be accused, by their Creatures, of Mismanagement in the Difcharge of his Office (g).

This Hint our Author has ftrongly improved from Willon and Lord Clarendon : The former fays, "The Duke of Buckingham, remembering how the Lord Treafurer repined at the Monies fpent in Spain, and his Comportment to him fince his Return, refolved to bring him down from that Height he had plac'd him in:' And the latter, • That the King was against the Profecution of the Treasurer, by an Impeachment; because he forefaw, that those Kinds of Parliamentary-Proceedings would fhake the Royal Authority, in the Choice of his own Minifters, when they fhould find that their Security did not depend, folely, upon hisown Protection; which Breach, adds the Noble Hiftorian, upon his kingly Power, was fo much without a Precedent, that, except one unhappy one, made three Years before, to gratify likewife a private Displeasure, [Lord Bacon he means] the like had not been practifed in very many Years. The King told the Duke, 'That he was a Fool, and was making a Rod for his own Breech;' and the Prince, ' That he would live to have his Bellyfull of Parliamentary Impeachments(b):' Both which will be found prophetically true in the Sequel. But, in this Cafe, after all, the Guilt or Innocence of the Accufed, must be left to the Reader's Judgment, by the Circumstances of the Trial: However, it feems very plain that the Duke of Buckingham, who, as the King takes Notice, first introduced him to the Court, did, at leaft, defert him upon his Trial; otherwife there is no Room to suppose that the Profecution would have been carried on to vigoroufly, or the Sentence have been fo unanimous and fo fevere against him.

Whether the King remitted the Fine, or any Part of it; is uncertain; but his Lordfhip lived many Years after this Difgrace, and died in a good old Age, in the Year 1645, leaving two Sons, who both fucceeded him in his Title of Earl of Middlefex; but was

May 14. A Committee of Lords was appointed by the Houfe to attend the King, and to acquaint him with the Judgment awarded by the Lords against the Earl of Middlefex, late Lord Treasurer of England, and to defire his Majefty to take away the Staff and the Seal of the Court of Wards from him.

Ordered alfo, That the King's Counfel do draw up a Bill, and prefent the fame to the Houfe, to make the Lands of the Earl of Middlefex liable unto his Debts; unto his Fine to the King; unto Accounts to the King hereafter; and to Refitution to fuch whom he had wronged, as fhall be allowed by the Houfe.— This Bill afterwards paffed into a Law; but not with that Unanimity, in the Lower Houfe, as in the Trial before the Lords; for, upon the third reading thereof in the Commons, it was carried by a Majority of but thirty-fix Voices (k).

The Commons concluded with these two Remembrances.

• The first, That they received this Complaint before Easter laft; yet they proceeded not in the Examination thereof till they received a Certificate from the Mayor of Norwich.

• The fecond, That none fhall be punifhed for complaining in Parliament.'

This Report being ended, the Bishop of Norwich stood up in his Place, and answered the same to this Effect :

Firft,

• Firft, His Lordfhip confeffed the Charges in An. 22. James I. the faid Complaint to be fo great and grievous, that, 1624. were he guilty thereof, he would defire, himfelf, to be punifhed: But, whether he be guilty, or not, The Bifhop of he will leave to their Lordfhips exact and fevere Norwich's De-Examination; wherein he defired them not to fence. fpare him, and he would ever acknowledge and commend their Juftice and Honour.

" His Lordship protested he was no way guilty of the first Part of this Acculation; if he were, then he was unworthy to bear the Name of a Clergyman. He fhewed the Unworthiness of fuch as fhould diffication Preachers from preaching the Word of God. His Lordfhip fhewed alfo, defiring first that he might not be taxed with Ostentation, his own Practice in preaching, whilft he was Vicar and Parfon: That he preached every Sabbath in the Morning, and catechized in the Afternoon; and that he continued the like Preaching whilft he was Bishop of Chichester : That in Norwich he never mifs'd the public Place, and ever preached there against Popery; tho' he had been an unprofitable, yet he had not been an idle Servant; which was now his only Comfort.'

⁶ As touching Preaching and Non-refidence, he had been reckoned more than half a Puritan: He told them of his Manner of living, and his leaving the Archbishop of Canterbury's Service that he might go to his Cure. He wondered why he should be thought a Papist; he thought it might be owing to his Disputations, and his Sermons at Paul's Cross, on Predestination negative, unadvisedly preached by him; for which he was checked by Archbishop Whirgist, and commanded to preach no more of it; and he never did, tho' Dr. Abbot, late Bishop of Sarum, hath fince declared in Print that which he then preached to be no Popery.

• That Popery is a Fire that will never be quiet, he hath preached a thousand Sermons; and nothing of Popery can be imputed to him out of any of them. That there were divers Obstacles to keep him from Popery.

That we fetch not our Reformation from Wickliff, Hufs, and Luther of latter Times, but from the first four hundred Years next after Chrift."

His Lordfhip confelled, That fix or feven of the abler Sort of Ministers in Norwich used to expound, in their own Churches, before the Sermon began in the Cathedral Church; and many reforted from other Places to thefe Expositions, (for all the Churches have not Preachers) and in the Afternoon to their Sermons. The Preachers themfelves found Fault with this, being willing to be rid of the Pains, for they were to preach in the Afternoon and on the Week-Days, and shewed him many Diforders therein, which they pretended; as the cutting off. Part of the Prayers, or their beginning to early, that many could not come to the common Prayers, and the like; and they befought his Lordship to remedy it, because they, being itipendary Men, were loth to do it, for fear, belike, to lofe their Stipends; whereupon he fent for them by an Officer, and willed them to omit these Expositions in the Forenoon; and yet he had fince taken Order for the erecting of three Sermons in the most remote Parts of the City from the Ca-

II. ' As touching the Images in a Church.'

⁴ What was done was done without his Knowledge; it was meant by St. Peter's Church: 'That his Lordfhip never faw that Church till one Evening as he came by; and being informed of much Coft done upon it, he went in, and kneeled down to his Prayers, as his Ufe was. When he rofe up, and perceived that they had beftowed very great Coft, and not feeing or knowing of any Image at all fet up there, he faid, God's Bleffing on their Hearts that had beftowed fuch Coft on God's Houfe.'

III. • As touching Prayers to the Eaft:

⁶ He never enjoined it, nor heard of it till now.⁹ IV. ⁶ For the fourth Part of his Complaint:

'That Anno 1622, he was taken in his Houfe with twenty-two of his Neighbours, at a Conventicle; that he was then bound over by a Justice and brought to his Lordship, and his Sentence against him was, only, that he should confess his Fault.'

'The others, mentioned in this Part of the Charge, were punifhed for their Opinions alfo; making no Difference between an Alehoufe and the Church, till the Preacher was in the Pulpit. He faid, he must confess his Fault, That in the Penance

> V. ' His Lordship absolutely denied that he impofed any Fees, and affirmed that he had not any of those Fees which were complained of; only, the Fees for Inftitution, which he took as his Predeceffors did. If therein he had committed any Error, Erravimus cum Patribus; and denied that he had ever feen that Table of Fees which is fpoke of by the Commons.'

> VI. 'His Lordship affirmed. That he had regiftred all the Inftitutions."

> When the Bifhop had ended his Defence, his Royal Highness the Prince stood up and told him, ' That he had not anfwered concerning the Paraphrafe of the Catechi/m which he had taken away." To which the Bifhop replied, ' That the Preachers uled to chule a Text from the Creed, &c. and to afk the Child fome one Queftion, and then to dilate very long upon it, but never descended to the Capacity of the Child. That he did not forbid the Explanation, but ordered that it fhould be done catechetically."

> We may fuppofe that the Lords were very willing to be rid of this Affair, for an Order is entered, immediately after the Bifhop's Anfwer, 'That, in respect of the Shortness of Time and the Multiplicity of Bufinefs, now depending to be detertermined, the Complaint of the Commons, against the Lord Bishop of Norwich, shall be referred to the High Commission Court, to be examined by them; and they to make Report thereof to the Houfe, and then the Houfe will judge of it.'

therein mentioned. He acknowledged the Proceed- An. 22. James I. ings of the faid Stokes to be legal, and humbly fubmitted himfelf to an Examination and ftrict Trial. However, he complained that the faid Stokes had fent his Lordship this Meflage : That if he would fuffer a Judgment in the Court of Common Pleas for him, the faid Stokes, to be Archdeacon of Norfolk, that then Stokes would profecute no further against his Lordship; otherwife, he would finoke him with more Complaints. Moreover, that the faid Stokes reported that his Lordship did drink a Health to Spinola, and refused to pledge a Health to the Prince of Orange, for that the faid Prince was a General unto Traitors. Lafly, That Stokes affirmed his Lordship did take thirty Pounds of every one of the Archdeacons when he came first to his See. All which his Lordship affirmed' to be false.'

This Complaint, with the Witneffes the Bifhop which is referproduced to prove it, was referred to the Examina- red to the Archtion of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who was bishop of Canterto make Report thereof to the House for their Judgment of the Matter.

But we hear no more of this Affair, or the former, in the Journals, or elsewhere; for neither Wilfon nor Rusbworth mention one Word of it. This Bishop of Norwich was Samuel Harfnet, who Le Neve tells us had been guilty of feveral scandalous Practices, whilft he was Master of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge (1). By his Answer, he seems to clear himfelf from the Commons Complaint againft him; which, by the bye, is fomewhat extraordinary, and would not have been fuffered in the last Reign. He came into higher Favour, at Court, in the next; for in the Year 1628, he was made Archbishop of York. But to return to our Proceedings.

The fame Day, still, a Message was brought from the Commons to the Lords, by Sir Edwin Sandys and others, to this Effect:

' ' That the Knights, Citizens, and Burgefles, in the Houfe of Commons affembled, understanding that

The Commons defire a longer Continuance of the Seffion.

An. 22. James I. that his Majefty's Pleasure is to put an End to this Seffion on Saturday next; the 22d Inflant, within which fhort Time, neither that House nor theirs can perfect those Businesses which are begun; they do humbly defire their Lordships to join with them in Petition to his Majefty for a longer Time.'

First, ' For that the King permitting them to name their own Treasurers, for the Sublidy this Parliament, much longer Time hath been spent in that Bill than usual, because they had no Precedent for the fame; whereby many good Bills were delayed.'

Secondly, ' For that the Bufinels of free Trade, which had been long difordered, had brought many general Complaints unto them; not only by the Merchants, but by the Clothiers and those of the meaner Sort. Which, if they have longer Time, they hope fo to accommodate, that it shall be advantageous, to the King's Profit, and give Content both to the Poor and to the Rich."

Thirdly, ' The Bill for the Subfidy of the Clergy was but newly come into their Houfe, and their own Bill of Subfidy is yet to have another Reading."

Lastly, 'For that they understand that their Lordfhips have fo many Bills, and other Matters of Weight, as yet depending, that they doubt whether they can perform them in fo fhort a Time. Wherefore, and to hold that fair Correspondence, which hath hitherto continued between both Houfes, they make this earnest Request; not intending to entertain any new Matters, but those, only, which are begun and ready to be finished.'

The Mellengers being withdrawn, his Highness the Prince fignified unto the Houfe, ' That at his coming from the King, his Majefty told him that he was determined to end this Selfion on Saturday next; and commanded his Highness fo to answer them who should move to have that Time prolonged. But what his Majefty would do therein, when he fhall hear these Reasons, his Highness faid he knew not.' Whereupon, the Houfe humbly befought befought the Prince to move his Majesty to give 2An. 22. James I. longer Day.

The Meffengers were then called in and anfwered, 'That the Lords do take in good Parts their Willingness to hold good Correspondency with them, and have weighed the general and particular Reasons expressed, for a longer Day of Continuance of this Session: But they have received such absolute Directions from his Majesty for the End of this Session, at a Day now so near at Hand, that they cannot give the Commons any Hope of obtaining a longer.'

'Yet, confidering that his Majefty knew not of these Reasons, their Lordships have entreated the Prince to move him for a longer Day. What this will produce they know not; wherefore their Lordschips will hasten the Dispatch of their own Businels, against the Day which his Majefty hath limited, as much as they can, and they doubted not but the Commons would do the like.'

May 20. The Lords now feemed to be in Hafte to expedite the Bills in their House, and the Commons sent up five Bills from theirs, along with this Message: 'That they defire a Conference with their Lordships, touching a Petition to the King for removing all justly suffected Recufants from their Offices of Trust.'

Anfwer was returned, 'That they would meet them prefently; but, before the Lords went to this agrees to at the Conference, the Prince acquainted the Houfe, Requet of the That his Majefty was content to prolong this Sef-Prince. fion unto Saturday, May 29, fo that his Highnefs would engage himfelf that neither of the two Houfes would entertain any new Matter in the mean Time; and that he fhould know, first, the Minds of the Commons therein.' It was agreed, That this should be intimated to them at the Meeting.

The fame Day a Report was made by the Archbifhop of Canterbury of what paffed at this Conference; he told the Houfe, That the Commons Vol. VI. X pro-

An. 22. James I. produced an humble Petition to the King, defiring the Lords to join with them in it, as heretofore. 1624. Which Fetition was read in these Words:

This Petition being read, the Lords deferred the Debate thereon, for that Time, becaufe the Day was far fpent; but gave an Anfwer to the Meffengers who attended for the fame, That they would confider of the Petition, and would fend them an Anfwer when they were refolved of it. The Commons returned the Lords Thanks, and faid, their Houfe had made an Order to receive no more Bills, or entertain any more new Bufinefs this Seffion. The fame Order was made by the Lords.

May 21. This Day the Petition of the Commons, for difplacing Popi/b Recufants, was read a fecond Time; and, after fome Debate, an Anfwer was refolved on to be given to the Commons about it. Accordingly a Meffage was fent by the Lords to defire another Conference; and, in the mean Time, the Anfwer was put into Writing, and read to the Houfe in bæc Verba:

That we take great Contentment in the Con- The Answer of

we doubt not but shall continue to the End.

• That what hath been defired in your Petition,

⁶ concerning Popifs Recufants, is wholly allowed ⁶ and approved of ; our Hearts do go along with what is prenounded by the Commons

⁶ what is propounded by the Commons.

An. 22. James I. 1624.

⁶ But that our Way in Judicature, as they know, ⁶ is, to proceed upon Oath, and to hear the Party's ⁶ Defence, which the Shortness of Time in this ⁶ Cafe, can by no Means permit. That if we ⁶ fhould publickly go in a Committee of both ⁶ Houfes to the King, we fhould ftrike deep into ⁶ the Reputation of the Parties concern'd, and give ⁶ his Majefty, and the whole World, Occasion to ⁶ think; That we did both judge and condemn be-⁶ fore we had heard.

• Notwithstanding, we do incline, if they like • of it, to move his Highness the Prince, privily to • acquaint his Majefty with this as with a Matter of • State; not doubting but that his Majefty will • take it into his grave and prudent Confideration; • fo that fuch Effect, as we trust, is like to follow, • as will give us all good Contentment.

This Anfwer was approved of by the other Houle, at the Conference; who rendered their most humble Thanks to the Prince, 'That he was pleased, as of himself, to intimate their Requests unto his Majesty; and that they hoped it would receive a gracious Answer.'

Nothing was now done in either House for feveral Days, but expediting the Bills they had before them. On the 24th of May, the Bill for granting an Aid to his Majesty of three entire Subfidies, and three Fifteenths and Tenths, was fent up by the Commons; and, the next Day, on the fecond Reading of this Bill, before it was committed, the Judges were appointed by the House to confider of fome Points of Judicature in the faid Bill, and to deliver their Resolutions about it.

May 26. The Lord Prefident of the Council reported to the House, That the Judges had given in their Resolutions, concerning some Questions arising on the Bill of Substitutes; which was read in the House as follows:

The Subfidy Bill paffed by the Commons. ⁶ Refolved, by general Confent, That, upon An. 22. James I. the Perufal of feveral Parts of the Act of Subjidy, ^{1624.} they do not conceive that there is any Thing therein, which may impeach or blemith the Privilege or nions on fome Power of the Higher Houfe, or add to the Privi-Claufes thereof, leges of the Lower, in any Thing; fave, in the in point of Priparticular Cafe in queftion, and in no other Cafe, of the like or other Nature; and that for thefe Reafons:

• First, Becaufe the Judicature, in this particular Cafe, is not affumed, by the way of Privilege, to beget a Precedent, but, by way of an Act; which taketh Effect, not only by themfelves, but by the Lords, and by the Royal Affent of the King.'

• Secondly, Becaufe the Ground of this Act proceeded, originally, from the gracious Proposition of his Majefty himfelf (e), and that Proposal is mentioned in the Act itself; fo that there is nothing to be drawn from this Act to ground the like on hereafter, unless it be upon the fame Proposition from the King, with the Confent of the Lords, who must fully affent unto it.

• Thirdly, The Words, That the Lords fhall have Power by virtue of this AST, are not privative to any former Power of the Lords, and are convenient in this particular Cafe, where the Offence is new; for, before this ACt, there was neither Punifhment for this Offence, nor the Offence to be punifhed.'

• Fourthly, The referving the Punishment of those, who, at this Time, are Affistants to the Higher House, is no Derogation to that House; for they have no inherent Right of being Affistants, as the Lords have of being Members of the House; and this is done by Bill wherein the Lords join.'

• Fiftbly, For that the Lords are join'd with the Commons in the Commiffion, the Account is to be joint; and therefore it is not pollible to fever them from the Commons, becaufe the Account would be lame and imperfect.'

• All which the Judges humbly fubmit to their Lordfhips Judgment.

These Resolutions were approved of by the House; but the Lords thought fit to enter a Protestation in their Journal Book, before the Subfidy Bill was read a third Time; which was to this Purpose:

The Proteflation of the Lords in confequence thereof.

Forafmuch as this prefent All of Sublidy from the Temporality, is, in many Things, different from the antient ufual Form of a Sublidy Bill; and becaufe fomething contained in the faid All, may, in Time to come, be construed either to leffen the Jurifdiction of the one House, or add to the Jurifdiction of the other, more than bath been ufed, or heretofore admitted: Therefore the Lords, Spiritual and Temporal, in the Higher House of Parliament now affembled, do hereby declare and pronounce, and caufe this Protestation to be entered on Record in the Rolls of this Parl ament.

That no Words, Matter, or Thing, in this Act contained, Iball hereafter be taken or confirued to give or take any Jurifdiction, Power, Privilege, or Authority, to or from either of the faid Houfes of Parliament; but that either of them Iball, feverally and dividedly, hold, use, and enjoy such and the fame Liberties, Privileges, Powers, and Jurifdictions as, beretofore, they, or either of them, respectively had; any Thing in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

It may not be amifs, in this Place, to look back into the Journals of the Commons, this Seffion, for the first Motions of a Supply in that House. We are told that the King's Demands to support the State, in case of a War with Spain, &c. on the Breach of the Treaties, was a Supply of fix Subjidies and twelve Fisteentis. A mighty Sum to be raised all at once on the Subject.

Account of the Debate on the m Subfi ty Bill in fi the Commons.

March 19. The Commons went upon this Demand, and a very long Debate is entered in the fubfequent Journal of this Seffion, altogether too tedious for this Defign. In one Speech of Sir Edward Coke's, is a Calculation what the whole Sum of fuch a Grant would amount to. He effimated that one Subfidy from the Laity would come to 70,000 l. and a Fifteenth to 30,000 l. a Subfidy from from the Clergy to 20,000 l. the Total of which, An. 22. James I. 1624. multiplied by the Number of them demanded, would amount to 900,000 l. almost a Million. which was more, he faid, than all England could raife, with any Conveniency.

After almost two Days Debate on this Matter, the Houfe came to the following Refolution upon the Queftion, without one negative Voice, ' That after his Majefty shall have been pleafed to declare himfelf for the utter Diffolution of the two Treaties, for the Marriage and the Palatinate; the Houfe, in Purfuit of their Advice given to his Majefty, and towards the Support of the War which is likely to enfue; and, more particularly, for these four Points proposed by his Majesty, namely, the Defence of this Realm; the fecuring of Ireland; the Affiftance of our Neighbours, the States of the United Provinces, and other his Majefty's Allies; with the fitting out of his Majefty's Royal Navy, will grant, for the prefent, three Subfidies, with three Fifteenths and Tenths, to be levied in fuch Time and Manner as they shall be pleased afterwards to appoint; and to be paid into the Hands, and expended by the Remarkable Direction of fuch Commiffioners, as thall hereafter the Treasurers be agreed on in this prefent Seffion of Parliament.' were to be no-And, by a fublequent Refolution, Nem. Con. the minated by Parfame Day, it was agreed, ' That thefe three Subfidies, Fifteenths and Tenths, shall be paid within the Space of one Year after the King hath declared himfelf (f).

Upon the Delivery of this Proposition to the King, it was agreed to by him; afterwards the Treaties were broke, as hath been mentioned, and the Commons went upon framing a Bill to raife the Supply and name Commissioners to be the Managers of it: Which being a Thing hitherto unprecedented, and what no crown'd Head ever granted before, occasioned the Dispute in the Upper House before related. ---- But to go on with the Lords Fournals:

An. 22. James 1. May 26. The House continued to proceed with the National Bufinefs, and to anfwer private Petitions and Appeals till the Day before this Seffion was to end ; when, after remitting fome Fines, impofed by the Houfe on Offenders, and leffening others, the Earl Marshal, from the Committee for searching Precedents to fuftain the Privileges, &c. of the Houfe, made the following Report;

> ' How far the Privileges of the Nobility do clearly extend, concerning the Freedom of their Servants and Followers from Arrefts.'

· To all their menial Servants and those of their Family, and also those employed, necessarily and properly, about their Effates as well as their Perfons."

. This Freedom to continue twenty Days, before and after every Sellion; in which Time the Lords may conveniently go home to their Houfes in the most remote Parts of the Kingdom.'

' That all the Lords, after the End of this Seffion, be very careful in this Point, and remember the Ground of this Privilege; which was, only, in regard they fhould not be diftracted, by the Trouble of their Servants, from attending the ferious Affairs of the Kingdom; that therefore they will not pervert that Privilege to the public Injustice of the Kingdom, which was given them, chiefly, that the whole Realm might, in this High Court, draw the clear Light of Juffice from them. In which Cafe, every one ought rather to keep far within, than any way exceed their due Limits.'

. That hereafter, before any Perfon be fent for in this kind, the Lord whom he ferves shall, either by himfelf or by his Letter, or by fome Meffage, certify the Houfe upon his Honour, that the Perfon arrefled is within the Limits of the Privilege before exprefied."

' And, for the Particulars, they must be left to the Judgment of the Houfe, as the Cafe fnall come in queftion; wherein the Houfe wants no Means, as well by Oath as without, to find out the true Nature of the Servant's Quality in his Lord's Service. Thereupon, if it be adjudged by the House contra-

James I, not think it ftrange, if, in fuch a Cafe, both himfelf fuffer Reproof, as the Houfe fhall think fit, and his Servant receive no Benefit by the Privilege, but pay the Fees; becaufe the Juffice of the Kingdom muft be preferred before any perfonal Respect, and none to be spared that shall offend after so fair a Warning.

⁶ Ordered to be obferved accordingly, with this Alteration, viz. This Freedom to begin with the Date of the Writ of Summons, and to continue twenty Days after every Seffion of Parliament.⁹

The Earl Marshal also reported, That the Lords of the Committee had thought this Order proper concerning Judicature, viz.

May 29. His Majefty being placed on the Throne and the Lords in their Robes, the Commons, with their Speaker, Sir Thomas Crew, were admitted into the Royal Prefence. The Speaker came up with great Reverence and low Obeifance to the King. and, being at the Bar, declared,

The Speaker's Speech to the King at the Clofe , of the Seffion.

Hat God, to his own great Glory, had brought this Sellion of the Parliament, fo happily begun, to fo happy an End, that both 6 Houfes, and every particular Member thereof, hath given their willing Affent, even with one Voice, unto the Advice which his Majefty was pleafed fo low to defcend as to demand of them. As there was not a Hammer heard in the build-' ing of the Houfe of God, fo, in this great Bufinefs, there was not a negative Voice, nor any · Jarring amongst them; but their Time was ' wholly spent in the Business of Parliament, in · which they had prepared many Bills profitable for ' the Common-Wealth, and fhewed the feveral Natures of those Bills; fome for the Service of God, and Reftraint of Recufants; fome to redrefs the Enormities of the Common-Wealth; others of his Majefty's Grace and Bounty to his · People; and fome concerning the Prince's High-" nefs touching his own Lands; and others to fettle Strife in particular Effates: All which do wait for ' and humbly defire his Majefty's Royal Affent. . And they do render him humble Thanks for their antient Privileges, which they fully enjoyed this Parliament, [and, in particular, for their Freedom from Ar-" refts] (g) and their to often Access unto his Majefty's Prefence ; and more efpecially for his Ma-' jefty's general, large, liberal, and free Pardon, fhewing the Benefit thereof, and reciting the Par-' ticulars. He also prefented the Bill of three entire Subsidies, and three Fifteenths and Tenths granted this Seffion; and declared the Chearful-' nefs of the Grant thereof. And, making his earnest Prayers unto Alinighty God, to direct his Majefty's Heart to make his own Sword his Sheriff to put his Son-in-Law in poffession of the · Palatinate, the antient Inheritance of his Royal Grand-Children, he ended; humbly craving Pardon for himfelf and his own Errors committed • this Seffion."

To which the King gave the following Anfwer(b).

Mr. Speaker, and you the Gentlemen of the Lower Houfe,

I Will begin with the End of Mr. Speaker's Speech, His Majefty's which was a Prefentation of the Subfidies, and Answer. the Thanks he gave me for allowing you your Privileges and Liberties, together with the free Pardon of his own Weaknefs.

The Subsidies are granted to my Grand-Children, whose Case, I must confess, is somewhat desperate: I pray God I may see that good End thereof that I wish, for I know not how it may please God to dispose of these Things, whether peaceably, or by Force, it may please Vol. VI. Y him

AD. 22. James 1. him to repay unto me the Wrong done unto them. But. as I faid at first, fo I pray again, I desire not to live; nay, I wish to God never to have been born, rather than fuch a Blot should lie on me, as not hope to fee'a Restoration of the Palatinate, or at least a Posfibility of it, before God close up mine Eyes. And I have sworn, that all you have allowed for the Businefs, shall only and wholly be employed for that End; and, as God shall judge my Soul, I never had any other. Meaning, if I had not been bound and limited thereunto. But as, on the other Side, I affure my felf, that, as your felves will confess, here is nothing given for the Relief of my Estate, which all Parliaments were wont to confider of ; especially one that has lived in that Necessity, and has had less Supply from my People, than any of my Predeceffors, I know not how many bundred Times before : So I affure you, on the other Side, you shall have a new Seffion in the Beginning of next Winter, that then you may meet together, and confider how to supply my particular Wants; and if you, will be careful in this, as I affure my felf you will, 'I will only employ it to the Advancement of fuch Government among you, as shall become a King, and to the Increase more and more of the Service of God, and restoring the Patrimony of my Children.

For the other Point, I have Reason, and truly, without Complement I do it, to thank you for my own Person, and your particular Behaviour to me at this Time; concerning which I must needs fay, that in all this Seffion, neither in any Days was it heard of; and, I think it is without Example, that ever Lower House fat with that continual Obedience to my Perfon and Honour; for, in all your Actions, you have given more true Demonstrations hereof, than ever was given herctofore by Lower Houle: And for Matter of Scandal, it was no fooner moved among you, but it was dasted; avoiding all Occasions that might be a Blot of Offence between me and my People; for which, as I faid before, fo now again, I thank you, without further Gomplement; and if it shall please you, when you shall return, to go on this Way, this Parliament 7 ··· Iball Ball be crown'd with the greatest Happiness that ever An. 22. James I. 1624. was held by a King.

But I must admonish you of some few Things, and that I pray you take in good Part. And that as touching Grievances, Mr. Sollicitor made mention of fome Yesterday, when I was present, as I faid to some of you; so now speak I to all of you, that you be not too ready to hunt out Grievances, where there is no Caufe; for I may fay this, and fay truly, that I never faw Parliament that had leffer and smaller Matter of. Grievances than you have had; I find most of them to be flight ones, which indeed makes my Heart jouial.

Now, as concerning your Grievances, be careful to present such as shall be general touching the Common-Wealth, Trading, and Corporations; and as it lies not in your Power to raife and create Grievances, but upon just Cause; so again you ought not to conclude or determine, and remedy, without first letting me have the Hearing and Allowing of it. I will go thro' all your Grievances, and weigh them fully; and, when I have done, you shall have a clear Answer to them, fuch a one as shall be agreeing to Justice, and convenient to meet with the present Necessities of my People. No Courtier's particular Good Shall be preferred to the Subjects Requests in general; and herein I will . not take Advice of myfelf, but I will canvafs the Bufinefs with the Help of my Privy Council, and the Judges Counfel of the Law. But now, amongst other Grievances, I must tell you some of my Grievances: One is concerning the Manner and Form of Buildings here in London; you have made a Grievance of it, and I am justly grieved at it; for, I protest to God, it hath been my only Aim ever fince I came into England, to make the City of London, the Metropolis, the Mother City of England; that I may fay with the Emperor, I had it ftraminium, but I leave it marmoreum. I care not for the Grudges of many particular Men, that are in very deed a Shame to this Kingdom. I marvel much you should condemn the Commission, without hearing the Commissioners : If they be too Arist in their Points, I pray you complain to me, and I will redrefs it, and give you Eafe. God Y 2 knows

An. 22. James 1. knows I have no other End therein, but the Welfare. 1624. and Honour of the Kingdom.

Another Caufe of Grievance is concerning Dr. Anion, Master of Corpus Christi College in Oxford, whom you have called in question touching Church Matters: You had all of you, at the Beginning of this Parliament, taken the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, whereby you have acknowledged me Supreme Head in Ecclesiastical Matters. I have referred that Matter to the Bishop of Winchester, who is Visitor of that College, upon whose Learning, Gravity, and Piety, I will rely in this Cafe.

Another Grievance of mine is, that you have condemned the Patents of the Apothecaries in London. I myfelf did devife that Corporation, and do allow it. The Grocers, who complain of it, are but Merchants; the Myflery of these Apothecaries were belonging to Apothecaries, wherein the Grocers are unskilful; and therefore I think it fitting they should be a Corporation of themselves. They bring home rotten Wares from the Indies, Persia, and Greece; and here, with their Mixtures, make Waters, and feil such as belong to Apothecaries, and think no Man muss controut them, because they are not Apothecaries.

Another Grievance is concerning Books feditious and heretical. It is a Shame that England should be the only Place in the World to honour such Books, both Popith on the one Side, and Puritan on the other: But, for this, I will provide there shall be such Overfeers, that may prevent their coming into Print, and those that are in Print already, to suppress them. No Man shall be more destrous to fulfil your Destre in thus Point than I will.

And laftly, touching my Patents in general, I am grieved that you have called them in, and condemned them upon so short Examination. I confess I might have passed fome upon sale Suggestion and wrong Information; but you are not to recall them before they be examined by the Judges. And here I have heard it complained of by divers of my learned Counsel in the Law, that you will, from Time to Time, delaying the the Patentees, still call for Patents without just An. 22. James I. Ground; and fo put the Subjects still to more Charge. 1624. and so confequently put a Scorn upon my Patents.

Therefore I advise you to be careful, that you have a good Ground before you call for your Patents, that you do not defraud the Patentees ; hereupon falls out that which I spake to the Face of many here present, The Lawyers, of all the People of the Land, are the greateft Grievance to my Subjects; for when the Cafe is good for neither Party, yet it proves good and beneficial to them : Therefore this I fay to you, when you judge of Patents, hear patiently, fay not prefently 'tis against the Law, for Patents are not to be judged unlawful by you.

I must first believe myself and my Council, and then you are to give your Opinions of the Conveniences that may enfue thereupon. And now I pray you take in good Part my Thanks and Admonitions both; and I affure myfelf you will take my fatherly Admonitions, as well as my Thanks, in good Part, as you ought to do from a King, who ever was, and fill will be the Father of your Country.

. Then the Lord Keeper fpake to the Particulars And the Lord of the Speaker's Speech, and, by his Majefty's Com- Keeper's. mand, approved them all, alluding the general Confent of both Houses [in their Advice to his Majesty] to the Septuagint, directed by the Holy Ghoft; and, touching the Speaker's Defire for the King's Affent to the Bills paft both Houses, he faid, the Royal Affent is proper to the Lawgiver; and fhewed, that it is beft for the People that this is in his Majefty's Power, and not in themfelves; for the King knoweth what is best to be granted unto his People, as may appear by the Petition that Bathsheba made to King Solomon, to give unto Adonijah Abilhag to Wife; which had Solomon granted, he had given Adonijab Means to usurp the Kingdom, contrary to Bathfheba's Meaning; and fuch is his Majefty's Intent this Day, for fuch Bills which he will not pass. That his Majesty hath given his Confent to all the Bills of Grace, and to the Bill Y 3 of

An. 22. James 1. of the Continuance of fome Statutes, and Repeal of others, fo neceffary for the Good of the People. That his Majefty accepteth in good part their Thanks for his general Pardon, which he hath fo freely granted unto his Subjects: But his efpecial Command is, That those that are in Office do ftrictly look to the Execution of the Laws againft Recufants. The Subfidies his Majefty gracioufly accepteth, and therefore imitates not the Story in Macrobius, of one who had all his Debts paid, and instead of Thanks, answered, mibi nibil: Tho' this be given to the Palatinate, his Majefty interpreteth it as given to himfelf, and rendreth to you all hearty Thanks for the fame. [As for your own Request, Mr. Speaker, his Majesty holds it impertinent; there needs no Pardon where no Error is committed.]

"The Lord Keeper having ended his Speech, the Clerk of the Crown flood up and read the Titles of the Bills paffed both Houfes; and the Clerk of the Parliament read his Majefty's Anfwer to each Bill, which being done, his Majefty remembred the breaking up of three [former] Parliaments together, and the happy Conclusion of this Selfion; and put the Commons again in mind. that at their next Meeting they do fo carry themfelves, that this Parliament may be as happily continued to the End.'

After all which was concluded, the Lord Keep-The Parliament er of the Great Seal, by his Majefty's Command, prorogued this prefent Parliament to the 2d Day of November next enfuing. At which Time it was again prorogued, by Commission, to the 16th Day of February following (i); from thence to the 15th of March; and, laftly, to the 20th Day of April, which was in the Year 1625 (k). Befides the long Affair of the Spanif Match, the Bufinefs of the Palatinate, the Trial of the Lord The Death of Treafurer, Sc. which took up much Time; fuch the King. a Number of public and private Acts were made and paffed in this Parliament, as fearce ever was done by any before. The printed Statutes only mention 35, Ruftworth, together, makes them 73; but, in a Catalogue of the Acts, at the End of the Lords fournals, for this Reign, are the Titles of 118. This may be fome way accounted for, becaufe no Acts at all were paffed in the laft Parliament; that Bufinefs being put a Stop to by its fudden Diffolution; fo that this took up what the other had left unfinifhed; and, both, together, made the Number grow to fo great a Height.

There is no Neceffity to enter into the Particulars of any of these Acts, the most material of them being already printed; except the laft Bill of Subfidies, which, by the King's extraordinary Conceffions, was made to difficult as to puzzle both the Houfes in drawing it up and carrying it through the ufual Forms. Never any King or Queen of England, before, did give Leave for the Parliament to name and appoint their own Treasurers and Commiffioners for difburfing the Money to be raifed by a Grant. By what we find in the foregoing Proceedings, this Supply was all defigned to go for the Recovery of the Palatinate; and the King's voluntary Offer of putting it out of his own Power to touch a Penny of it, evidently fhews that he did not flight his own Descendents, fo much as fome Authors have, very ungeneroufly and unnaturally, reprefented.

Upon the whole, we fhall enter no farther into the Character of this King; but leave it to be determined by every Reader's Judgment, on the different Transactions, throughout his whole Reign, between him and his Parliaments. The Republican Party, which grew to fuch a Height in the next

I May thank God, that the Business to be treated on at this Time is of such a Nature, that it needs no Eloquence to fet it forth; for I am neither able to do it, nor doth it fland with my Nature to fpend much Time in Words. It is no new Busines, being already happily begun by my Father of bleffed Memory, who is with God; therefore it needeth no Narrative: I hope in God you will go on to maintain it, as freely as you advised my Father to do it. It is true, he may feem to fome to have been flack to begin fo just and fo glorious a Work; but it was his Wildom that made him loth to begin a Work, untill he might find a Means to maintain it : But after that he faw how much he was abused in the Confidence he had with other States, and was confirmed by your Advice to run the Courfe we are in, with your Engagement to maintain it, I need not press to prove how willingly be took your Advice; for, the Preparations that are made, are better able to declare it. than I to fpeak it. The Affistance of those in Germany, the Fleet that is ready for Action, with the rest of the Preparations, which I have only followed my Father in, do sufficiently prove, that he entred, [not fuperficially, but really and heartily,] into this Action.

My Lords and Gentlemen, I hope that you do remember, that you were pleased to employ me to advile my Father, to break off those two Treaties that were on foot; so that I cannot fay, that I came bither a free unengaged Man., It is true, I came into this Business willingly and freely, I ke a young Man, and confequently rafily; out it was by your Interest, your Engagement: So that though it were done like a young Man, yet I cannot repent me of it, and I think none can blame me for it, knowing the Love and Fidelity you have [ever] born to your Kings; . . . : bav-having my felf, likewife, fome little Experience of your An. z. Charles I. Affections. I pray you remember, that this being my 1625. first Action, and begun by your Advice and Intreaty. what a great Dishonour it were [both] to you and me, if this Action, fo begun, should fail of that Affistance you are able to give me. Yet knowing the Constancy of your Love both to me and this Busines, I needed not to have faid this, but only to shew what Care and Senfe I have of your Honours and mine own. I must intreat you likewise to consider of the Times we are in, how that I must adventure your Lives (which I should be loth to do) should I continue you here long; and you must venture the Business, if you be flow in your Refolutions. Wherefore I hope you will take fuch grave [and wife] Counfel, as you will expedite what you have in-hand to do: Which will do me and yourfelves an infinite deal of Honour; you, in shewing your Love to me; and me, that I may perfect that Work which my Father hath fo happily begun. Last of all, because some malicious Men may, and, as I hear, have given out, that I am not fo true a Keeper and Maintainer of the true Religion that I profess; I affure you, that I may with St. Paul fay, that I have been train'd up at Gamaliel's Feet: And although I shall never be fo arrogant as to affume unto myfelf the reft, I shall fo far shew the End of it, that all the World may see, that no Man hath been, nor ever shall be more desirous to maintain the Religion 1 profess, than 1 shall be.

Now becaufe I am unfit for much fpeaking, I mean to bring up the Fashion of my Predecess, to have my Lord Keeper speak for me in most Things: Therefore I have commanded him to speak something unto you at this Time, which is more for Formality, than any great Matter he hath to say unto you.

Then the Lord Keeper, Williams,(b) added, 'That And the Lord' ' the King's main Reafon of calling the Parliament, Keeper's. ' befides

But Mr. Philips, in his Life of Bithop Williams, fays that his Lordfhip yet continued Lord Keeper; which is confirm'd by the Chronica Juridicialia, where we find that Sir Thomas Coventry was not appointed to that Office till the 1st of November 1625.

Recovery of the Palatinate, imposed on his Majefty by the late King his Father, and by themfelves, who brake off the two Treaties with Spain. Alfo to let them understand, That the

in one Centre, the Palatinate; and that the Subfidies granted in the last Parliament, are herein already spent, whereof the Account is ready, together with as such more of the King's own three Circumstances:

• First, The Time; all Europe being at this Day • as the Pool of Beth/eda, the first flirring of the • Waters must be laid hold on: Wherefore his Ma-• jefty defires them to beftow this [first] Meeting • on him, or rather on their Actions; and the • next shall be theirs, as soon, and as long as they • please, for Domestic Business.

Sir Thomas Crew, chofen / Speaker. The Journals of the Lords here affift us to fill up a Vacancy, in those of the other House and in Russian Abstract of the Speaker's Oration, on his being presented to the King for Approbation, and the Lord Keeper's Answer to it. The tormer-Authorities tell us, That, on June the aoth, the Commons presented Sir Thomas Crew, Kt. Sergeant Sergeant at Law; for their Speaker; who made An. 1. Charles I. his formal Excufe; but being confirm'd in his Office, he addreffed himfelf to the Throne in Words to this Effect:

" He first protested that he undertook the Office His Oration to of Speaker, in Obedience, only, to his Majefty; the Throne. he remembred the Proceedings in the laft most happy Parliament, in which it pleafed the late King; of famous Memory, to alk the Advice of his People; and expressed their Joy that God, who hath the Power of the Hearts of Kings, directed his Majefty, that now is, to proceed in the like Parliamentary Courfe. That, as a Woman forgets her Sorrow at the Birth of a Man-Child, fo they, when his Majefty was placed on his Father's Throne, had their Hopes, that as good King Hezekiah, was five and twenty Years of Age, and having a wife and great Council, when he began to reign, and, at his first Entrance, shewed his Zeal to God and his Care for Religion; fo his Majefty being of the fame Age, and having a faithful People to advise him, will maintain true Religion and the antient Laws, fo much effeemed in all Ages. In this, he faid, their Hopes were the greater, for that his Majefty begins with a Parliament, and remembers his Father's Charge to maintain our Religion. That it was God's merciful Power to bring his Majefty back out of Danger when he was in a ftrange Land. He expressed their Sorrow for his then Abfence, and exceeding great Joy at his fafe Return; and humbly befought his Majefty, That now God had put the Sword into his Hand, he would extend it for the Recovery of the Palatinate, fo diffionourably gotten and kept by hoftile Arms; which was antiently a Refuge for Religion; and not to fuffer those Locusts the Jefuits to eat up the good Things of this Land. He acknowledged, his Majefty's Stem to be lineally defcended from Lucius, the first British King that embraced the Gofpel; and concluded with the accustomed" Petitions for Freedom from Arrefts, Ceundo, fedendo, et redeundo, during this Parliament; for Freedom 5:1.1 of

An. I. Charles I. of Speech in their Confultations; not doubting but to confine themselves within the Limits of Duty and Modefty; Access to his Majefty on all needful Occasions; and a benign Interpretation of all their Actions, and of this his Speech in particular.'

The Lord Keeper's Anfwer.

The Lord Keeper, having first had Conference with the King, answered to this Effect: ' That his Majefty had amply accepted the Speaker's Obedience, tho' he refused his Sacrifice. That he remembred the laft Parliament to be happy; as it was fo accounted by the late King, fo effeemed by his Majefty, and fo it proved by the Event, in which the two Treaties with Spain were diffolved, and fo many gracious Laws enacted. It became the late King to to clofe his Government; in which Parliament, our prefent King being a principal Actor, he can never forget the Defires of the Commons nor the Wifhes of the Lords.'

" That his Majefty takes in good Part Mr. Speaker's Observation of the five Circumstances of his Entrance to the Crown; as that he began with a Parliament; that he came to us with Noble Blood. being lineally descended from the antient Britifb Kings;" that his Succeffion fweetned the Lofs of his glorious Father; that God was with him in a ftrange Land, and delivered him from thence; even as God was with Moles to be he always with his Majefty, to which let all fay Amen. And, laftly, . that his Majefty profefies the true Religion, it being the laft Bleffing his Father gave him to have a fpecial Care thereof. As Mr. Speaker recommends to his Majefty the Laws of the Land; fo he, alfo, recommends the fame to the Lawyers; that they ftudy the antient Laws, themfelves, and not the Abridgements. And whereas you reprefent to his Majefty that unjust Acquisition of the Palatinate, the Dishonour of our Nation, no Man can but be fenfible of his Majefty's Care for the Recovery thereof; he having given a lively Reprefentation of his Affection to it, himfelf, the other Day in this Place. He now hopes that ye who first drew. him him into this Action will give him fuch Supplies as An. 1. Charles I, will enable him to perform it."

⁶ And, as touching the Banishment of those Locufts the Priests and Jesuits, his Majesty commends that Saying of St. Ambrose, That the possest Man hath Interest in Religion. Yet, he defires you to trust him with the Manner thereof, and he will be careful to give you good Satisfaction of his Zeal therein. Lastly, as touching Mr. Speaker's Petitions for your Privileges, his Majesty grants them all without any Limitation; knowing well that yourselves will punish the Abuses thereof.'

The first Business done, in the House of Com-mons, was to appoint a solemn Fast amongst them-appoint a Fast felves (c). It had been the Cuftom in feveral late Par-amongst themliaments to begin in the fame Manner, but now it felves. was, more particularly, urged, on account of the general Plague which was round them. The next Day, June 22d, a Committee of Privileges and Elections being appointed, Sir Benjamin Rudyard Motion for a good got up and fpoke to this Effect : ' That the late Harmony be-Diffaftes taken between the late King and his Par-tween King and liaments were the chief Caufe of all the Miferies of Parliament. liaments, were the chief Caufe of all the Miferies of the Kingdom. was the very Beginning of the new King's Reign, in which there can be no Grievances as yet; thirdly, because the Petition against Grievances, in the last Parliament of the late King, was preferred too late; only to petition for an Answer to these. For, adds he, though the Prince is gone the King liveth; no Interregnum.

The reft of this Days Debates turned, chiefly, on raifing a Supply, and the old Topic of putting the Laws in Execution against Jefuits; Popilo Priefts, &c. The Sollicitor General acquainted the Houfe, 'That the King had taken Care of their Grievances preferred the last Parliament; and, at any one Day the Houfe would affign, Satisfaction would be given them therein.'

The Plague fill raging more and more, in and about London, made the Members of both Houses very uneafy in their Situation at Westminster; fome of them taking Notice, that the Bell was tolling every Minute, whilf they were speaking. At the Petition of both Houses, the King proclaimed a general Fast, all over the Kingdom, on a certain Day; and his Majesty, in Person, went with the two Houses to Prayers and Sermon, at St. Margaret's Church in Westminster.

July 4. Sir Edward Coke reported the King's Anfwer to the Commons Petition, about a Recefs from Parliament, at this fickly Seafon: 'That the King had taken their Safety, which he valued more than his own, into Confideration; and when he fhould hear the Commons were ready with their Bills, for he would not haften them in any Thing, he would put an End to this Seffion.'

The next Day, the Bill for granting two entire The Bill of Tonnage, becaufe granted for one ed for one Year, whereas, former Grants to his Year only. Majefty's Predeceffors were for Life, the Houfe of Lords would not pass it. It was alfo declared, ' That the Intention and Refolution of the Houfe was, as in the Act of Subjidy, 21. Jac. that all Charges mentioned there, are to be deducted out of

of the Subfidies and Fifteenths, and to be paid ac-An. z. Charles I. cording to that Act.' 1625.

July 7. An Affair came on in the House of Commons, which must make a great Noife at that Time. A Complaint had been made there againft one Dr. Montagu, for printing and publishing a Complaint a-Book, called An Appeal to Cæfar. The Recorder gainft Dr. Monof London, one of the Committee appointed to ex- tagu. amine into this Matter, made a Report, ' That the Archbishop of Canterbury had centured the faid Dr. Montagu for a former Book (f), and had told him, that tho' there were fome Things in it which might receive a favourable Interpretation; yet there were others in it not of that Nature. In which the Committee all agreed, That the Archbishop had done what was fitting : But they were of Opinion, That there were many Things-contained in the Doctor's Books directly contrary to the Articles of Religion established by Parliament; as that the Church of Rome was vera Christi Ecclesia, & Sponsa Christi; and that the faid Church eadem Fundamenta Dostrinæ E Sacramentorum nititur: That the Committee held this fecond Book as factious and feditious, tending manifeftly to the Difhonour of the late King. and the Diffurbance of both Church and State. For the first, he denies that Arminius was the first that infected Leyden with Errors and Schifms: That the Synod of Dort, fo honoured by the late King, was flighted by him ; calls it for infecus, and partial; he knows not what Ends they had, nor cares for them : He directs his Book to the prefent King, and calls it Appello Cafarem, and yet fays the Pope is not Antichri/lus; which is contrary to what the late King himfelf had wrote to all Christian Princes. The Committee think that there is enough in this Book to put a Jealoufy between the King and his wellaffected Subjects. Says there are fome amongst us that defire an Anarchy, and means the Puritans, whom yet he hath not defined. He plainly inti-VOL. VI. 17 mates

He respects Bellarmine, but flighted Calvin, Beza, Perkins, Whitaker, and Reynolds. In his Book he much difcountenances God's Word, difgraces Lectures and Lecturers, and Preaching itfelf; nay, even reading the Bible. That never a Saint-feeming, Biblebearing, hypocritical Puritan was a better Patriot than himfelf. Upon the whole, That the Frame of the Book was to encourage Popery; in maintaining the Papifls to be the true Church, and that they differ not from us in any fundamental Point. If therefore they hold us Heretics, and not to be faved, and we hold the contrary of them, who will not think it fafer for us to be in their Church than in ours? The Papifts read, and commend this Book to others to be read; whereas they fuffer none of ours to be read amongst them. Lastly, He had, done an Injury to that House in two Points: That when he knew his first Book was there questioned, and referred to the Archbishop of Canterbury for Cenfures, he prints a new Book worfe than the former. And whereas a Petition had been preferred to this House by one Yates and Ward, he fays they are Puritans, altho' they have fubscribed the Articles; and to revile them for this, is a Reflection upon the Houfe.'

Upon the Question, it was refolved, That, at their The King inter- next Meeting, the Lords should be acquainted with pofes in his Fathefe Books, and a Conference to be prayed with vour their Lordships about them: Likewife for a Touch, as it is termed, to commit him to the Cuftody of the Sergeant at Arms, to answer his Contempt in the next Seffion. But the King fending a Meflage to the Houfe, that Dr. Montagu, being his Servant and Chaplain in Ordinary, he had taken the Caufe into his own Hand; withed they would enlarge him, and that he would take Care to give the Houfe Satisfaction in it; the Doctor, upon giving in Bail of 2000 l. was difcharged out of Cuftody.

This

This was the most material Bufiness the Com-An. I. Charles L 1625. mons went upon, in the first Session of this Parliament : Nor was there any Thing done, worth Notice, by the Lords, except the Introduction into that House of John Earl of Clare, Oliver Earl of Bolingbroke, Francis Earl of Westmoreland, William Lord Vifcount Say and Seale, Fames Lord Ley, Lord High Treasurer of England (g), and Edward Lord Conway, Secretary of State. They also join'd in a Petition to the King with the Commons, about Matters of Religion: To which his Majefty aniwered, 'That he was very glad to find the Par-His Majefty's · liament fo forward in Religion ; and affured them Petition concern-" that they fhould find him equally fo: But thating Religion. • their Petition being long, the Anfwer to it muft ' be deferred to another Opportunity.'

Fuly the IIth, the Day that both the Houses defired a Receis, on account of the Contagion, after a Motion to that Purpofe, the Commons ordered, • That their Houfe fhould be called over the third Day of the next Meeting, and those Members that were absent should incur the Censure of the House." Afterwards, being informed by the Lords, that a Commission was come to them to pass the Bills, and adjourn the Houfes, the Speaker went up with the reft; and, upon prefenting the Subfidy Bill, which, he faid, was the first Fruits of their Love. the Lord Conway, Secretary of State, fpoke to this Purpofe; 'He fignified the King's gracious Ac- Lord Conway receptance of the Bill of two Subfidies; yet, that the prefents the State of foreign Affairs. He reminded them that the late King was provoked beyond his Nature, to undertake a War for the Recovery of his Children's antient Patrimony; that the Charges of this War appeared, by Computation, to amount unto 700,000 l.a Year; to support the Netherlands, and to prevent the Emperor's Defigns of concluding with the Princes of Germany, utterly to exclude the Pal/grave, he levied an Army under Count Mansfield; the Kings of Den-22 mark

The Lord Keeper then told the Houfes, ' That his Majefty had received their Petition about Religion, and had an fwered it, in fome Meafure, before ; but now he had done it to the full;' which Peti-The Parliament tion and Anfwer will appear in the Sequel. Afteradjourned to Ox- wards the two Houfes adjourned (the Lords according to the King's Commission, but the Commons of themselves) to the first of August next, at Oxford.

The Contagion still raging very fore, the Receipt of the King's Exchequer was removed to Richmond; and all the Fairs, within 50 Miles of London, were prohibited, to prevent a more general Infection. During this fhort Receis an Affair happened, which occafioned much Difguft against the Prime Minister, the Duke of Buckingham. This Nobleman loft no Ground in lofing his old Mafter, King James; for, if poffible, he was a greater Favourite with the Son and Succeffor, than ever he had been with the Father: His Popularity, however, had begun to fall off fome Time; and all the Reputation he had gained, in his Recital of his Conduct in Spain, as mentioned in the laft Reign, was blafted by fome Sufpicions that were entertained of that Affair, and his Mifmanagement of the Administration ever fince.

The religious War in France was now very warm; the Town of Rochell was in the Hands of the Protestants, and the French King preparing to befiege it by Sea and Land, fome Ships of the Navy Royal of England, with their Complements of Men, were lent to the French for that Purpofe: But their Crews abfolutely refufed to fight against People of their own Religion; and a Tumult began amongft them, in which they got up their Anchors and fet Sail for England, faying, They would rather be hang'd at home, than be Slaves to the French, and do Hurt to their Brethren. The Duke ordered Admiral Admiral Pennington to go back with the Fleet, An. 1. Charles I. which he did; but still all the Companies declined the Service, and actually left their Ships before they would fubmit to fuch Orders. This Affair happening in the Interval of the Recess of Parliament, gave the Duke's Enemies greater Scope to execute their Defigns againft him.

On the first of August the Parliament met at Oxford; and, on the fourth, the Lords and Commons were commanded to attend the King, in the Great Hall at Christ-Church; where he fpake to them as followeth:

My Lords, and you of the Commons,

WE all remember, that, from your Defires and The King's Advice, my Father, now with God, brake off Speech to them. thole two Treaties with Spain that were then in hand : Well you then forefaw, that, as well for regaining my disposses of Brother's Inheritance, as home Defence, a War was likely to fucceed; and that as your Counfels had led my Father into it, fo your Affistance, in a Parliamentary Way, to pursue it, should not be wanting. That Aid you gave him by Advice, was for Succour of his Allies, the guarding of Ireland and the home Part, Supply of Munition, preparing and fetting forth of his Navy. A Council you thought of, and appointed for the War, and Treasurers for isfuing of the Monies : And, to begin this Work of your Advice, you gave Three Subfidies, Fifteenths, and Tenths; which, with Speed, were levied, and, by Direction of that Council of War, (in which the Preparation of this Navy was not the least) disbursed.

It pleased God, at the Entrance of this Preparation, (by your Advice begun) to call my Father to his Mercy, whereby I entered as well to the Care of your Design, as 'his Crown. I did not then, as Princes do, of Custom and Formality re-assemble you, but that, by your further Advice and Aid, I might be able to proceed in that which, by your Counfel, my Father was engaged in. Your Love to me, and Forwardness to further those Affairs, you expressed by a Grant of Two Subfidies, yet ungathered; altho' I must aflure. Z 3

An. 1. Charles I. fure you, by my felf and others, upon Credit taken up, and aforehand disburfed; but all far too short, as yet, to set forth the Navy now preparing; [as I have lately found by Estimate of those of Care and Skill employed about it. Before you could be acquainted fully with these Necessities of further Aid, it pleased God to vifit the Place of your Affembly then with a grievous Plague. To ftay you in that Danger had been a Neglect of my just Care, and to prorogue the Parliament had been to deftroy the Enterprize : I therefore adjourned you to this Place; a Place then free from that Infection, with which it hath pleafed God fince alfo to vifit. Here, then, to hold you long against your own Defires, were to express little Care of your Safeties; and to adjourn it, without your further Helps, were to deftroy the Preparation already made: I therefore leave the Care of both to your Elections, Refolutions, and Anfwers; only acquainting you with my own Opinion, which is, That it is better far, both for your Honours and mine, that, with Hazard of half the Fleet, it be fet forth, than, with the affured Lofs of fo much Provision, it be stayed at Home.

The whole Particular of all Expences about this Preparation shall be laid before you, when you shall be pleafed to overlook them, and the Lord Treafurer, with other Ministers employed, shall acquaint you with them](b).

After his Majefty had ended this Speech, he commanded his Secretaries, the Lord Conway and Sir Fohn Cook, more particularly to declare the prefent State of his Affairs; which they did to this Effect:

Lord Conway and f Sir John Cook declare the State of the King's 6 Affairs.

Alfo amidit these Ne-' ceflities, our late King confidered that he might "run a Hazard with his People, who being fo long ' inured to Peace, were unapt to War; that the " uniting with other Provinces in this Undertaking, " was a Matter of exceeding Difficulty." This " drew him to new Treaties for regaining his · Childrens Right, which were expulsed by the • Friends and Agents of Spain; and wherein his Majefty proceeded as far as the wifeft Prince could go, and fuffered himfelf to be won unto that, " which otherwife was impoffible for his Royal * Nature to endure. He confidered alfo the many · Difficulties abroad; the Duke of Bavaria, by · Force and Contract, had the Palatinate in his • own Poffeffion; most of the Electors and Princes ⁶ of Germany were join'd with him; the Eftates of ^e other Princes, most likely to join in a War of · Recovery, were feized and fecured, and all by a · conquering Army : Befides, the Emperor had ' called a Diet, in which he would take away all · Poffibility of recovering the Honour and Inheri-' tance of the Palatinate: Thus it flood in Ger-" many. And, in France, the King there chose to · fheath his Sword in the Bowels of his own Sub-· jects, rather than to declare against the Catholic · Caufe. In the Low Countries, the Sect of the " Arminians prevail'd much, who inclined to the · Romans rather than to their own Safety, notwithftanding that the Enemy had a great and power-' ful Army near them; fo that his Majefty was · enforced to protect and countenance them with ' an Army of 6000 Men from hence, with a Cau-" tion [of Repayment of the Charges] and the like " Supply further, if required. Moreover, he · fought Alliance with France, by a Match for his S Royal Majefty that now is, thereby to have In-· tereft

The last Confideration was his Majefty's own Honour, who had laboured with the two Kings of Denmark and Sweden, and the German Princes, from whom he received but cold Anfwers, they 6 refufing to join, unlefs they first faw his Majesty in the Field : But of this he was very tender, unlefs the Leage was broken, or he first warred upon. The Forces of an Army were confidered, and the Way of proceeding, whether by Invalion or Diversion: The Charges thereof appeared in Parliament to be 700,0001. a Year; befides Ireland was to be fortified, the Forts here repaired, and a Navy prepared, he thought it feafible to enter into a League with the French King, " and the Duke of Savoy and Venice.

"Hereupon an Army was committed to Count ¢ Mansfield, the Charge whereof came to 20,000 l. (i) a Month for his Majefty's Part; also he commanded the preparing of this great Fleet : All " which fo heartened the Princes of Germany, that they fent Ambafiadors to the Kings of Denmark and Sweden, and those two Kings offered a greater Army, both of Horfe and Foot, to which his Majefty was to pay a Proportion. Count Mansfield's Army, tho' difastrous, produced these happy Effects : Firft, It prevented the Diet intended by the Emperdr. Secondly, The German Princes gained new Courage to defend themfelves and oppose their Enemies: Thirdly, The King of Deumark hath raifed an Army, with which he is marched in Perfon as far as Minden. Moreover, the Confederates of France and Italy have pro-· fecuted a War in Milan, and Peace is now made • by the French King with his own Subjects; fo that • by this Means, Breath is given to our Affairs.

· This Parliament is not called in meer Formality • upon his now Majefty's first coming to the Crown; ⁶ but upon these real Occasions, to confult with the · Lords and Commons: Two Subfidies are already ' given, and gracioufly accepted; but the Monies thereof.

These Things have called the Parliament hither, and the prefent Charge of s all amounts to above 400,000 l. the further Profecution whereof, the King being unable to bear, • hath left it to their Confultations. His Majefty • is verily perfuaded, that there is no King that loves his Subjects, Religion, and the Laws of the Land, better than himfelf; and likewife, that • there is no People that better love their King, which he will cherifh to the uttermost. It was . thought that this Place had been fafe for this Affembly; yet, fince the Sicknefs hath brought fome Fear thereof, his Majefty willeth the Lords and Commons to put into the Ballance, with the Fear of the Sickneis, his and their great and weigh-• ty Occafions.

Then the Lord Treasurer added, 'That the late King, when he died, was indebted to the City of London 120,000 l. befides Interest, and indebted for Denmark and the Palatinate 150,000 l. and indebted for his Wardrobe 40,000 l. The Navy will require, to set it forth in that Equipage as is requisite for the great Defign his Majefty hath in Hand, and to pay them for the Time intended for this Expedition, 300,000 l.'

The Proceedings of the Commons being now the principal Things done in this Parliament, we shall

An. I. Charles I, fhall chiefly follow the Authority of their Fournals for our Teftimony therein. We are told, That the 1625.

The Commons plaint against Dr Montagu.

The Sollicitor General begg'd Leave to put the Houfe in mind of his Majefty's Meffage to them before the last Receis; and moved to acquaint the King with the Particulars and Confequences of the Bock, and doubted not but they would have Leave to fend for him. Hereupon a Debate arofe. Whether any of the King's Servants might be queftioned in that House? One urged the Danger of such an Exemption; and others named fome Inftances where they had; as, particularly, the Cafe of Sir Thomas Parry, who was a Privy Counfellor, whom the King defired might be left to him; but the Houfe would not confent, but expelled him. Mr. Wentworth (afterwards Earl of Strafford) mentioned the Lord Chancellor Bacon's and the Lord Treafurer Middlefex's Cafes, whom this Houfe dealt with ; he faid Montagu reproached Bible-bearers, which was the Arms of that University; and moved to proceed against him for a Contempt of that House. This was agreed to, and to pray a Conference with the Lords about it; not to meddle with his Tenets; but to leave them to the Bifhops. The Sergeant was commanded, at his Peril, to bring Dr. Montagu to the Houfe, with all convenient Speed, and he to fland committed till he fhall be difcharged by the Houfe.

The Commons then proceeded to take into Confideration the King's Speech, and the fubfequent Account from the Secretaries; and ordered, That all the Members shall attend the next Morning, and not depart without Licence, on Pain of the Cenfure of the Houfe. August August 5. The two Chancellors of the Exche- An. I. This was opposed by others, who urged tion for the Supto know the Caufe for this Supply, and the Enemy ply. against whom the Preparations were definated : That the Eftates of the Papifts, who contributed to their Enemies, may be fpeedily looked into, to fupply the King. Old Sir Edward Coke begins, as ufual, in this Debate, with fome Latin Sentences, " Necessitas affectata, invincibilis, & improvida: The two last, he faid, break all Laws and Orders. and must be supplied : But, if their Necessities came by Improvidence, then no fuch Caufe to, give. But, he urged, there was a Leak in the Government, of which Leak fuch as these were the Causes; Frauds in the Customs; Treaty about the Spanish Match; new invented Offices, with large Fees; old unprofitable Offices, which the King might juftly take away with Law, Love of his People, and his own Honour; the Prefidentships of York and Wales; Multiplicity of Offices in one Man; every Officer to live on his own Office; the King's Houshold out of Order; new Tables kept there made the Leakage the greater ; voluntary Annuities, or Penfions, which ought to be ftopped till the King was out of Debt, and able to pay them. It may be supposed that this Speech of the old . Orator's was very long, by the Heads of it above mentioned, and the Subsequence of this Day's Debates; for little is entered after it, fave that the Solicitor General moved to petition the King to declare the King of Spain an Enemy, fince it was he that had done them all the Wrong: To take Care of Papifts at home, whole Hearts were with the Spaniards, and are dangerous here whilft our Navy was abroad. Two Subfidies and two Fifteens, to be paid in October and April come twelve Months. Others declared against granting Subfidies in Reversion ; and not to graft Subsidy upon Subsidy in one Parliament." A Committee for this Matter was moved for, the Duke to be called to it, " That he may give Satisfaction for these Aspersions that had been laid upon him.' But no Refolution was come to on this Day.

A Committee was moved for, by others, to confider of the King's Supply: And Secretary Cook urged, That the Commission of the Navy might be the first examined. This was followed by Mr. Strode; but he added, farcaftically enough, ' That all who fpoke in the Committee might apply themfelves to this, How two Subfidies and Fifteens, payable more than one Year hence, can fupply a Navy, to go out in fourteen Days."

Another Member, Sir Nathaniel Rich, faid, 'That they ought not to refuse to give at all; but, first, to represent their Wants to the King, first, for Religion, to have his Majefty's Anfwer in full Parliament, and then enrolled; which then would be of Force with an Act of Parliament. Mr. Rufbworth tells us (1), That the Anti-Courtiers were freer than all this with the Ministry. At this Debate, he fays, they urged, 'That great Sums of Money were given for Places, to the Value of 140,000 l. at leaft. That the King ought to contribute to help the Palatinate's Caufe with his own Estate. That the Time of the Year was too far fpent for the Fleet to go out for Service. That Enquiry ought to be made, Whether the Duke brake not the Match with Spain, out of Spleen and Malice to the Conde Olivares? Whether he made not the Match with France upon harder Terms? And whether the Ships, employed against Rochel, were not maintained with the Subfidies given for the Relief of the Palatinate? Of all which there is not one Syllable mentioned in the Journals .--Though, indeed, there is fufficient Reafon to believe they might have been faid in this Debate, by what A Member cenfollows: For Mr. Edward Clarke, a Member, us'd an Expression in a Speech, ' That there had been Speeches there, with invective Bitternefs, and very unfeasonable for the Time.' On which there was a general Acclamation, To the Bar; and, being ordered to explain himfelf there, he gave still greater Offence. He was then further ordered to withdraw, whilft this Matter was debated in the Houfe. Some argued for Expulsion ; others faid, though the Offence was great, yet the Punishment ought to be more moderate. At length, it was agreed, ' That he should kneel at the Bar, and the Speaker to let him know the Houfe had taken just Offence at his Words; and therefore that he should stand committed to the Sergeant during the Pleafure of the Houfe.' But, the next Day, upon Submission made, he was released.

In this Debate Sir Robert Cotton, the learned An-An. 1. Charles I. tiquary, fpoke as follows (m): 1625.

Mr. Speaker,

LTHO' the conftant Wifdom of this Houfe Sir Robert Cotof Commons did well and worthily appear, ton's Speech on in cenfuring that ill-advifed Member the laft Day, that Occasion. for trenching fo far into their antient Liberties; and might encourage each worthy Servant of the Public here, to offer up freely his Counfel and Opinion : Yet, fince these Walls cannot conceal from the Ears of captious, guilty and revengeful Men without, the Counfel and Debates within; I will endeavour, as my clear Mind is free from any perfonal Diftafte of any one, fo to express the honeft Thoughts of my Heart, and discharge the best Care of my Truft, as no Perfon shall justly tax my innocent and public Mind; except his Confcience shall make him guilty of fuch Crimes as worthily have, in Parliament, impeached others in elder Times. I will therefore, with as much Brevity as I can, fet down how these Diforders have, by Degrees, fprung up in our own Memories; how the Wifdom of the beft and wifeft Ages did of old redrefs the like; and, laftly, what modeft and dutiful Courfe I would with to be followed by our-, felves, in this fo happy Spring of our hopeful Mafter. For, Mr. Speaker, we are not to judge, but to prefent: The Redrefs is above ad Querimoniam Vulgi.

'Now, Mr. Speaker, fo long as those attended about our late Sovereign Master, now with God, as had ferved the late Queen of happy Memory, Debts of the Crown were not fo great; Commisfions and Grants not fo often complained of in Parliament; Trade flourisched; Pensions not fo many, tho' more than in the late Queen's Time, for they exceeded not 18,000l. now near 120,000l. all Things of Moment were carried by public Debate at the Council-Table; no Honours fet to Sale;

An. I. Charles I, Sale; nor Places of Judicature ; Laws against Priefts and Recufants were executed; Refort of Papifts to Ambaffadors Houfes barred and punished; his Majefty, by daily Direction to all his Ministers, and, by his own Pen, declaring his Diflike of that Profession; no wasteful Expences in fruitles Ambaflages, nor any transcendent Power in any one Minister. For Matters of State, the Council-. Table held up the fit and antient Dignity. So long as my Lord of Somerfet flood in State of Grace; and had, by his Majesty's Favour, the Trust of the Signet Seal, he oft would glory juftly, that there paffed neither to himfelf, or his Friends, any long' Grants of his Highnefs's Lands or Penfions: For - of that which himfelf had, he paid 20,000 l. towards the Marriage-Portion of the King's Daugh-His Care was to pafs no Monopoly or illegal ter. Grant; and that fome Members of this Houfe can witnefs by his Charge unto them. No giving way to the Sale of Honours, as a Breach upon the Nobility, (for fuch were his own Words) refufing Sir 'John Roper's Office, then tendred to procure him to be made a Baron. The Match with Spain then offered, (and with Condition to require no further Toleration in Religion than Ambaffadors here are allowed) he, discovering the double Dealing and the Dangers, diffuaded his Majefty from; and left him fo far in Diftruft of the Faith of that King, and his great Inftrument Gondomar, then here refiding, that his Majefty did term him long Time after a Jugling Jack. Thus flood the Effect of his Power with his Majefty when the Clouds of his Misfortune fell upon him. What the future Advices led in, we may well remember. The Marriage with Spain was again renewed : Gondomar declared an honeft Man : Popery heartened, by employing fuspected Persons for Conditions of Conveniency : The Forces of his Majefty in the Palatinate withdrawn, upon Spanish Faith improved here and believed, by which his Highnefs's Children have loft their Patrimony; and more Money been spent in fruitless AmAmbaffages, than would have maintained an Army An. r. Charles I. fit to have recovered that Country. Our old and faft Allies difheartened, by that tedious and dangerous Treaty: And the King our now Mafter expofed to fo great a Peril, as no wife and faithful Council would ever have advifed. Errors in Government, more in Misfortune by weak Counfels, than in Princes.'

" A Spanifb Treaty loft the Palatinate.—Whofe Counfel hath pronounced fo great Power to the Spanifb Agent (as never before) to effect Freedom to fo many Priefts as have been of late; and to become a Sollicitor almost in every Tribunal for the ill-affected Subjects of the State, is worth the Inquiry?"

• What Grants of Impositions, before_croffed, have lately been complained of in Parliament? As that of Ale-Houses, Gold-Thread, Pretermitted Cuftoms, and many more; the least of which would have, 50. Edward III. been adjudged in Parliament an heinous Crime, as well as those of Lyon and Latymer.

' The Duke of Suffolk in the Time of Henry VI. in procuring fuch another Grant, in Derogation of the Common Law, was adjudged in Parliament.'

⁶ The Gift of Honours, kept as the most facred Treasure of the State, now set to Sale. Parliaments have been Suitors to the King to bestow those Graces; as in the Times of Edward 111. Henry IV. and Henry VI. More now led in, by that Way only, than all the Merits of the best Defervers have got these last 500 Years. So tender was the Care of elder Times, that it is an Article Vol. VI. A a 28.

An. I. Charles I, 28. Henry VI. in Parliament against the Duke of Suffolk, that he had procured for himfelf, and fome few others, fuch Titles of Honour, and those fo irregular, that he was the first that ever was Earl, Marquifs, and Duke of the felf-fame-Place. Edward I. reftrained the Number, in Policy, that would have challenged a Writ by Tenure: And how this Proportion may fuit with the Profit of the State, we cannot tell. Great Deferts have now no other Recompence than coffly Rewards from the King; for, we are now at a vile Price of that which was once ineftimable. If worthy Perfons have been advanced freely to Places of greateft Truft, I shall be glad. Spencer was condemned in the 14. Edward II: for difplacing good Servants about the King, and putting in his Friends and Followers; not leaving, either in the Church or Common-Wealth, a Place to any, before a Fine was paid unto him for his Dependence. The like in part was laid by Parliament on De la Pole, It cannot but be a fad Hearing unto us all, what my Lord Treasurer lately told us of his Majesty's great Debts, high Engagements, and prefent Wants: The Noite whereof I with may ever reft inclosed within thefe Walls For, what an Encouragement it may be to our Enemies, and a Disheartning to our Friends, I cannot tell. The Danger of those, if any they have been the Caufe, is great and fearful. It was no fmall Motive, to the Parliament, in the Time of Henry III. to banish the King's Half-Brethren for procuring to themfelves to large Proportion of Crown Lands. Gavefton and Spencer for doing the like for themfelves, and their Followers, in the Time of Edward II. and the Lady Veffy for procuring the like for her Brother Beaumont, was banished the Court. Michael de la Pole was condemned 10. Richard II. in Parliament, amongst other Crimes, for procuring Lands and Penfions from the King, and having employed the Subfidies to other Ends than the Grant intended. His Grand-Child, William Duke of Suffolk, for the like was cenfured 28. Henry VI. The great Bifhop Offences of this Nature were urged, to the ruining of the laft Duke of Somerfet in the Time of Edward VI. More fearful Examples may be found, too frequent in Records. Such Improvidence and ill Counfel led Henry III; into fo great a Strait, as after he had pawned fome Part of his foreign Territories, broke up his Houfe, and fought his Diet at Abbies and Religious Houfes, engaged not only his own Jewels, but those of the Shrine of St. Edward at Westminfler ; he was in the end not content, but conftrained to lay to pawn (as fome of his Succeffors after did) Magnam Coronam Anglia; the Crown of England To draw you out to Life the Image of former Kings Extremities, I will tell you what I found fince this Affembly at Oxford, written by a Reverend Man, twice Vice-Chancellor of this Place ; his Name was Goscoign; a Man that faw the Tragedy of De la Pole: He tells you that the Revenues of the Crown were fo rent away by ill Counfel, that the King was inforced to live de Tallagiis Populi: That the King was grown in Debt quinque centena millia Librarum: That his great Favourite, in, treating of a foreign Marriage, had loft his Mafter a foreign Duchy: That to work his Ends, he had." caufed the King to adjourn the Parliament in Villis. & remotis Partitus Regni, where few People, propter defectum Holpitii & Victualium could attend;and by fhifting that Affembly from Place to Place, to inforce (I will use the Author's own Words) illos paucos, qui remanebant de Communitate Regni, concedere Regi quamvis peffima. When the Parliament endeavoured by an Act of Refumption, the just and frequent Way to repair the languishing , State of the Crown (for all from Henry III, but one, till the 6. Henry VIII. have used it) this great Man told the King it was ad Dedecus Regis, and forced him from it : 'To which the Commons an-A a 2. Swer'd.

OF ENGLAND. 373.

We now return to the Lords Journals, for an An. 1. Charles I. Affair of no fmall Moment, fince the Confequence of it determined the Fate of this Parliament. It is very lamely inferted in the Journals of the Commons, and more for in Ru/hworth; whole Miftakes and Omiflions will be particularly diffinguifhed in this Recital.

. August 8. The former Authorities tell us that this Day the Lords fent a Meffage to the Commons, 'That they had received one from the A grand Confe-King, which was to be delivered to the Lords and rence relating to Commons together, by the Lord Keeper and the Religion. The Duke of Buckingham; and that his Majefty had commanded the Lord Keeper to require the Lord Treasurer, the Lord Conway, and Sir John Cook, to affift his Grace therein. Upon which Account, the Lords required a prefent Meeting with their whole Houfe, in the great Hall of Christ-Church, if it inited their Conveniency.'

The Anfwer returned was, 'That the Commons would meet, at the Time and Place appointed, with their Speaker and the whole Houfe. And, as Intimation was given, that there might be Occafion for a worthy Member of their Houfe, in delivering the Meffage from his Majefty; though it was againft the very fundamental Privileges of the Houfe of Commons, yet they gave way to it, with this Provifo; That be fpeak, as the King's Servant and Commiffioner, and not as a Member of their Houfe.'

At the fame Time, the Commons ordered, within themfelves, That as the Speaker and the whole Houfe went up, if the Lords kept bare, to do the fame; if they covered, then the Speaker and the reft to cover alfo.

August 9. The Report of this grand Conference between the two Houfes was made in the Houfe of Lords, by [Dr. Abbat] Archbishop of Canterbury: And first, on what had been offered by the Commons concerning Religion.

The Commons complain of a Pardon granted to a Jesuit, &c.

An. I. Charles I, therein ; , the Effect whereof was, That whereas the Lords and Commons did, at their last Meeting, prefent a Petition to his Majefty, for Advancement of God's true Religion and suppressing the contrary; unto which his Majefty vouchfafed, as well by his own Mouth, as by the Lord Keeper's. on the 11th of July last, to return fuch an Anfwer as gave them Assurance of his Royal Performance thereof; yet, at this Meeting, they find that, on the 12th of July laft, his Majefty granted a Pardon unto Alexander Baker, a Jesuit, and ten other Papifts; which, as they are informed, was upon the Importunity of fome foreign Embaffador; and that it paffed by immediate Warrant, and was recommended by the principal Secretary of State, without paying the ordinary Fees.

> Alfo, That divers Copes, Altars, Chalices, &c. (n) being found in the House of one Mary Estmond, in Dorsetshire, by two Justices of Peace ; they thereupon tendered her the Oath of Allegiance; which, the refuting, they committed her to the Conftable, from whom the made her Efcape and complained to the King. That the faid Secretary of State did write unto these Justices in her Fayour ; all which they humbly defired his Majefty. to take into Confideration, and to give a due, effectual, and fpeedy Redrefs therein.

> After which the faid Petition, Pardon, and Letter were read; and then the Archbishop proceeded with the Report, 5 That the Commons infifted much upon three Points: Firft, The Date of the Pardon, being the next Day after the King's Anfwer delivered to both Houses, by the King's Command. Secondly, That the Pardon difpenfeth with thefe Laws, viz. with the Statutes of the 23d and 27th Eliz. and the 3d Jac. provided to keep his Majefty's Subjects in due Obedience; and with the Statute the 10th of Edward III. which directeth, That every Felon, upon Pardon obtained, should be bound to good Behaviour. Thirdly, That it was was folicited by the principal Secretary, the Lord An. 1. Charles I. Conway; and to this they added these Circum- 1625. stances.

• That this Jefuit, being formerly imprifoned and now fet at Liberty, his Convertation might be dangerous in perverting many of the King's Subjects. That, heretofore, in the Time of Queen Elizabeth, if any were convicted and pardoned, (for the pardoned none before Conviction that their Faults might be first known) they were, alfo, banished, not to return upon Pain of Death, which is prevented by this Pardon. They concluded, That both this Pardon and Letter were procured by the Importunity of fome foreign Embasiladors, which was of dangerous Confequence, to give the Subjects here any Dependency upon therm.'

The Archbishop having ended, the Lord Conway flood up and affirmed, 'That tho' the Pardon was dated the next Day after the King's Promife to the Parliament, yet it was no Breach thereof. For it was granted long before; and his Lordship shewed, That, at Christmas last, his late Majesty promifed to the Marquis de Villa Clara, the French Embafsador, certain Graces and Privileges to the Papists; that the Marquis D'Effiat did, afterwards, obtain the like, to the End that the Queen might come the more easy hither; and the Duke de Chevereux his Majesty's Kinsman, who brought the Queen over, had importuned him that he might also carry Home the like Graces.'

'That the Pardon paffed by immediate Warrant, to take off the continual Importunity of the Embaffadors to the King; and he, being Secretary of State, folicited it himfelf; but it was at his Majefty's Command, to take off all Imputation from himfelf; and not out of any Affection of his to that Religion which he ever hated.'

⁶ As touching the Non-payment of the Fees, his Lordfhip faid, That Mr. Benbowe demanded 50 l. for them; and the Embaffador complaining thereof

An. I. Charles I. to the King, he commanded him to fee that no 1625. Fees fhould be taken.

> 'That the Duke de Chevereux importuned the King to write that Letter, himfelf, in Favour of Mrs. Eflmond; and he, as Secretary, was forced and commanded to do it, rather than that his Majefty fhould. The faid Duke complained much of the Juftices hard Carriage unto her, but he never heard any thing of her obftinate Behaviour to them; nor of any Copes, nor Altars, found in her Houfe; wherefore he wrote, alfo, to be advertifed of, her Offence by them, but was not anfwered till within thefe few Days.'

> 'His Lordfhip protefted his Sincerity to the true Religion, here established; whereof he had formerly given good Testimony, and in which he would perfevere. And what he did, in these Matters, was only to take away all Scandal from the King, though it lighted upon himself; and that he did nothing but what he was first, expressly, commanded to do by the King.'

The Lord Keeper affirmed, ' That he received the faid Pardon, long before the Date thereof; and if he had made a Recipe upon the Warrant, as is usual in other Cafes, it had born Date with that tho' fealed afterwards. But, that his Lordship deferred the Sealing thereof, in Hopes that the Embaffadors would have been gone first, as they were often for going. But, they flaying and daily urging the King for the Pardon, he, being again commanded, fealed it at the next general Seal; and fo it had Date with the Time of the Seal and not of the Grant. His Lordfhip, well hoping, upon the Departure of the Embafladors, to have flopped it with his Majefty, otherwise it had been fealed before the King's Promife to the Parliament; and therefore this can be no Breach of the King's Promife.' His Lordship also faid, ' That the Embaffador urged his Majefty very much, to give a general Dispensation to the Papis; but the King was advifed rather to pardon fome few of them what was past. Which Counsel, though to be commended.

mended, yet none gave way to it, but much againft An. 1. Charles I. their Wills; and his Lordfhip wifhed that a Petition might be prefented to the King, to ftay the like Pardons hereafter.'

Next follows in the Journals, a Copy of a Petition to the King, from the Lords and Commons, repeating the aforefaid Evidences; and that as the Letter and Pardon were drawn from him by the Importunity of foreign Embalfadors; a Courfe, of late, too frequently practifed by his ill-affected Subjects, it was of dangerous Confequence, inducing to a Dependency upon foreign Princes, &c. But as the whole of this would be a Repetition of what is gone before, and befides, as it was never prefented, it may well be omitted.

This previous Affair on Religion being fettled, which we find the Commons infifted on before they would hear the King's Meflage; the Lord Keeper, on the fame Day, next proceeded to give the reft of the Report on what pafied in the Conference, along with the King's Meflage and the Confequence of it.

His Lordfhip began with telling the Houfe, 'That his Majefty had gracioufly, fully, and in a Parliamentary Manner, anfwered the Petition concerning Religion, delivered him by both Houfes, at Hampton-Court, the 7th Day of July laft; and had commanded his Lordfhip to fignify to the Lords and Commons, that he had alfo given Command to the Lord Admiral to deliver his faid Anfwers thereunto, to both Houfes; to be by them difpofed, as the Anfwers of Kings unto Petitions, of that kind, exhibited, are wont to be. And withall to deliver a Meffage from his Majefty, concerning the great Affair's of his, now in Agitation in the Houfe of Commons.'

That then the Lord Admiral faid, 'His Majefly had laid upon him fuch a Charge; as, when he did confider his own Weaknefs, it might utterly difcourage him; were it not that reflecting again upon that Plainnefs and Sincerity, wherein a King fhould deal with his People, he found himfelf the concerning the Petition, he could difpatch that in two Words; that is, by giving a full Affurance that all was granted which was defired; but held it fitter, for more Satisfaction, to read the Petition with the Anfwers annexed; and they were read accordingly, by Mr. Attorney in bac Verba:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

The Petition of both Houses for Execution of the 6 Laws againft Po- 6 pery, and for advancing true Religion. 6

T being infallibly true, That nothing can more eftablish the Throne. and affure the Peace and Prosperity of the People, than the Unity and Sincerity of Religion: We your most humble and loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons of this prefent Parliament affembled, hold outfelves bound in Confcience and Duty to represent the fame to your facred Majesty, together with the dangerous Confequences of the Increase of Popery in this Land, and what we conceive to be the principal Caufes thereof, and what may be the Remedies.

The Dangers appear in these Particulars.

• I. In their desperate Ends, being both the Sub-• verfion of the Church and State; and the Reft-• less of their Spirits to attain these Ends, the • Doctrine of their Teachers and Leaders, persua-• ding them, that therein they do God good • Service. • II. Their evident and ftrict Dependency upon

In Their evident and thict Dependency upon fuch foreign Princes, as no way affect the Good of your Majefty and this State.

• III. The opening a way of Popularity to the • Ambition of any, who fhall adventure to make • himfelf Head of fo great a Party.

The principal Caufe of the Increase of Papists.

• I. The Want of the due Execution of the • Laws against Jefuits, Seminary Priests, and • Popify

Laws themfelves, and partly by the manifold Abufe of Officers.

• II. The interposing of foreign Princes by their • Ambafladors and Agents in Favour of them.

• III. Their great Concourfe to the City, and • frequent Conferences and Conventicles there.

• IV. The open and usual Refort to the Houses • and Chappels of foreign Ambaffadors.'

• V. The Education of their Children in Semi-• naries and Houfes of their Religion in foreign • Parts, which of late have been greatly multipli-• ed and enlarged for the entertaining of the • Englift.

• VI. That in fome Places of your Realm, your • People be not fufficiently inftructed in the Know-• ledge of true Religion.

• VII. The licentious printing and differing of • Popi/b and feditious Books.

• VIII. The Employment of Men ill-affected • in Religion in Places of Government, who do,

" fhall, or may countenance the Popifb Party.

The Remedies against this outrageous and dangerous Disease, we conceive to be these ensuing.

· I. That the Youth of this Realm be carefully educated by able and religious Schoolmafters, and * they to be enjoined to catechize and inftruct · their Scholars in the Grounds and Principles of true Religion. And whereas, by many Com-٤. plaints from divers Parts of the Kingdom, it doth · plainly appear, That fundry Popifb Scholars, diffembling their Religion, have craftily crept in, · and obtained the Places of Teaching in divers · Counties, and thereby infected and perverted their Scholars, and fo fitted them to be transported to • the Popi/h Seminaries beyond the Seas; that therefore there be great Care in the Choice and Admif-, fion of School mafters, and that the Ordinaries make " diligent Enquiries of their Demeanors, and proceed

And the King's Anfwers.

This is well allowed of, and for the better Performance of what is defired, Letters shall be written to the two Archbishops, and, from ihem, Letters to go to all the Ordinaries of their several Provinces to see this done; the several Ordinaries to give Account of their Doings berein to the Archbishops respectively, and they to give Account to bis Majesty of their Proceedings berein.

II. • That the antient Difcipline of the Uni-• verfities be reftored, being the famous Nurferies • of Literature and Virtue.

Anfw. This is approved by his Majefty, and the Chancellor of each University shall be required to cause due Execution of it.

III. ' That fpecial Care be taken to enlarge the "Word of God throughout all the Parts of your Majefty's Dominions, as being the most powerful Means for planting of true Religion, and * rooting out of the contrary : To which End, a-· mong other Things, let it pleafe your Majefly to advife your Bishops, by fatherly Intreaty, and tender Ulage, to reduce to the peaceable and orderly Service of the Church, fuch able Minifters as have been formerly filenced, that there may be a profitable Use of their Ministry in these needful and dangerous Times: And that Nonrefidency, Pluralities, and Commendams, may be moderated. "Where we cannot forbear most humbly to thank • your Majefty, for diminishing the Number of your 6 own Chaplains, ; not doubting of the like prince-" ly Care for the well-bestowing of the rest of • your Benefices, both to the Comfort of the People, and the Encouragement of the Univerfities, being " full of grave and able Ministers unfurnished with · Livings.'

Answer. This his Majesty likes well, so it be applied to such Ministers as are peaceable, orderly, and conformable to the Church Government. For Pluralities lities and Nonrefidencies, they are now fo moderated, An. 1. Charles I. that the Archbishops affirm, there be now no Dispen-1625. fations for Pluralities granted; nor no Man is allowed above two Benefices, and those not above thirty Miles distant : And for avoiding Nonresidence, the Canon, in that Gase provided, Shall be duly put in Execution? (For Commendams, they foall be (paringly granted, only in fuch Cafe where the Exility and Smallnefs of the Bishopick requireth. Alfo his Majesty will cause that the Benefices belonging to him thall be well be-Accued. And, for the better propagating of Religion, his Majesty recommendeth to the Houses of Parliament, that Care may be taken, and Provision made, that every Parish shall allow a competent Maintenance for . an able Minister; and that the Owners of Parsonages' impropriate would allow to the Vicars, Curates, and Minflers, in Villages and Places belonging to their Parfonage, Sufficient Stipend and Allowance for preaching Ministers.

IV. 'That there may be ftrict Provision againft transporting of Englifb Children to the Seminaries beyond the Seas; and for the recalling of them who are already there placed; and for the Punishment of fuch your Subjects, as are Maintainers of those Seminaries or of the Scholars; confidering that, besides the feducing of your People, great Sums of Money are yearly expended upon them, to the impoverishing of this Kingdom.'

Answ. The Law in this Case shall be put in Execution. And further, there shall be Letters written to the Lord Treasurer, and also to the Lord Admiral, That all the Ports of this Realm, and the Creeks and Members thereof, be strictly kept. and strait Searches made to this End. A Proclamation shall be to recall both the Children of Noblemen and the Children of any other Men; and they to return by a Day: Also Maintainers of Seminaries of Scholars there, shall be punished according to Law.

V. 'That no Popifb Recufant be permitted to 'come within the Court, unless your Majesty be pleased to call him upon special Occasion, agreeable to the Statute of 3. Jac. And whereas your Anlw. If his Majefly shall find, or be informed of any Concourse of Recujants to the Court, the Law. Thall be Aristly followed. And his Majefty is pleafed. that, by Proclamation, the British and Irish Subjects Shall be put in the same Case. And as his Majesty hath provided in his Treaty with France, fo his Purpole is to keep it, That none of his Subjects shall be admitted into his Service, or into the Service of his Royal Confort the Queen, that are Popifh Recufants.

VI. ' That all the Laws now ftanding in force ' against Jefuits, Seminary Priefls, and others ha-· ving taken Orders by Authority derived from • the See of Rome, be put in due Execution. That the first and last Time he had the Hothe Preparations nour to fpeak in this Auditory, it was on the fame Bufineis; and then he was to happy as to be hoand the State of noured and applauded by both Houfes : And he made no Queftion but, fpeaking with the fame Heart, and on the tame Bufinels, he fhould be fo now : For, if they looked upon the Change of Affairs in Chri-Rendom, they could not think it lefs than a Miracle. Then the King of Spain was fought and courted by all the World; he was become Mafter of the Valtoline; had broke all Germany in Pieces, and was poffelled of the Palatinate. The Princes of Germany were weak, and not able to refift; and, by reafon of his Master's Neutrality, caused by a Treaty, he kept all other Kings and Princes in Awe.' Now, on the contrary, the Valtoline is at Liberty; the War is proclaim'd beyond the Alps; the King of Denmark is in Arms, with 17,000 Foot and 6000 Horfe, befides Commissions to make them up 30,000; the King of Sweden is alfo interefted ; the Princes of the Union are revived ; the King of France is engaged against Spain, and, for that Purpole, having made Peace with his own Subjects, hath joined and confederated himfelf with Savey and Venice. Why flould not he, therefore, hope for the fame Success; confidering that, fince the Time of his last Speech to both Houses, there was not one Action, or a Thought of his, that levelled at any other than one and the fame Object, which was to pleafe their Defires? If he fhould credit all Rumours, which he would not do, he fhould speak with fome Confusion of Fear to hold the fame Place he formerly did in their Affections : But, having still the fame virtuous Ambition, and confidering his own Heart to the King and State, he could find d si and Confidence. Here the Duke made a Requeft to the Houfe of Commons, 'That if any Man had fpoken or fhould fpeak any Thing, in Difcharge of his Confcience, Zeal of Reformation, or Love to his Country, which may feem to reflect upon fome particular Perfons, he may be the laft that fhall apply it to himfelf: Becaufe he is confidently affured of two Things; firft, That they are fo juft as not to fall upon him without Caufe, who was fo lately approved by them. And, fecondly, That himfelf fhall deferve nothing that fhall misbecome a faithful Englifhman.'

This Preamble to the Duke's enfuing Speech is almost wholly omitted in Rufbuorth; but for what Reason we know not, fince we have not yet met with a more pathetical one thro' the whole Courfe of these Enquiries. Herein is included a most succinct Account of the then present State of the Cbristian World; which evidently shews that the Duke of Buckingham, whatever he was as a Minister, was both a very great Politician, and an excellent Orator.

The Lord Keeper next proceeded to give the remaining Part of his Report, which was the Sequel of the Duke's Speech. He faid his Grace chofe rather to proceed in it by way of Queffion and Anfwer, than in one continued Speech, as being the fpeedier Way and Means to yield Satisfaction to the Commons. He would take his Rife, he faid, from the Breach of the Treaties and Alliance, and put forme Queffions to himfelf, yet none but fuch as fhould be material to the Buhnefs in Hand. That his Grace did move twelve, which the Lord Keeper faid he would enlarge, for Clearnefs and Perfpicuity's Sake, into fourteen Queffions. The firft was, this his Grace proved by the Act of both the B b 2 Houfes.

An. 1. Charles I. Houfes, March 24, 1623, which was read; and then his Grace proceeded and faid, Here you fee, my Lords and Gentlemen, that his Majefty, moved by this Council, applied himfelf accordingly for the Defence of the Realm, the fecuring of Ireland, the affifting our Neighbours, the States of the United Provinces, and other our Friends and Allies.

And for the fetting forth of the Navy Royal, the King, looking into his Purfe, faw enough to do all the former Actions, but not the latter: For when he came to confider the Navy, there 'was' neither Money nor Preparations; yet, looking upon the Affairs of Christendom; he found this the most neceflary. Hereupon his Majefty, of famous Memory, did his Grace that Honour as to write to him from Newmarket to London, a Letter to this Effect, " That, observing foreign Affairs, he found it ne-· ceffary that a Royal Fleet fhould be prepared, and " put in Readinefs; but that he had no Money: Wherefore his Lordfhip and his Friends must lay • out, and, no doubt, others would follow. And, by this Means, the King might the longer lie · concealed and undifcovered in the Enterprize, as · bearing the Name of the Subjects only; and other · Princes, in hopes to draw him on, would fooner

"That, upon this Letter, his Grace leap'd into the Action with all Alacrity; and, having received all he had from his Majesty, was defirous, and held it a Happiness, to pour it out again upon his Service and Occafions. But this he did not on his own Head, but fortified by the Advice and Counfels of thefe worthy Perfons, the Lord Conway, the Lord Chichefter, Lord Grandilon, Lord Carey, Lord Brook, Lord Ley, Sir Robert Mansfell, and Sir John Cook?

Their first Confultation was of a War, the next of the Means; but both the one and the other was justified by more than himfelf. 'He never did any Thing but by them, nothing was ever refolved or altered but in their Company ; for either he repaired to them, or elfe they did him that Honour,

And, when all was digefted and prepared, and that they came to proportion Time and Levies, then, with the King's Leave, the Bufinefs was imparted to all the Lords of the Council; the Account was made to them, and allowed by them; who faid there openly, his Majefty being prefent, That if this was put in Execution, it would do well; and gave fome Attributes to it.'

Here Sir John Cook juftified the fhewing and approving of their Accounts, at the Council Table; that those Accounts confifted of long Particulars for Soldiers to be levied, Mariners to be prefied, Forwardness of the Ships and Provisions, and that nothing was wanted but Money; and that he had all those Particulars ready to be fhewn to the House of Commons, if they should require them.

His Grace then proceeded and fhewed, ' That he was for eligious to guide thefe great Affairs by Counfel, that, at his Journey into France, which fell out about this Time, he defired his Majetty to recommend the Bulinels to a felect Committee of the Council; which his Majefty did to the Lord Treafurer, the Lord Chamberlain, the Lords Conway and Brook, who, in his Abfence, took Care of the fame. This his Grace thought fit to tell their Lordfhips, that they may fee by what Counfel this great Bulinels was carried; and that, in all the Management thereof, he took no Steps but by their Approbation.'

Queft. 2. Why did not his Majesty declare the Enemy presently, upon the granting of the two Subfidies?

Anfwer. 'His Majefty confidered the State of Chriftendom at that Seafon, and found it full of Danger to declare the Enemy, for three Reafons: First, Becaufe that great Enemy would be more prepared. Secondly, Spain', being the Enemy, our Merchants would be embargoed, who are now drawn home. Thirdly, Our Friends, finding us fo long unprepared, after our Declaration, had de-B b 3 fpaired.

> Queft. 3. Whether this vaft Sum of 300,000 l. befowed upon the Navy, together with 40,000 l. more to be now employed, and 60,000 l. at the Return, be so frugally husbanded as was fit?

> Anfwer. 'That his Grace refers to Sir John Cook's Accounts, which the Houfe of Commons may perufe; and when Sir John has done, the particular Officers should be ready to justify it with their Accounts.'

> Here Sir John Cook interposed, tho'he had already fhewed this Account, and said, 'That the Duke had laid out of his own Money 44,000 l. and the Treasurer of the Navy, at his Request, above 50,000 l.' To this his Grace added, 'That all this borrowed Money was managed, by the proper Officers, as if it had islued out of the Exchequer, and had not been borrowed elsewhere.'

Queft. 4. Whether a confiderable Sum of Money be yet required?

Aufwer: Forty thousand Pounds is yet neceffary; but that our Master was quite exhausted; his Treafure anticipated, his Lands engaged, his Plate offered to be pawn'd, but not accepted; and yet his Majefty must be maintained.'

Queft. 5. Whether this Fleet was ever intended to go out or not?

Anfwer. 'There has been fome flying Rumour to that Effect. But what Policy was it in the King, with the Charge of 400,000 l. only to amaze the World, cozen his People, and put you to fuch a Hazard? What fhould he get by an Act that fhould make him blufh when he met his Parliament again? Certainly the King would never employ fuch a Sum, but when the Affairs of Chriflendom made it neceflary to do it; and it was done with an Intention to fet it out with all the Speed poffible.'

Queft. 6. Why was not this Want of Money forejeen in the first Project of the whole Service; but now now only thought upon unexpectedly, and dangeroufly, An. I. Charles I. confidering the Sicknefs: Why not before the last Adjournment, whereby we are called upon at fo unfeafonable a Time?

Anfwer. It was forefeen before, but interrupted by unfortunate Accidents. Firf, The Death of the late King. Secondly, The Funeral; which, for Decency's Sake, could follow no fooner. Thirdly, The Journey into France, and the Marriage; which procured more Delays than were expected, but were neceflary.

'Since the Opening of this Parliament, his Majefty declared his Neceffity; and told you plainly, That this Sitting must not be for Counfel, but Refolution. And when he received the Grant of the two Subfidies, he understood that Money to be but a Matter of Custom, to welcome him to the Crown; and intended, when they were prefented to him, to dilate more at large, as afterwards he did by Sir, John Gook.'

Queft. 7. Who gave the Counsel to meet fo fuddenly, when the Sickness was so dangerously spread?

Anfwer. ' His Majefty commanded him to fay, That it was the Bufinefs itfelf that gave the Counfel, with the Neceffity of it, elfe the King would not have hazarded the two Houfes, and the reft of the Kingdom, by its fpreading. If he had been able any way, without your Help, to have fet out the Navy, he would have done it, and relied upon you for a Supply afterwards.'

• If it be a Fault, as I fee none, faid the Duke, why fhould the Realm and the Occafions of the State of Chriftendom fuffer, for it? If it be undertaken for your Good and the King's Honour, now in building, as also for the State of Chriftendom, why fhould a particular mean Fault make it miscarry? I hope your Wisdom will so pierce thro' it, as to fet the Affair forward.'

Queft. 8. Why should not the King help on this Occafion with his own Eflate?

Anfwer. 'Judge you whether he doth not; for, obferving the great Gift you gave the Sellion before laft,

An. I. Charles I, laft, he was unwilling to take any more from you. and laid out all his Estate upon the Enterprize ; and will do fo again when he fhall be enabled."

> Queft. 9. Is not the Time of the Year too far fpentfor the Navy to go forth?

> Anfwer. ' The King answered this the last Day; Better half the Navy should perish, than the Going forth thereof should be stopped. It would shew such Want of Counfel and Experience in the Defign ; fuch Want of Courage, Weakness and Beggarlinefs, in not being able to go thro' with it. And, for the Time, there were only three Ends proposed by this Service, and the Time of the Year is yet feafonable for any of them. He could demonftrate the fame, if the Defign was to be published; which your Wildom would not think fit to have done.'---- Here the Duke faid he would fatisfy the Houses in some other Things.

Quest. 10. Whether these eight Ships, lent the French King, to be employed against the Rochellers, were not paid with the Subfidy Money ?

Anfwer. ' These eight Ships were, first, employed at the Charge of the French King. Secondly, It is not always fit for Kings to give Account of their Counfels. Judge the Thing by the Event.'

Queft. II. Whether, having been employed to break with Spain, the Duke made not a worfe Match with France, and upon har fber Conditions ?.

Anfwer. ' He'hoped the contrary would appear by the King's Anfwer to their Petition; and he affured them his Majefty had broken no Public Faith in giving the faid Anfwers."

Quest. 12. Did not the Duke serve us in breaking the Peace with Spain, out of particular Spleen and Malice to Count Olivares?

Anfwer. ' There was no Caufe for him to hate Olivares, he was the Means to make his Grace happy; for. out of his Hands, his Grace gained the Love of a Nation, which before thought not fo well of him. He is not vindictive in his Temper; he can forgive those who had no fuch natural Refpect to that Country as Olivares had. Neitherdoth

And he can further. prove that he is not vindictive, for he could forgive one of our own Nation who concurred with Olivares.' But he thought proper to let that Bufinefs fleep; which, if it fhould awake, would prove a Lion to devour him who was the Author of it; meaning one of our own Nation who co-operated with Olivares (o).

Quest. 13. Will it not be objected. That hitherto the Duke speaks of nothing but immense Charges, which the Kingdom is not able to bear; as, to the King of Denmark, 30,000 l. a Month ; to Count, Mansfield, 20,000 l. to the Low Countries, 8000 l. to Ireland, 2600 l. a Month; befides the backing of the Fleet with a Supply, for which twelve of his Majesty's Ships are now in preparing ?

Anfwer. ' Make the King chief of the War, by a Diversion of this Kind, and he will give a greater-Advantage to all his Allies, than by allowing 50,000 l. nay 100,000 l. a Month. What is it for his Allies to fcratch with the King of Spain; to win a Town To-day, and to lofe it To-morrow? It is almost impossible to hope for a Conquest of this Kind, the Spanish King being fo able by Land : But let the King, our Sovereign, be Mafter of the Wars elfewhere, and make a Diversion; and let the Enemy be compelled to fpend his Money and Men in other Places, and our Allies, in these Parts, will be fuddenly and imperceivably ftrengthened and enabled; and, by this Kind of War, (which is certainly meant a Naval one) you fend no Coin out of the Land ; you fend nothing but Beef, Mutton (p), and Powder; by which the Kingdom is not impoverished, but may make good Returns."

Quest. 14. But where is the Enemy?

(e) The Earl of Briftol.

(p) The Journals and Rufbroorth fay Mutton ; but it thould feem rather to be Pork.

It has been thought proper to transcribe the whole of this long Report from the Journals of the Lords, fince it is very incorrectly given in Rufbworth ; and many Omiffions made, not quite confistent with the Credit or Character of an exact Collector, as any Reader may find who will take the Trouble to compare both. . The Anticipations made by the late King of his Rents, before they were due, came to 50,000 l. which was prefently beftowed on this Occafion, the Fleet.'

" His Engagements were, for the Pay of 6000 Foot in the Low Countries; of 10,000 Foot under Count Mansfield ; and for the Rigging, Victualling, and Providing this great Navy, not the like in our Memory."

2. ' Concerning the State of the King, as it now stands, his Lordship divided the fame into Debts and Disburfements, which he defrays out of his own Coffers; that his Father's Debts, Anticipations, and Engagements, lie ill upon him. Hisown Debts, as Prince, come to 70,000 l. at the least, it is feared 90,0001. For Payment whereof his Majefty hath engaged those Lands he then had, and the Commissioners Bonds. This great Occafion brought his Majefty, when he was Prince, thus into Debt; for he then gave 20,000 l. to the Navy, and 20,000 l. to Count Mansfield, befides other great Gifts that Way; whereas, before, he owed very little, to his Lordship's own Knowledge."

* The King's Disburfements defrayed out of his own Coffers; to the King of Denmark, 46,0001, to the Soldiers at Plymouth and Hull, 16,000 1. for Mourning and Feneral, 12,000 l. paid, and 16,000 l. to pay. Expences of the Queen's Entertainment,

3. 'The King's Estate for the future, as in Charges of Continuance, confisted of ten Articles. 1. Of Debts unpaid, and Interest. 2. Old Anticipations of 50,000 l. 3. Anticipations of new, 200,000 l. taken up by himself, to the emptying of all his Coffers, even of that which should maintain him with Bread and Drink from this Day forward. 4. To the King of Denmark, 30,000 l. per Mensen. 5. To Count Manssield, 20,000 l. 6. To the Datch, 8000 l. 7. To Ireland 2600 l. 8. The Queen's Allowance and Diet, 37,000 l. all per Mensen. 9. • The Lord Treasurer alledged, That certain Sums were omitted, because they were uncertain and before his Time. That no Total was cast up, because he had no Auditor; and promised that himself, or his subordinate Officers, would be ready to give Satisfaction of all or any of these Particulars.

The Lord Keeper having ended this long Report, which was the Bufinels of a whole Day, the Lords expressed their Approbation of it, and ordered it to be entered on their Journals.

As it hath hitherto been the Purport of these Enquiries to state the Matters of Fact as they happened, and leave them to the Reader's Judgment for Reflection, so here we shall do the fame; tho' there's Room for a long Chain of Arguments on the foregoing Report; in which the young King and his Ministers have, seemingly, laid themselves, and the Affairs of State, as naked and open, as the Circumstances of the Times could possibly bear: However, it will soon be found to have been of no Availance with the Commons.

On

On the very fame Day with the former, Aug. 9"An. 1. Charles I. a Report was made in that House of what had been 1625. delivered at the Conference, by the Recorder of London, the Sollicitor General, and Mr. Pymm. This Report was divided, as before in the Lords, into three Heads: The King's Answer to their Petition about Religion; the Duke's Account of the Fleet, &c. and the Lord Treasurer's Conclufion. But it is all so lamely inserted in the Journals of the Commons, and fuch great Hiati made in the Recital, that it is impossible to make any Thing of the Matter. The last Part of the Report was given by Mr. Pymm; a Name not mentioned before in the Courfe of this Work, tho' it hath been often met with in the latter Parliaments of King James. as well as in this; yet not hitherto engaged in any Thing material enough for our Notice: But, if this is thought any Slight to the Memory of that great Patriot, it will be amply made up in the Se-1 2 2 2 31 2 1 11 . 00.1 auel.

One Particular is mentioned in the Commons Journal, not taken Notice of in the Lords; which was, That the Lord Treasurer told them, 'That fince their House had first taken Care of Religion, and had received so gracious an Answer to it; therefore they ought now, speedily, to think of a Supply; not of his Majesty's Wants, but of those for the Defence of the Kingdom.'

The Report as above, being delivered, Mr. Maynard, afterwards the famous Sergeant Maynard, M ftood up and told the Höule, 'That it was an eafy Debate in the Matter to infeft the King of Spain; but he did not Commons therelike the vaft Charge now demanded, which was not upon. to be fupported by the Kingdom. That he was not for a War by Land, but by Sea; and there not with Letters of Marque, but for an open War. of both King and Kingdom, in point of Honour, was at Stake. That the Preparations now making for War; muft have their Movement from Parliament. "The Confideration of the difafterous State of the King's Royal Sifter so and of Religion in great Danger abroad, which fuffered alfo at home. Confideration of their Confederates ; who would fall alunder, if their King did not hold them together. The Danger of King, Lords, and Commons, by the Sickness, by a longer Continuance.' Sir Roger North faid, ' That he was once against giving any Thing at this Time ; but had now altered his Opinion by his Majefty's most gracious, Answer about Religion ; alfo becaufe it was his first Request : Befides the Confequence of an ill parting this Parliament would be a Thing very acceptable to the Papifts. Moved for two Fifteens to be added to the two Subfidies.' Another faid, ' That Precedents were neither to be defpifed, nor adored as Gods. That in the first Parliament of the late King; two Subfidies were granted and four Fifteens; within 'a Month after one Subfidy more was given in the fame Sellion. If all our greatest Enemies were here they would refuse to give ; to give now, becaufe they could not, at another Time, give towards this Supply. To leave now their Fears, Jealoufies, and Difguists at home, and to rely upon the King's Promife for their next Meeting to reform fuch Things. "Those Diforders complained of did not happen in this King's Time ; that he, both in his Father's and his own Time, had affured them of

> The Arguments per contra were thefe : Sir Robert Philips faid, ' That the Point now before them. by the King's laft Meffage, might be reduced fhort to this; Either to give prefently, or elfe that, in refpect of Danger to us, he will adjourn us to fome other Time. That the Arguments for giving were Honour, Neceffity, and Safety; not honourable Actions grounded upon found Counfels. That Neceffity had been the continual Argument for Supply in all Parliaments; but the Counfels which had put the King, and the prefent great Defigns into this Hazard, whoever gave them must answer Moved that the prefent Necessity might be it. fupplied by fome other Means, rather than by fo dangerous a Precedent. That a Committee might be appointed to confider of a fit Anfwer to the King. why they could not now give; and yet to affure him, that they would, in due Time, fupply all his honourable and well-grounded Defigns.' Sir Franris Seymour faid, . It was ftrange that the Commons of England fhould be called thither only for a Supply of 40,000 l. and it shewed the King's Necessities were great. What was become of all the Money raifed by the Act of Refumption of the Crown Lands? That 140,000 l. had been alfo raifed by Places of Honour; Places of Juffice were fold, and Sergeants Places; which muft come to a greater Sum.' Others argued for giving, fo that it might be in a Parliamentary Manner. But Sir Thomas Wentworth faid, " That he feared the preffing this Precedent for fo fmall a Sum, was to take the Advantage of it for greater Things hereafter. Was against prefent giving; but most ready and willing to give in due Time.' Sir Heneage Finch argued, ' That the granting of Subfidies in Reverfion, as the Clergy had done, was to bind and give for our Executors, as they had for their Succeffors. Answer to their Petition about Religion; the ra-. ther, becaufe he had faid it was not done to draw us on : But to do this with great Caution, and with a Protestation never to do the like, upon any Neceffity hereafter.' Others again were more violent: Mr. Rolle faid, "That the King could not but have Credit, without their Grant, for 40,000 l. That. if the Necessity for Money was now fo great, this was the Time to prefs for Redrefs of Grievances. That Turkif Pirates take our Ships and Men, and endanger our Sea-Coafts; which were forced to arm to defend themfelves." The laft Speaker, on this Side, we shall mention, was old Sir Edward Coke; who began again with his Leaks, and faid, " That two would drown any Ship. That folum & malum Concilium was a bottomless Sieve. An Officer should not be Cupidus alienæ Rei, parcus suæ; avarus Reipublicæ; super omnia expertus. Misera Servitus est, ubi Lex incerta aut incognita. That in the 11th of Henry III. Hubert de Burgh, Chief Juffice, advifed the King that Magna Charta was not to hold, becaufe the King was under Age when that Act was made. He was Earl of Kent, but degraded for this fome Time after. In the 16th of Henry III. Segrave; Chief Justice, was fentenced for giving fole Counfel to the King against the Common-Wealth. That it was malum Confilium to prefs more Subfidies when they had given two. To bring them thither only for 40,0001. And, Lastly, offered to give 1000 l. out of his own Estates - rather than grant any Subfidy now."

These Reflections were aimed directly at the Prime Minister, and are bolder than any that fell in this Day's Debate. The Refult of all which was, a Refolution was agreed on, 'That a Committee of 'the whole House should be appointed, at Eight 'o'Clock the next Morning, to confider what 'Return to make to his Majesty's Message of this 'Day.'

> Sir Edward Coke moved for a Committee to be appointed for this; and afterwards to acquaint the Lords with it. Sir Francis Seymour faid, 'That the Lord Admiral, Buckingham, had the Care of these Things; therefore the Default must needs be in him or his Agents. And moved for a Committee to confider of the Caufes thereof, and where the Default lay.' ' Mr. Lifter mentioned the Wrongs done to our Trade by the Dunkirkers; and therefore moved that the Committee to be appointed might, in a general Way, confider of this, and the Safety of all the Sea-ports.' Others agreeing in this, a Committee of the whole Houfe was appointed to take these Matters into Confideration, and they to have Power to name a Sub-Committee.

The reft of this Day's Work was taken up with a long Repetition of the Pardon to the Jefuits, Ec. and of their defiring a Conference with the Lords. in order to induce them to join in a Petition to the King, to befeech him not to be importuned hereafter by any foreign Ambaflador, to grant any Thing contrary to the Anfwers to their former Petition. On which Sir Robert Philips observed, " That no Popifb King would, at the Infligation of our Ambaffadors, releafe any Perfon out of the Inquisition.' A Conference with the Lords, on this, was agreed upon and held, and Sir Edward Coke An. 1. Charles I, made the Report of it to their Houfe. 1625.

After repeating what is faid before, about obtaining the Pardon from the King, he told them. . That the Lords had refolved to move the King. never to pardon any fefuit, or other Papist, till they were attainted. For their joining in the Petition', they denied it not; but, confidering his Majefty's gracious Answer to their other Petition about Religion, and that both Houfes were to give him Thanks for it, the Purport of this last might only be intimated to the King; which the Lords prefied them to confent to. That he had declared the Satisfaction of that House, touching the Pardon and the Date thereof, and the Lord Conway's Letter. Laftly, That all the Lords were most hearty in the Point of Religion.'

. In this Manner flood Affairs in both Houfes, when the next Day, August 12th, a Protestation was unanimoufly agreed upon, by the Commons, in a Grand Committee, which was reported to the House, ordered to be entered in the Clerk's Book, and prefented to his Majefty with all convenient Speed, by all the Members that were of the Privy Council, with Sir John Fullerton and Sir Robert Carrattending them. Immediately after this, the Gentleman-Ufher of the Black Rod came to call the Houfe and the Speaker to come up to the Lords, to hear a Commission from the King, read to both Houfes: Which was done accordingly.

The first Thing the Commons went upon, was to appoint a grand Committee for Privileges and Elections: To fix a Day and Place for receiving the Communion; and to nominate a Preacher. Every Member of the Houfe was to take the Sacrament at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, on Sunday Sevennight: To bring his Name, and the Place for which he ferves, and to deliver it to fome Gentlemen appointed for that Purpose. After that All the Members Time no Man was to come into the House, till he receive the Sahad first received the Communion in the Prefence crament. of fome of this Committee.

This religious Precaution had been taken at the Beginning of fome late Parliaments, defigned, no doubt, for the Detection of concealed Papifts; imagining, that tho' they might take the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy, against their Consciences, yet they would not be for wicked as to crown their Hypocrify with receiving the Sacrament. But, as none refused, for we may charitably suppose there were no concealed Papifls in that House.

Feb. 10. This Day, after fome Business of small Moment was done, the Chancellor of the Exchequer delivered a Message from the King to the Commons, to this Effect:

That his Majefty, taking Notice of an Order The King's

That Sir Edward Coke, being Sheriff of Bucking-

An. 1. Charles I. Chim that Right as to fend out a new Writ for that 1625. · County.

In order to understand the Meaning of this Mef-, fage better, it is neceffary to look into the Hiftories . of these Times for a further Explanation. It is faid, That, to difqualify fome Gentlemen, who had been zealous in their Opposition to the Court in the last Parliament, from ferving in this, the King had pricked them as Sheriffs of Counties for the Year enfuing. Amongst the reft old Sir Edward Coke. who had fo vigoroufly diftinguished himfelf against the Minister and his Measures, was nominated as This great Lawyer demurred to the Oath above. of a Sheriff, and infifted that one Part of it, which was to destroy and eradicate all Herefies, commonly called Lollardies, was not to be taken. This produced an Order of Council, wherein that Claufe was left out of the Oath, and established to continue fo for the future : However, Sir Edward got himfelf returned, as Knight of the Shire, for another County; and this was the Occafion of the King's Meffage, and the Debates in the Houfe of Commons which enfued upon it. Tho' all that the Houfe did this Day, in relation to the Meflage, was to refer it to the Committee of Privileges and Elections, to report their Opinions of the Law in thefe Cafes, and the Ufage of Parliament, and to be the first heard.

After this Sir Benjamin Rudyard got up, and moved the Houfe on account of Religion, ' Wherefcandalous Mini- of, he faid, the King had given ample Teftimonies of his great Care and Concern, both by his Maiefty's late Proclamations, and the Life given to the Execution of the Laws against them, by Commiffions and Letters : But he thought there ought to be fome Care taken against scandalous Ministers, as well as fcandalous. Motions a large Committee was appointed, and all Matters of Relithat would come were to have Voices, to confider gion; of all Points concerning Religion, and to prefent their Opinions to the House.

Sir John Ellist proposed, first, in general, to confider of the State of the Country, and a Relief for Grievances, &c. 'For Particulars; first, the Con-Grievances, &c. fideration of the King's Revenue. Next, an Account how the Subfidies and Fifteenths, granted the 21. Jac. were expended; and therein to include the Examination of the Carriage and Miscarriage of the last Fleet; Misgovernment; Misemployment of the King's Revenues; Miscounselling, &c. and moved for a special Committee to take Confideration thereof.' But happening, in his Speech, to make Use of the Word Courtier, he was called upon by another Member to explain it's which he did, but in what Manner is not mentioned.

Refolved, That the Committee on Grievances, Committees of the whole Houfe, fhall fit every Wednefday and thereupon, Friday during the Parliament, with Power to make a Sub-Committee, and with Power to fend for any Perfons, Records, &, The Committee of the whole Houfe, for Courts of Juffice, upon Tuefday every Week, with like Power. And, for Trade, upon Thurfday, every Week, with the fame. Ordered alfo, That the Committee for Grievances thall take Confideration of all fuch, exhibited fince the Beginning of King James's Reign, and how they have been anfwered and reformed.

Thefe Orders' and Réfolutions, without one Word of a Supply, fhewed but a very unpromifing Beginning of this Parliament; and feemed to hint to the Ministry, that, without great Alterations amongst them, little Relief was to be expected from this Body. From the Date above, for feveral Days together, there is nothing to be found in the Journals, but regulating Elections, maintaining Privileges, and fome flight Reports, from the February 21. It was ordered, " That the Knights and Burgeffes of every Shire, City, and Burrough, within this Realm, shall, upon Conference together, prefent the Names of fuch Perfons, remaining in Commission, or Place of Government, or Command in the Service for the Wars, or Truft, contrary to the King's Anfwer, that either are convicted, or justly fuspected, for Popery. Their Names, in Writing, to be prefented to the Committee for Religion, on the 27th Inftant, and they to prefent them to the Houfe. The fame Committee, at their next Sitting, were to take Notice. also of fuch as ought to be confined, and yet refort to the Cities of London and Westminster. The Knights and Burgeffes of York/hire and Northumberland, were to make Enquiry, and prefent the Names of all fuch in the Bishoprick of Durham, which yet fent no Members to Parliament.

The fame Day, after reading fome Petitions for Payment of fome Monies disburfed for the Maintenance of the Englife Officers and Forces, under Count Mansfield, in the Low Countries, a grand Committee was appointed to confider of those Things; and also of the Three Subfidies and Fifment of the late teens formerly granted: To audit the Accounts by Supplies inquired a Sub-Committee, who were to prepare them reainto; dy for the other's Infpection.

> Some of the fucceeding Days were taken up with reading of Bills, of no g eat Moment, the Houfe being divided into different Committees; amongft which, that on Grievances was bufy in hearing Complaints againft the Prime Minifter, and examining Witneffes againft him: The Reports of which will fall beft in the Sequel.

mentioned : Wherein many Cafes were cited pro An. I. Charles I. & contra, as to the Nature of an High Sheriff for one County being elected Knight of the Shire for another. On all which Cafes, he faid, the Committee would give no Opinion; but defired that a. Search might be made, amongft the Records, for more Precedents of the like Nature. But the Debate about this was put off to the 3d of March, and from thence to another Day; from which Time we hear no more of it. In all Probability Sir Edward loft his Seat in the Houfe; for he is no way taken Notice of as a Speaker, or otherwife, throughout the whole Courfe of this Selfion afterwards, except on the Day before the Diffolution of this Parliament; when, on the Queftion, it was refolved, . That Sir Edward Coke, standing, de Facto, returned a Member of that Houfe, fhould have Privilege against a Suit in Chancery, commenced against him by the Lady Clare.'

Affairs of a higher Nature than the last now begin to rife; and, what had been long hatching in the Houfe of Commons, takes Shape and Life, and becomes very formidable against the Minister and all his Creatures. The Recital of which not ap-appearing, in the Journals of either Houfe, clear, enough to diftinguish rightly the particular Movements of this grand Attack, we fhall not follow them, as usual, in Die ad Diem; but, in general, relate the Sourfe and Ending of this great Affair.

The Houfe of Commons had been bufy a long Time in getting Materials for exhibiting Articles. against the Duke: Their Committee on Grievances made feveral Reports; That they had learn'd the Reafon why our Merchant Ships and Goods were And the Con-feized in France, was becaufe our Admirals had fei- of Buckingham. zed the Goods of that Nation in feveral Ports of England, particularly in the Ship called the Peter of Newhaven; which was brought into Plymouth by Order of the Duke, after the King and Council had ordered it to be reftored upon a just Claim, and the Court of Admiralty had also released her : That twentymate a lega co ferrar Inis 12 An, 1. Charles I, twenty-three Bags of Silver and eight Bags of Gold, taken out of this Ship, were, by Sir Francis Stewart, 1625. delivered to the Lord Duke : That, till this Action, the French did not begin to feize any English Ships or Goods ; and that the Duke, having Notice of it, faid, He would juftify the Stay of the Ship by an express Order from the King.

The next Thing we find, is, That the Commons fent out a particular Warrant, by their Sergeant, to fummon the whole Council of War before them, who were appointed to manage the Bufinefs for the Relief of the Palatinate, and this Queftion was proposed unto them, "Whether their" Advice was followed, which they gave for the four Council of War. Ends, mentioned in the Act of Parliament, 21. Jac. for which the Money given by that Act was to iffue and be applied ?' The Names of this Council of War were, the Lord Carey, the Lord Brook, Lord Vere, Lord Viscount Grandison, Sir Robert Maunfel, Sir John Ogle, and Sir Thomas Button. The first excused himself by the Weakness and Infirmities then upon him : The next, by his Age, being 72, and having parted with his Places : The Lord Vere, the fame, by his Abfence in the Wars of the Low Countries : Lord Grandifon faid, That, fince July laft, they had feldom met, being difperfed by the Sickness; but defired Leave, in a Queftion of fuch Confequence, to confer together before they answered : And this was also the Request of the reft. Which was granted, with a fpecial Order of the Houfe to deliver their Anfwer, perfonally, in three Days Time. But what they then delivered in, not appearing fatisfactory to the Houfe, they were ordered to be examined fingly on the Queftion; but none of them appeared willing to gratify the Houfe in that Particular, except Sir Robert Maunsel.

> It may not be improper, upon this Occafion, to observe, That, for the better Employment of the Money to be expended in managing of the expected War, the Treasurers and the King's Council for the War, were required to make Oath, viz. The

And further, ' Should all be accountable for their Doings and Proceedings in that Behalf, to the Commons in Parliament, when they, or any of them, fhould be thereunto required (u).'

Whilft this Affair was debating, the King fent a Letter to the Speaker, and a Meffage, by Sir Richard Wefton, to the Houle; which were as follows:

But all these Motives and Confiderations were of fmall Weight with the Commons. They thought fit, however, fome Days after, to return the King an Answer to his Meffage, which had been prepared by a grand Committee, appointed for that Purpose. This being twice read, was agreed to by the whole House; and, upon the Question, was to be delivered to the King by the Speaker. The Commons Answer, and the King's Replication to it are both preferved by Ruftworth, in this Form:

Mr. Speaker,

The King's Re- THE Answer of the Commons delivered by you, I like well of, and do take it for a full and fatisfactory Answer, and I thank them for it; and I hope you will, with all Expedition, take a Course for Performance thereof, the which will turn to your own Good, as well as mine : But for your Clause therein. of prefenting of Grievances, I take that but for a Parenthesis in your Speech, and not a Condition; and yet, for Answer to that Part, I will tell yeu, I will be as willing to hear your Grievances, as my Predeceffors have been, fo that you will apply your felves to redrefs Grievances, and not to enquire after Grievances. I must let you know, that I will not allow any of my Servants to be questioned amongst you, much lefs fuch as are of eminent Place, and near unto unto me. The old Queffion was, What fhall be done An. I. Charles I. to the Man whom the King will honour ? But now 1625. it hath been the Labour of fome, to feek what may be done against him whom the King thinks fit to bonour. I fee you specially aim at the Duke of Buckingham : I wonder what hath to altered your Affections towards him. I do well remember, that, in the last Parliament in my Father's Time, when he was the Instrument to break the Treaties, all of you (and yet I cannot fay all, for I know fome of you are changed, but yet the Houle of Commons is always the fame) did fo much bonour and respect him, that all the Honour conferred on him was too little; and what he hath done fince to alter and change your Minds, I wot-not; but can affure you, he hath not medled, or done any Thing concerning the Public or Common-Wealth, but by special Directions and Appointment. and as my Servant; and is fo far from gaining cr. improving his Eflate thereby, that I verily think, be hath rather impaired the same. I wish you would ballen my Supply, or elle it will be worfe for your lelves : for, if any Ill happen, I think I (hall be the last that shall feel it.

But the Spirit raifed against the Minister could Mr. Coke's Renot be conjured down by any Thing the King flections on the could do; and no Supply was to be expected till Duke of Buckingham. the Duke wasgiven up to public Vengeance. The Commons followed the Chace very warmly against him; and, in fome of their Debates, very fevere Expressions were used against the Court; particularly Mr. Clement Coke (x) faid, That it was better to die by an Enemy, than to fuffer at home. And another Member, Dr. Turner, a Physician, proposed to the House the following Queries, against the Duke, grounded upon public Fame.

'Whether the Duke, being Admiral, be not the Dr. Turner's Caufe of the Lofs of the King's Royalty in the Queries against him.

When Mr. Coke fpoke those Words, or when these Queries were delivered to the House, we are not told; but the Journals inform us, that, the i4th of March, the Chancellor of the Exchequer delivered a Meflage from the King to the Houfe, both concerning the Words spoken by Mr. Coke, and the fix Articles proposed by Dr. Turner against the Duke; yet they fay no farther, than that Mr. Coke flood up to clear himfelf from any ill Inten-King, by a Mef- tion, tending to Sedition, in the Words; but Rufbworth is fuller, and gives us the Substance of the King's Meffage to the House, as well as Dr. Turner's Excuse and Letter thereupon. What he faid, he faid, the Houfe can witnefs; and what he faid, he spake for the general Good of the Common Wealth, and not upon the least Reflection of any in particular. This he thought a Parliamentary Way, warranted by antient Precedents. To accuse upon common Fame, he finds warranted, first, by the Imperial Roman Laws, and the Canons of the Church, which allowed common Fame fufficient to accufe any Man. And they that are learned amongst them³ give two Reafons: First, for Greatness. Next, for Cunning. Our Anceftors, within these Walls, have done the like, and that to a Duke, the Duke Vot. VI. E of

SIR;

Dr. Turner's Ex- THefe Lines first petition you to fignify to the Ho-cute. nourable House of Commons, That my Defires are still the fame to have made my perfonal Appearance before you, but my Ability and Strength to perform it. are not the fame; and therefore that I humbly defire them to excuse me on that Part, and to accept of this . my Answer unto the Matter that I shall speak to. 1. do confess, that, on Saturday last, in the Afternoon, I. did deliver in certain Accusations of common Fame, into the Houfe of Parliament, against my Lord Admiral, and that out of. fo many, all bearing the Signature of Vox Populi, I chose out some few, not · because they were greater, or more known Grievances, but because they did seem to direct us to find out the. Griever, or the first Cause : For I did think it was then full Time to agree the Agent and the Actions; and that it was Time also to leave confidering Grievances in Arbitration. I do now alfo agree unto you, that which hath been reported unto you by Mr. Wandesford; and by that, if you shall think fit, will put' myfelf. unto your Cenfure; hoping, and affuring myfelf, that you will find my Defign to include nothing elfe within it, but Duty and publ c Service to my Country; and alfo, that my addreffing those Acculations to the Houle of Parliament, shall, by you, be found to be done by a mannerly and Parliamentary Way. But. howfoever, it becomes me to submit my Cause to your Wildoms and equal Judgments, which I do heartily; and what foever you shall please to appoint me. I shall dutifully fatisfy. When God shall be pleased to restore me me able to attend your Service, I doubt not but to An.2. Chailes I. give you an honeft Account of all my Actions herein. And, if I shall first go to my Grave, I desire, if you find me clear, the Reputation of an honest Man, and an Englishman, may attend me thereunto. Thus I rest

Your dutiful

Notwithstanding the Order for another Hearing of this Matter, there is little or no further Mention made concerning it in the Journals, till many Days after, when the House came to debate on the Basis of Dr. Turner's Queries, Whether common Fame was a sufficient Ground for Accusation?

Upon this, April 22. a long Debate enfued in the Debate on the a-House on the Question. Mr. Maliet began, and forefaid Queries, faid, ' That the Question, Whether common Fame, was a Ground sufficient for the Commons House of Parliament to proceed upon, required great Confideration. That he was against it ; tho', he confess'd, he had feen few original Precedents in the Cafe. But the Point, Whether an Acculation upon common Fame be to be entertained there, and from thence transmitted to the Lords, he was against, for these Reasons: First, Because it would difadvantage the Party accused; confidering that he must answer the Fame as well as the Accusation. Next, Whofoever is accused here, and cleared, is, by the... Justice of this House, to have Remedy against the. Accufer; which, by this Course, he will want.'

• That if this had been an Use in Parliament, it would, from thence, have been derived to other Courts; whereas no Temporal Court hath ever used it, except in Cases Capital, as in that of Michael de la Pole. So, in the Case of Recufants, he thought it might be lawful; because the Recufant, tho' indicted, yet, conforming and taking the Oaths, is freed from all Penalties of the Law. But this was not the Case in Question.'

⁶ If this was calculated to prevent a Mifchief, it might be colerated; but, on the contrary, here, where it tends to Judgment. This, he faid, was not like the Enquiry of a Grand Jury; yet no Grand Jury, except in the Cafe of Recufants, proceedeth upon common Fame, without other Proof. He likened the Refemblance of it to a double Judgment on Account; where the first Judgment mult be grounded on a Verdict of Confession. Doubted this Precedent might be dangerous to inferior Temporal Courts, by way of Imitation.²

• That Petitions to this House for a Grievance are in Writing, the Petitioners present, and their Hands unto it. Lastly, he faid, he remembred the Case of the Bishop of Lintoln, 12. Jac. which, upon special Reason, as concerning the Honour of this House, and for which they could have no other Ground of Proof, was yet rejected, because it had no other Ground.

This Speech was anfwered, first, by Mr. Wyld; who quoted Bracton, "That all Suspicions, grounded upon Fame, were to be regarded. That fome Prefumptions admit Proof to the contrary, others not: But that this Fame must arise amongs the better Sort. All our Law-Books concur in this Point, That an Act must first be done, and the Fame rise in the County where it was done. This is a good Ground for arresting upon any Felony; as Murder, Robbery, &c. and quoted several Acts of Parliament to prove it."

Mr. Littleton faid, "That this was not a Houfe An. 2. Charles I. of definitive Judgment, but of Information, Denunciation, or Prefentment, for which common Fame was fufficient. That there was a great Difference between common Fame and Rumour: The general Voice was common Fame; and, Vox Populi, Vox Dei. By the 14th of Edward II. common Fame was more than the Saying of one Man; for that it was the Voice of many. That common Fame was a good Ground of Imprifonment for Treafon or Felony, by the 27th of Elizabeth; but the Perfon cannot then be faid to be either a Felon or a Traitor.'

"That, in other States, antient and modern, Men had been not only accufed, but condemned, by common Fame. He quoted Precedents; of the Duke of Suffolk's Cafe, 28th Henry VI. the Duke of Somerfet's, 29th Henry VI. and the Bishop of Lincoln's Cafe, in the 12th of James. Concluded, That a Man, accused by common Fame, is to anfwer only to the Accufation, and not the Fame.'

Mr. Browne, on the fame Side, argued, ' That Accufation was to be allowed, but not Calumniation : Calumniation is, in an unfit Place, to lay an Afperfion. That common Fame was called, by Civilians, Semiplena Probatio, arifing out of apparent Signs. If a private Man accufe, and it be found falfe, he is liable to Punishment; because he had nothing to do in it : But, where a Member of this House does it, libere licet Accusatio, if the Place be proper for it; otherwife, not: Therefore, an Acculation, in this House, proper. That there was no Subject, how great foever, but what is questionable here, if he be grievous to the Common-Wealth: So, in all former Precedents; and this the only Place in which to queftion great Men.'

Sir Thomas Wentworth faid, " That if they could not prefent to the Lords upon common Fame, yet they might enquire and accuse, in that House, upon it. That this was the only Safeguard for Accufation of great Men; whereas, in all others, no Man dare accuse them for Fear of Danger. Men of

An. 2. Charles I, of evil Fame were not bailable; but to be bound to good Behaviour by Act of Parliament. If common Fame was fufficient for Treafon and Felony, it was much more fo in leffer Offences. And Scandalum Magnatum lieth not, where a Man can bring forth but one Author.'

... Mr. Selden spoke next in this Debate, and argued, ? That the Queftion was now only, Whether this Houfe may proceed to transmit to the Lords upon common Fame? And furely they might, elfe no great Man shall be acculed, by any Particular; for Fear of Danger. The Faults of the Gods were not to be told, till the Goddels Fame was born. De eo male creditur, is put into Indictments for Murder. That this Courfe of Accufation was held in all the Courts in Christendom. That these Cases were to be ruled by the Law of Parliaments, and not either by the Common or Civil Law. In the Cafe of the Duke of Suffolk, 28th Henry VI. there was a general Rumour and Noife of great Offences done against the State, The Commons, taking Notice thereof, acquainted the Lords with that general Rumour, praying them he might be committed to the Tower; which the Lords, upon Confultation with the Judges, refuted; becaufe the Charge was only general : Thereupon the Commons instanced, in one Particular, That the French King was ready to invade the Kingdom thro' his Default; whereupon he was prefently committed. In the Duke of Somer fet's Cafe, 29th Henry VI. the like Clamour upon common Fame, and the Parties complained of were removed from their Offices.'

Mr. Rolle faid, " The Commons may prefent a Lord of the Higher Houle to the Lords; for he is not compellable to answer in this: And, if we cannot prefent upon common Fame, he can never be drawn to answer. If the Offence tend to Felony or Treaton, the Commons may pray to have him committed, in respect to the Quality of the Fact; but it is otherwife in fmaller Offences. In the 5th of Henry IV. a Complaint was made against the King's e, u is

King's Confession, and some others : Hereupon the An. 2. Charles I. Lords ordered they fhould be removed from about the King. And the King, in Parliament, tho' he knew no Caufe particularly, yet, becaufe the Lords and Commons had thought them unfitting, he there commanded them to come no more near him : and that if there was any others, against whom the Lords and Commons had Indignation, he would remove them alfo (y).'

Mr. Sberland argued, ' That, in a Cafe where there was probabilis Caufa litigandi, no Damages were ever awarded. That common Fame was allowed to be femiplena Probatio. That the Life and Soul of the Common-Wealth was of greater Respect than Felony. He faid, there was as well a real Treafon as a legal Treafon; the first tantamount to the other: Therefore common Fame was a fufficient Ground in this Cafe, as well as for Felony.'

The laft who fpoke in this Debate, on the fame Side, was Mr. Noy, who faid, ' That Men bound by Recognizance were fometimes imprifon'd on common Fame. That this Houfe could but enquire, they had no other Jurifdiction; for they were no Church Wardens nor Grand Jury. " And it was wrong he faid, that the Fault fhould go unpunished, because no Man durst accuse. The Grounds for an Enquiry were two; the first, common Fame; the next, whether that Fame be true. That they ought not to transmit without the first be common; but without the particular Enquiry they might: For it might happen they could not get Witneffes; fuppoling the Witneffes to be of the House of Lords.

It is eafy to fee, by the Courfe of this Debate, that the Duke had few Advocates in the Houfe of Commons. We do not even find that the State-Officers in that House faid any Thing in his Favour ; only we are told, that the Chancellor of the Dutchy being asked his Opinion, gave it against this Proceeding by common Fame.

Duke's Affair,

An. 2. Charles I. Upon the whole the Queffion was put, " Whether common Fame was a good Ground of proceeding, either to enquire of it there, or transmit the Complaint, if the Houfe think fit, to the King or the Lords ?' It was carried in the Affirmative by a great Majority.

This Remora being put by, the Commons then The Commons proceeded with great Vigour against the Duke. Seagainst the Duke veral Committees, appointed for particular Enquiof Buckingham; ries into his Conduct, brought in their Reports, and many Votes and Refolutions were taken upon them; which we shall postpone till we come to the general Charge against him. But, amongst the rest of the Committees, there was one appointed to confrder of a Supply to be granted to the King; and, March 27; Sir. Dudley Digges made the Report from it. The fame Day it was refolved upon the Question, ' That three Subsidies and three Fifteens And alfo to grant fhould be granted to his Majefty in this Seffion of Parliament, payable at three feparate Times; the Bill to be brought in, when they had prefented their Grievances, and received his Answer to them."

Hand in Hand with the Supply went the Commons Proceedings against the Duke. Rushworth informs us of one Day's Debate on that Matter; and that Sir W. Walter, if his Name be not miftaken in those Collections (2), represented to the Houfe, ' That the Caufe of all their Grievances was, becaufe, as it was faid of Lewis XI. of France; All the King's Council rides upon one Horfe : Therefore the Parliament was to advise his Majefty, as Fethro did Moles, to take unto him Affiftants with these Qualities:

I. ' Noble, from amongst all the People; not Upftarts, and of a Night's Growth.'

2. ' Men of Cour age; fuch as will execute their own Places, and not commit them to bale and undeferving Deputies.".

2. ' Fearing God; who halt not betwixt two Opinions, or incline to falle Worthip, in respect of a Mother, Wife, or Father.'

4. ⁶ Dealing truly; for Courtship, Flattery, and An. 2. Charles I. Pretence, become not King's Counfellors; but 1626. they must be such as the King and Kingdom may trust.²

5. ' Hating Covetoufnels; no Bribers, or Sellers of Places in Church or Common-Wealth, much lefs Honours and Places about the King, and leaft of all fuch as live upon other Men's Ruins.'

6. 'They fhould be many, fet over Thoufands, Hundreds, Fifties, and Tens, one Man not engroffing all. Where there is Abundance of Counfel, there is Peace and Safety.'

7. 'They must judge of fmall Matters; the greater must go to the King himfelf, not all to the Council; much lefs any one Counfellor must alone manage the whole Weight; but royal Actions must be done only by the King.'

Laftly, 'Mafes chofe them Elders, not young Men. Solomon, by Miracle and Revelation, was wife, being young; but neither his Son, nor his young Counfellors, had that Privilege: No more is it expected in any of our Counfellors, untill, by Age and Experience, they have attained it.'

Sir John Elliot continued the Debate, and thus fpake: 'We have had, fays he, a Reprefentation of great Fear; but, I hope, that fhall not darken our Understandings. There are but two Things confiderable in this Bufinefs : First, The Occafion of our Meeting : And, fecondly, The prefent State of our own Country. The first of these we all know. and it hath at large been made known unto us, and therefore needeth no Dispute. The latter of these we ought to make known, and draw and fhew it, as in a Perspective, in this House : For our Wills and Affections were never more clear, more ready as to his Majefty; but, perhaps, baulk'd and check'd in our Forwardnefs, by those the King intrusts with the Affairs of the Kingdom. The laft Action was the King's first Action ; and the first Actions and Defigns of Kings are of great Observance in the Eye of the World; for thereon much dependeth . the Effeem or Difefteem of their future Proceedings. And

An. 2. Charles I. And, in this Action, the King and Kingdom have fuffered much Difhonour: We are weaken'd in our Strength and Safety, and many of our Men and Ships are loft. This great Defign was fix'd on the Perfon of the Lord General, who had the whole Command both by Sea and Land: And can this great General think it fufficient to put in his Deputy and flay at home? Count Mansfield's Actions were fo miferable, and the going out of those Men fo ill managed, as we are fcarce able to fay they went out. That handful of Men fent to the Palatinate, and not feconded, what a Lofs was it to all Germany? We know well who had then the King's Ear. I could speak of the Action of Algier; but I will not look fo far backward. Are not Honours now fold, and made defpicable? Are not judicial Places fold ? And do not they then fell Juffice again? Vendere Jure potest, emerat ille prius. Tully, in an Oration against Verres, notes, That the Nations were Suitors to the Senate of Rome, that the Law, de Pecuniis repetundis, might be recalled : Which feems ftrange, that those that were Suitors for the Law, fhould feek again to repeal it; but the Reafon was, it was perverted to their Ill. So it is now with us; belides inferior and fubordinate Perfons that must have Gratuities, they must now feed their great Patrons."

' I shall, to our prefent Cafe, cite two Precedents: The first is II. Henry III. The Treasure was then much exhausted ; many Diforders complained on ; the King wronged by fome Ministers; many Subfidies were then demanded in Parliament, but they were denied: And then the Lords and Commons joined to defire the King to re-affume the Lands which were improvidently granted, and to examine his great Officers, 4 and the Caufes of those Evils which the People then fuffered. This was yielded unto by the King, and Hugh de Burgo was found faulty, and was difplaced; and then the Commons, in the fame Parliament, gave Supply. The fecond Precedent was in the tenth Year of Richard II, Then the Times Times were fuch, and Places fo changeable, that An. 2. Charles I. any great Officer could hardly fit to be warm'd in his Place. Then also Monies had been formerly given, and Supply was at that Parliament required : The Commons denied Supply, and complained that their Monies were mifemployed; that the Earl of Suffolk [Michael de la Pole] then over-ruled all ; and fo their Anfwer was, They could not give. And they petitioned the King, that a Commission might be granted, and that the Earl of Suffolk might be examined. A Commission; at their Request, was awarded; and that Commission recites all the Evil then complained of, and that the King, upon the Petition of the Lords and Commons, had granted that Examination should be taken of the Crown Lands which were fold; of the ordering . of his Houshold; and the Disposition of the Jewels of his Grand-Father and Father. I hear nothing faid in this Houfe of our Jewels, nor will I fpeak of them ; but I could wish they were within these Walls. We are now in the fame Cafe with those former Times; we fuffer alike, or worfe: And therefore, unlefs we feek Redrefs of thefe great Evils, we shall find Disability in the Wills of the People to grant. I wish therefore, that we may hold a dutiful Purfuance in preparing and prefenting our Grievances: For the three Sublidies and three Fifteens which are proposed, I hold the Proportion will not fuit with what we would give ; but yet I know it is all we are able to do, or can, give; and yet this is not to be the Stint of our Affections, but to come again, to give more upon just Occasions."

March 28. The King fent a Meffage to both The King cam-Houses to require their Attendance on him, at mands the At-Whitehall, the next Day, at Nine o'Clock; and, Houfes, in the mean Time, all Proceedings in the Houfe and in Committees were to ceale.: Accordingly the Lords and Commons went thither, to whom his Majefty made the enfuing Speech ;

His Speech to them. My Lords and Gentlemen,

T Have called you hither To-day, I mean both Houses of Parliament; but it is for several and diffinet Reasons. My Lords, you of the Upper Houfe, to give you Thanks for the Care of the State of the Kingdom now; and not only for the Care of your own Proceedings, but inciting your Fellow-House of the Commons to take that into their . Consideration: Therefore, my Lords, I must not only give you Thanks, but I must also avow, That if this Parliament do not redound to the Good of this Kingdom, (which I pray God it may) it is not your Faults. And you, Gentlemen of the Houle of Commons, I am forry that I may not jufly give the fame Thanks to you; but that I must tell you, that I am come here to shew you your Errors; and, as I may call it, Unparliamentary Proceedings in this Parliament: But I do not despair, because you shall see your Faults so clearly by the Lord Keeper, that you may fo amend your Proceeding, that this Parhament shall end comfortably and happily, the' at the Beginning it hath had fome Rubs.

Then the Lord Keeper, by the King's Command, fpoke next.

My Lords, and you Knights, Citizens, and Burgeffes of the Houfe of Commons,

And the Lord Keeper's.

Lord 'YOU are here affembled by his Majefty's Command, to receive a Declaration of his Royal Pleafure; which, altho' it be intended only to the Houfe of Commons, yet his Majefty hath thought meet, the Matter being of great Weight and Importance, it fhould be delivered in the Prefence of both Houfes, and both Houfes make one general Council. And his Majefty is willing that the Lords fhould be Witneffes of the Honour and Juffice of his Refolutions. And therefore the Errand which, by his Majefty's Direction, I muft deliver, hath Relation to the Houfe of of Commons. I must address myself therefore An. 2. Charles I, to you, Mr. Speaker, and the reft of that Houfe. 1626. " And, first, his Majesty would have you to understand, That there was never any King more loving to his People, or better affectioned to the · right Use of Parliaments, than his Majefty hath " approved himfelf to be; not only by his long · Patience fince the fitting down of this Parliament, but by those mild and calm Directions, " which, from Time to Time, that House hath re-· ceived by Meffage and Letter, and from his Royal · Mouth, when the irregular Humours of fome par-· ticular Perfons wrought Diversions and Distractions there, to the Difturbance of those great and weighty Affairs, which the Necessity of the . Times, the Honour and Safety of the King and "Kingdom, called upon : And therefore his Ma-· jefty doth affure you, that when these great Af-· fairs are fettled, and that his Majefty hath recei-· ved Satisfaction of his reasonable Demands, he " will, as a juft King, hear and answer your juft Grievances, which, in a dutiful Way, thall be · prefented unto him; and this his Majefty doth · avow.

. . Next, his Majefty would have you to know of ' a furety, That, as never any King was more · loving to his People, nor better affectioned to the · right Ufe of Parliaments; fo never King was more · jealous of his Honour, nor more fensible of the Neglect and Contempt of his Royal Rights, " which his Majefty will by no Means fuffer to be · violated by any pretended Colour of Parliamen-" tary Liberty; wherein his Majefty doth not forget, that the Parliament is his Council, and therefore ought to have the Liberty of a Council; but his Majefty understands the Difference be-• twixt Council and Controlling, and between Liberty and the Abufe of Liberty.

* This being fet down in general, his Majefty hath commanded me to relate fome particular • Paffages and Proceedings, whereat he finds himfelf aggrieved. · Firft,

AD. 2. Charles I. 1626.: 6

· First, Whereas a feditious Speech was uttered amongst you by Mr. Coke, the House did not, as they ought to do, cenfure and correct him. 6 And when his Majefty, understanding it, did, by a Meffage, by Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer deliver'd to the House, require Justice of you; · his Majefty hath fince found nothing but pro-" tracting and Delays. This his Majesty holds not. agreeable to the Wildom and the Duty which he • expected from the Houfe of Commons. Secondly, Whereas Dr. Turner, in a strange · Unparliamentary Way, without any Ground of · Knowledge in himfelf, or offering any particular. · Proof to the Houfe, did take upon him to ad-⁴ vife the Houfe to enquire upon fundry Articles against the Duke of Buckingham, as he pretended ; but, in Truth, to wound the Honour and Government of his Majefty, and of his renown'd · Father; and his Majefty, firft, by a Meffage, and, after, by his own Royal Mouth, did declare, "That that Courfe of Enquiry was an Example. " which by no way he could fuffer, tho' it were · against his meanest Servant, much less against one fo near him; and that his Majefty did much · wonder at the foolifh Infolency of any Man that can think, that his Majefty fhould be drawn, out of any End, to offer fuch a Sacrifice, fo unworthy of a King, or a good Mafter; yet, for all. this, you have been fo far from correcting the " Infolency of Turner, that, ever fince that Time. vour Committees have walked in the Steps of · Turner, and proceeded in an Unparliamentary " Inquifition ; running upon Generals, and repeat-'ing that whereof you have made Fame the Ground-Work. Here his Majesty hath Caufe to be exceeding fenfible, that, upon every Parti-· cular, he finds the Honour of his Father ftain'd. and blemish'd, and his own no less; and, withall, · you have manifested a great Forwardness rather to pluck out of his Bofom those who are near about him, and whom his Majefty hath Caufe to affect, than to trust his Majesty with the future. . Re-

aim at : And yet you cannot deny, but his Maighty hath wrought a greater Reformation in Matters of Religion, Execution of the Laws, and concerning Things of great Importance, than the Shortnefs of his Reign (in which he hath been hindred, partly thro' Sicknefs, and the Diftraction of Things, which we could have wifhed had been otherwife) could produce.

. Concerning the Duke of Buckingham, his Ma-' jefty hath commanded me to tell you, That him-' felf doth better know than any Man living the Sincerity of the Duke's Proceedings; with-" what Cautions of Weight and Difcretion he hath • been guided in his public Employments from his Majefty and his bleffed Father; what Enemies he " hath procured at home and abroad ; what Peril-6 of his Perfon, and Hazard of his Eftate he ran , into for the Service of his Majefty, and his ever bleffed Father; and how forward he hath been ' in the Service of this Houfe many Times fincehis Return from Spain : And therefore his Ma-· jefty cannot believe that the Aim is at the Duke ' of Buckingham; but findeth, that these Proceed-' ings do directly wound the Honour and Judgment of himfelf, and of his Father. It is therefore his Majefty's express and final Command-' ment, That you yield Obedience unto those Di-· rections which you have formerly received, and * ceafe this Unparliamentary Inquifition; and com-. mit unto his Majesty's Care, and Wildom, and · Juffice, the future Reformation of these Things, which you suppose to be otherwise than they " fhould be. And his Majefty, is refolved, that, · before the End of this Selfion, he will fet fuch a · Courfe, both for the amending of any Thing. ' that may be found amifs, and for the fettling of · his own Estate, as he doubteth not but will give • you ample Satisfaction and Comfort.

' Next to this, his Majefty takes Notice, That ' you have fuffered the greateft Council of State to · be cenfured and traduced in the Houfe, by Men " whole Years and Education cannot attain to that Depth: That foreign Bufineffes have been ene tertained in the Houfe, to the Hinderance and · Difadvantage of his Majefty's Negotiations: That ' the fame Year, yea, the first Day of his Majefty's Inauguration, you fuffered his Council, Go-· vernment, and Servants to be paralell'd with the Times of moft Exception : That your Commit-* tees have prefumed to examine the Letters of · Secretaries of State, nay, his own; and fent a e general Warrant to his Signet-Office, and com-· manded his Officers, not only to produce and " fhew the Records, but their Books and private * Notes, which they made for his Majefty's Service. This his Majefty holds as unfufferable, as * it was in former Times unufual. . Next I am to speak concerning your Supply of " Three Sublidies and Three Fifteenths, which you · have agreed to tender to his Majefty. You have · been made acquainted with the Greatness of his

⁶ Affairs, both at home and abroad; with the ftrong Preparation of the Enemy; with the Importance of upholding his Allies, ftrengthening and fecuring both England and Ireland; befides the encountering and annoying the Enemy by a powerful Fleet at Sea, and the Charge of all: This having been calculated unto you, you have profeffed unto his Majefty, by the Mouth of your Speaker, your Carefulnefs to fupport the Caufe wherein his Majefty and his Allies are juftly engaged; your unanimous Confent and real Intentention to fupply his Majefty in fuch a Meafure as fhould make him fafe at home, and feared abroad; and that, in the Difpatch hereof, you

" And now his Majesty having erected a Pro-

ferve, that, in two Days only of twelve, this

"Bufinefs was thought of; and not begun, till his whilft your Inquifition, against his Majefty's Direction, proceeded Day by Day.

" And, for the Measure of this Supply, his Ma-' jefty findeth it fo far from making himfelf fafe at home, and feared abroad, as, contrarywife, it exposeth him both to Danger and Difesteem; 6 · for his Majefty cannot expect, without better Help, but that his Allies must prefently difband, 6 " and leave him alone to bear the Fury of a pro-· voked and powerful Enemy; fo as both he and " you shall be unfafe at home, and ashamed, and defpited abroad. And for the Manner of the Supply, it is in itfelf very difhonourable, and full of Diftruft; for although you have avoided the · literal Word of a Condition, whereof his Majefty · himfelf did warn you, when he told you of your · Parenthefis; yet you have put to it the Effect of • a Condition, fince the Bill is not come into your 6 Houfe, untill your Grievances be both preferred and anfwered. No fuch Thing was in that Ex-* prefiion and Engagement delivered by your Speaker,' from which his Majefty holdeth that you ⁶ have receded both in Matter and Manner, to * his great Difadvantage and Difhonour. And " therefore his Majefty commandeth, that you go together, and by Saturday next, return your final " Anfwer, what further Supply you will add to • this you have already agreed on; and that to be " without Condition, either directly or indirectly, ⁶ for the Supply of these great and important Affairs of his Majefty; which, for the Reafons for-⁶ merly made known unto you, can endure no * longer Delay; and, if you shall not by that Time * refolve on a more ample Supply, his Majetty cannot expect a Supply this Way, nor promife · you to fit longer together; otherwife, if you do it, his Majefty is well content, that you shall fit fo long as the Seafon of the Year will permit; and doth affure you, that the prefent Addition to " your Supply to let forward the Work, shall be no. . Hindrance to your fpeedy Accels again. Vol. VI. His

An. 2. Charles I. ... His Majefty hath commanded me to add this, · That therein he doth expect your chearful Obedience, which will put a happy Iffue to this . Meeting, and will enable his Majefty not only to a defensive War, but to employ his Subjects in foreign Actions, whereby will be added to them both Experience, Safety and Honour.

· Last of all, his Majesty hath commanded me, in Explanation of the gracious Goodnefs of his Royal Intention, to fay unto you, That he doth " well know, that there are among you many wife and well tempered Men, well affected to the Pub-! lick, and to his Majefty's Service ; and that those that are willingly, faulty are not many: 'And, for the reft, his Majefty doubteth not, but, after ⁶ his gracious Admonition, they will, in due Time, obferve and follow the better Sort; which, if they shall do, his Majesty is most ready to forget whatfoever is paft.

Then his Majefty fpake again,

The King's further Speech.

I Must withall put you in mind a little of Time past; you may remember, that, in the Time of my bleffed Father, you did, with your Counfel and Perfuafion, perfuade both my Father and me to break off the Treaty; I confess I was your Instrument for two Reafons; one was, the Fitnefs of the Time; the other, because I was seconded by so great and worthy a Body as the whole Body of Parliament : Then there was no body in fo great Favour with you, as this Man whom you feem now to touch, but indeed, my Father's Government and mine. Now that you have all Things according to your Wishes, and that I am so far engaged that you think there is no Retreat; now you begin to set the Dice, and make your own Game: But, I pray you be not deceived, it is not a Parliamentary IVay, nor it is not a Way to deal with a King. Mr. Coke told you, It was better to be eaten up by a Foreign Enemy, than to be deftroyed at Home. Indeed I think it more Honour for a King to be invaded, and almost destroyed by a Foreign Enemy, than to be despised by his own Subjects. 58 3 IV Remema

Remember, that Parliaments are altogether in my An. 2. Charles I. Power for their Calling, Sitting, and Diffolution; therefore as I find the Fruits of them good or evil, they are to continue, or not to be: And, remember, that, if in this Time, instead of mending your Errors, by Delay you persist in your Errors, you make them greater, and irrecontileable: Whereas, on the other Side, if you do go on chearfully to mend them, and look to the distressed State of Christendom, and the Affairs of the Kingdom; as it lieth now by this great Engagement; you will do yourfelves Honour, you shall encourage me to go on with Parliaments, and, I hope, all Christendom shall feel the Good of it.

The King being, very foon after this, informed that fome Things in his own Speeches and others in the Lord Keeper's were fubject to Mifunderftanding, was willing to have them explained. A Meflage from the Lords was fent down to the lower House, March the 30th, to defire a Conference with them, immediately, in the Painted-Chamber. Which, being accepted of, the Duke of Buckingham, as ordered by his Majesty, made the following Declaration :

Whereas it is objected by fome, who wifh The Duke of good Correspondency betwixt the King plains fome Mifand People, that to prefix a Day to give or to apprehentions of break, was an unufual Thing, and might express the King's and an Inclination in the King to break; to remove the Lord Keep-• this, as his Majefty was free from fuch Thoughts, . he hath descended to make this Explanation.

. That as his Majesty would not have you con-· dition with him directly or indirectly, fo he will ' not lie to a Day, for giving further Supply; but " it was the preffing Occasion of Christendom that • made him to pitch upon a Day.

• His Majefty hath here a Servant of the King • of Denmark, and another from the Duke of • Weymer; and Yesterday received a Letter from • his Sifter the Queen of Bohemia, who fignified that the King of Denmark hath fent an Ambaf-Ff2 · fador

* Therefore his Majefty is pleafed to give longer "Time, hoping you will not give him Caufe to put you in Mind of it again ; fo that you have a greater Latitude, if the Bufiness require to think further of it.

' I am commanded, further to tell you, that if his Majefty fhould accept of a lefs Sum than will ' fuffice, it will deceive your Expectations, difap-· point his Allies, and confume the Treafure of the " Kingdom ; whereas, if you give largely now, ' the Bufinefs being at the Crifis, it comes fo fea-٤. fonably, it may give a Turn to the Affairs of · Christendom.

• But while we delay and fuffer the Time to pafs, others abroad will take Advantage of it, as the King of Spain hath done, by concluding a " Peace, as'tis thought, in Italy, for the Valtoline; " whereby our Work is become the greater, becaufe ' there can be no Diversion that Way.

" As it was a good Rule to fear all Things and nothing, and to be liberal was fometimes to be thrifty; fo in this Particular, if you give largely, 6 you fhall carry the War to the Enemy's Door, 6 ٤. and keep that Peace at Home that hath been : Whereas, on the contrary, if you draw the War . Home, it brings with it nothing but Diftur-· bance and Fear, all Courfes of Juffice ftopp'd, • and each Man's Revenue leffened, and nothing • that can be profitable.

• Another Explanation I am commanded to make, touching the Grievances; wherein his · Majesty means no way to interrupt, your Pro-" ceedings, but hopes you will proceed in the antient Ways of your Predeceffors; and not fo · much feek Faults, as the Means to redrefs them. ' I am further commanded to tell you, That ⁴ his Majefty intends to elect a Committee of both " Houfes, whom he will truft to take the View of

Charles I. 1626. ⁶ the Eyes of a Multitude; and this Committee " will be for your Eafe, and may fatisfy you, " without caffing any ill Odour on his Govern-6 ment, or laying open any Weakness that may bring Shame upon us abroad. That which is propofed ' is fo little, that when the Payment comes, it " will bring him to a worfe Eftate than now he is ' in ; therefore wifhes You to enlarge it, but leaves " the Augmentation to Yourfelves; but is forry, 6 and touch'd in Confcience, that the Burthen fhould lie on the pooreft, who want too much 6 already; yet he will not prefcribe, but wifh that ' you, who were the Abettors and Counfellors of ⁶ thisWar, would take a greater Part of the Burthen ⁶ to yourfelves; and any Man that can find out ' that Way, shall shew himself best affected, and " do the beft Service to the King and State."

The Duke then made his Address to them in his own Behalf.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

OU were all Witneffes Yefterday how good And alfo vindiand gracious a Mafter I ferve; and I fhallcates himfelf.

likewife be glad that you be Witneffes how thankful a Heart I have.

And, I proteft, I have a Heart as full of Zeal to ferve my Mafter, as any Man; and it hath been my Study to keep a good Correspondency betwixt the King and his People: And, whatever Thought hath been entertain'd of me, I shall not alien my Heart from that Intention, but shall add Spurs to my Endeavours and Actions, to vindicate myself from ill Opinion.

• And however I lie under the Burden of the • fame, it lies in your Hands to make me happy • or not; and, for my Part, I wifh my Heart and • Actions were known to you all; then, I affure • myfelf, you would refume me to your good • Opinions.

When I had, with fome Hazard, waited on my Mafter into Spain, it is well known what Teftimony I gave of my Religion; and no Man

An. 2. Charles I. 6 that comes to a true and near View of my Actions, can justly charge me. Let me be excufed if I give Account of this Particular, when I fhould speak of the General; for this goes near · my Heart, and to diffemble with my Confcience, no Ends of Fortunes in the World can · make me do it: For, if I had any ill Inclinaf tion, I had fuch Offers made to me in Spain, as might have tempted me.

· If I would have been converted myfelf, I " might have had the Infanta put in my Master's Bed; and, if my Discontent should have risen • here, I might have had an Army to have come with me: But I thought the Offer foolish, ridiculous and fcornful, in that Point of Religion. I will now take the Boldnefs to fpeak a little 6 in the general Bufiness; and I call it Boldness to fpeak after one who did fo well the other Day : · But I had rather fuffer in my own Particular, ' than not refresh your Memories with that which ⁶ is materially needful.

. I shall not need to reflect to far back as to the Beginning of those Counfels which engaged my " Mafter into the War, they are all well known; • only I will fo far touch it, as to fay, that the · last Year's Preparations were not voluntary, or ⁶ out of Wantonefs, but out of Neceffity.

. My Mafter had good Intelligence that the King • of Spain's Eye was malicioufly bent this Way, " which had been purfued accordingly, if the Em-· ployment of the Low-Country-Men to the Bay · of Todos los Santos had not diverted it.

. Now, for the Counfel which was used in fend-· ing out the Fleets, I will refer you to the Relation of the Lord Conway; who, as well in this as • other Refolutions, can tell you, that nothing was · carried with fingle Counfels: And, for myfelf, · I know, that in all those Actions, no Man can ftand up against me, to fay, that I ever did go with fingle Counfels, or made Breach of any; • but have been an obedient Servant and Minister unto their Refolutions; The Proof whereof will

⁶ appear in a Journal thereof, which my Lord An. 2. Charles I. ⁶ Conway keeps.

• I confefs all Counfels were not ever as yourfelves would, nor have wifhed they fhould; if you had known them as my Mafter did, in whom the former Affairs of State had bred fuch Affections, that the Bufinefs being altered, they were not to be trufted with the Change.

[•] I will now give you an Account of all my [•] Negotiations, fince my being at Oxford, both at [•] home and abroad; and because there it was [•] charged, that those Things were carried with [•] fingle Counfels, I was more careful to advise the [•] King to have his Council with him in the Coun-[•] try, being to enter into War with an active [•] King.

• And if the Succeis were not fuch as any honeft • Man could wifh, I hope I fhall not be blamed, • not being there in Perfon, though I made the • greateft Suit for it to my Mafter, that ever I did • for any thing: But his Majefty thought my Ser-• vice more ufeful in the Low Countries, to com-• fort his Sifter, and to treat with the Kings of • Denmark, Sweden and the States.

And though the Succefs (as I faid) of the Fleet, were not antwerable to the Defires of honeft Men, yet it had thefe good Effects; Firft, it put out Enemy to great Charge in fortifying his Coafts.
Secondly, they took to many Ships as caufed

rles 1. • Army in Flanders fuffered much: And, laftly, • • they could carry no Treafure out to pay their • Forces in Flanders.

• And for Omiffions of what more might have • been done, I leave that to its proper Place and • Time, and let every Man bear his own Burden.

· From Oxford the Council went to Southamp-· ton, where the States Ambafladors did wait often on the King and Council; and a League, Offenfive and Defenfive, betwixt us and them, was ' thought fit to be refolved on, whereof fome Reafons I will express, but not all. First, they s are of our own Religion. Secondly, they are our Neighbours, for Situation fo uleful, as when they are in Diftrefs, it is Policy in us to give • them Relief; therefore the King thought fit to do it in fuch a Manner as might lay an Obliga-" tion on them; which, if it had not been done, they had been prefled with a long War, and fuch · a Faction among themfelves, as, if the King had s not joined, and in a Manner appeared their Protector, they had broke among themfelves. And ' in this the King's Care was not only of them, · but of all Christendom, and of his own Particu-· lar.

• For, as before, he only affifted them; his • Majefty's Care now ufed Arguments to draw them • to Contribution; fo that they bear the fourth Part • of the Charge of the War at Sea, according to • fuch Conditions, as, by the Lord Chamberlain, • you have heard.

• Now I had difcovered from Monfieur B— • the French Ambaffador here, that a League, Of • fentive fenfive and Defenfive, would be refufed; and I An. 2. Charles I. found the King of Denmark fhie, and loath to 1626. enter into fuch a League against the King of · Spain; and fo, partly out of Neceffity, and ⁶ partly out of Reafons of State, I was forced to · conclude the League in general Terms, for the " reftoring the Liberty of Germany, without naming the King of Spain, or the Emperor, that · other Princes might come in; and this to conti-• nue till every one had Satisfaction ; and nothing · to be treated of, debated, or concluded on, but · by Confent of all Parties. It did appear that the · Charge was fo great, that the Kingdom could " not endure it; and therefore I endeavoured, in the Low Countries, to leffen it, and fo the Sea-· Charge was helped; and the Land-Affiftance given unto them, is to ceafe fix Months hence. . which the Lord Conway faid was to end in Sep-· tember next. .

• But all is in the different taking of the Time; • for, if not, we may think the King of Denmark • will take hold of those fair Conditions which are • each Day offered him; and then the Enemy's • Army will fall upon the River of Elve, and (the • Lord Conway added) upon East-Friezland, from • whence they would make fuch Progress, as (in • my poor Experience) would ruin the Low Coun-• tries, • And

An. 2. Charles I. . . And thus I think I have fatisfied all of you, or at least given an Account of my Negotiation in • the Low Countries, with the King of Denmark. · Sweden, and the reft.

. I fhould be glad, before I end, to fay fomewhat of myfelf, but I fhall request your favourable Construction, for I have been too long already; but I fear I shall offend, and therefore I · will reftrain myfelf to Generals.

⁶ If, in any of these Employments, my Errors · may be fhewed me, I shall take him for my beft · Friend that will manifest them in particular. I • have bent all my Thoughts on nothing but my "Master's Honour, the Service of the State, and · Safety of them both. I never had any End of ' mine own, and that may be perceived and proved by the Expence of mine own Eftate. I am ashamed to speak it, and it would become ano-" ther Man's Tongue better than mine own.

" My Journey into Spain was all at my own Charge; my Journey into France was at my " Master's Charge; my Journey into the Lnu

" I am accufed, by common Fame, to be the · Caufe of the Lofs of the Narrow Seas, and the · Damage there fultained. What I can fay, is this, fince the War begun with Spain, I have al-· ways had twelve Ships on the Coafts, and Allowance but for four; the reft my own Care fupplied. And, for the Office of Admiral, when I came first to it, I found the Navy weak, not e neglected by my noble Predeceffor (for I cannot · fpeak of him but with Honour; and I shall defire to go to my Grave with the Honour he carried hence) but the not paying of Monies in Time. · there were fuch Defects his Care could not prevent; that, if the War had then broken out, · there would have been found but few Ships, and · those unserviceable. I was first prevail'd on to ' take this Office by Perfuasion of Sir Robert' · Manfel; and, though I objected I was young, and unexperienced, yet he faid, that, by my Favour vour with my Mafter, I might do more Good in An. 2. Charles I. procuring Payment for that Charge; and, befocuting Payment for that Charge; and, becaufe I was young and unexperienced, I took Advice, as I do in all Things, and am not afhamed of it. I have defired my Mafter to grant a Commiffion as it were over me. I have found a great Debt, the Ships defective, and few in Number; the yearly Charge of 54,0001. which was brought to 30,0001. per Annum; we built every Year two Ships; and when fo many were built as were requifite, we brought it to 22,0001.

per Annum, which comes not into my Hands, but goes into its proper Streams, and iffues from the Officers to that Purpofe deputed.

• Now if any can fhew me a Project, how to • maintain a War againft Spain, Flanders, and the • Turki/h Pirates with lefs Charge, he will do a • great Work, and good Service. I have had • fometimes twenty, fometimes thirty Ships, tho • fometimes difaftered by Tempeft, which dif-• perfed the Hollanders Ships, and caufed them to • cut their Mafts and forfake their Anchors.

There are now twelve Ships victualled for two Months; and, though many Reports have been,
that they do not do their Duty, yet I have advertifed them thereof from Time to Time, and find no fuch Fault in them.

⁶ There are thirty Ships more at Plymouth, vic-⁶ tualled for fix Months, and ten more ready, fo ⁶ foon as they may be victualled. I have been fo ⁶ frugal of making use of the old Remains, that ⁶ there is no Need of Ammunition, or other Ne-⁶ ceffaries.

• Befides all these, there are twenty Ships to • come from the Low Countries; to you have • twelve, twenty, thirty, and ten more, which I • think you have not heard of.

• And therefore, if any have blamed me, I do • not blame him, but think he hath done well; • but when you know the Truth, and when all • this fhall appear, I hope I fhall ftand right in • your Opinions.

An. 2. Charles I. ' Gentlemen, it is no Time to pick Quarrels one with another ; we have Enemies enough already, and therefore more necessary to be well · united at Home.

Follow not Examples, at leaft not ill Exam-"amples of Gondomor and Ynojofa, who would have had my Head, when you thought me worthy of a Salute. Now, though I confess there may be fome Errors, 1 will not justify myself; yet they are not fuch gross Defects as the World would · make them appear. I defire they may be ad-· mitted cum Nota.

" They are no Errors of Wilfulnefs, nor of " Corruption, nor oppreffing of the People, nor · Injustice, but contrary; and then may I fay, for • what Good done by me do I fuffer?

• And now I might answer more Particulars, ' but I have been long, and fo will forbear; and will conclude, if your Supply anfwer not your · Promifes and Engagements to my Mafter, you " will make this Place, which hath been in Peace " when others were in War, the Seat of War • when others are in Peace.

. Account of it.

. When King James, of glorious Memory, at . the Requeit of both Houses, had broken both the 6 Treaties, he confidered how to maintain the War; for he faw that the King of Spain was 6 awaked, and that the Palatinate must be got by the Sword, and that Spain would oppose it with Ġ all the Power they could; and computing the 6 Charges, found the Subfidies granted too fhort; 6 for that it could not be done without an Army of 6 25,000 Foot, and 5000 Horle, which would a-6 mount to 600,000 l. for the Armies yearly, and ۲ 300,000 l. for the Navy; but, finding all-his 6 Means fhort, and as the Proverb is, Not knowing of what Wood to make his Arrows to bit the 6 Mark withall, Count Mansfield ftirred up by his 6 6 own Judgment, came over and made Overture, · That for 20,000 l. a Month he would raife an · Army of 30,000 Men, and draw in the French, . King, Denmark, Sweden, Venice, Savoy, the Can-' tons of the Switzers, and, perhaps, fome other, German Princes, and raife a War in Alfatia, of, great Confequence to make a Diversion.

refolved to call a Diet, and exclude the Count Palatine, and put in a Popific Elector; and, for that End, offered a general Peace in Germany, and fo left not a Crevice to look into for Affiftance; but if any of them fhould aid the Count
Palatine, he fhould be out of the Peace.

⁶ The King accepts Mansfield's Offer, conditionally, that he drew in the French King: So ⁶ Mansfield went over into France; and the King, ⁶ by Advice of his Council, fent Ambaffadors into ⁶ France, Denmark, Venice, Savoy, and Cantons ⁶ of the Switzers, from whom he received cold ⁶ Anfwers; for King James had ftood fo long on ⁶ Terms

Terms of Peace, as they doubted he would not be brought to enter into a War. But Count Mans-" field procured the King of France to contract or receive our Troops, with Promife to enter into the War, upon Condition it might be regulated by the Council of the French King and England. . This Favour to Count Mansfield, That France • agreed that his Armies fhould join with the King's · Troops, wrought the Princes of Germany to be-· lieve, that the King would enter into a War. Thereupon the Imperialists left their Diet, and fent Tilly to Friezland; and to take up the River of Embden; which, if he had obtained, they would have trampled the Low Countries under foot, and would have become Governors of the 2 6 8 · Sea.

" Upon this the King of Denmark fent to our King, and offered to raife an Army of 30,000 Men, if our King would allow 30,000 l. a . Most gracious Sovereign.

The Commons Anfwer to the King's and the Lord Keeper's Speeches.

THereas your Majefty hath been pleafed of late, at fundry Times, and by feveral Means, to impart unto us your Royal Pleafure, touching fome Paflages and Proceedings in this present Parliament: We do first, with unspeakable Joy and Comfort, acknowledge your Majefty's Grace and Favour, in that it hath pleafed you to caufe it to be delivered unto us by the Lord Keeper of your Great Seal, in your own · Royal Prefence, and before both Houfes of Par-· liament, That never King was more loving to his People, nor better affected to the right Ufe of · Parliaments; withall profeffing your most gra-· cious Refolution to hear and redrefs our just Grievances. · First, touching the Charge against us in the ⁶ Mattter concerning Mr. Coke : We all fincerely. proteft, That neither the Words mentioned in ' your Majefty's Meffage, nor any other of feditious Effect, were spoken by him, as hath been refolved by the Houfe, without one negative Voice. Howfoever, in a Speech occafionally 6 uttered, he did let fall fome few Words which might admit an ill Conftruction; whereat the " Houfe being difpleafed at the Delivery of them, s as was expressed by a general and instant Check, , he forthwith fo explain'd himfelf and his Intention, that, for the prefent, we did forbear to take ' them into Confideration, which fince we have done : And the Effect thereof had before this ap-' peared, if, by importunate Bufinefs of your Majefty's Service, we had not been interrupted.

• The like Interruption did alfo befall us in the • Cafe of Dr. Turner; wherein the Queftion • being formally flated, a Refolution was ordered • to have been taken that very Day, on which we • received your Majefty's Command to attend • you.

' But for our own Proceedings, we humbly be-· feech your Majefty to be truly informed, that before that Overture from Dr. Turner, (out of our great and neceffary Care for your Honour and Welfare of your Realm) we had taken into ' ferious Confideration the Evils which now afflict ' your People, and the Caufes of them, that we ' might apply ourfelves unto the fitteft Remedies: . paralelling your Majefty's Government, or Councils, to any Times at all, much lefs to Times of his own Justification, and after, by Direction of

There is nothing material entered in their Jour-nals this Seffion, till March 6. when the Houfe 1626. was put in mind, that they had now fat a Month, and yet not confidered of the State of the Nation; as it then flood with a great and potent Enemy, the Spaniard exasperated, and preparing great Forces for an Invalion : Therefore their Lordships were moved to appoint a Committee, to confider of the The Lords con-State of the Realm, in general; and, in particu-fider the State of lar, of the Safeguard of the Seas; the Stores of the Realm; Munition and Arms, and all Things incident thereto; and of fortifying the Forts. A Committee was appointed accordingly.

The next Day the Lord Keeper fignified to the Houfe, ' That his Majefty took fpecial Notice of that Committee, and, with great Approbation thereof, commanded him to give their Lordfhips very hearty. Thanks for their Zeal therein, to his Honour and the Safeguard of the Realm; and defired them to proceed in it with all Speed and Alacrity. King gives them Upon this Report the Houfe refolved, upon a Conference with the Commons; and a felect Committee of each Houfe, confifting of forty Lords and a proper Number of the Commons, was appointed to meet at Three that Afternoon. The

The Houfes fat that Afternoon, and the Lords Committees, being returned from the Conference, reported, ' That they had fully related to the Commons the Caufe of that Meeting; and that they had promifed to deliver the fame to their Houfe.'

There is nothing further faid of this Conference in the Journals of the Lords; and, in those of the Commons, the Report made of it, by Mr. Pymme, and Sir Nathaniel Rich, is left fhort as to any thing more, than that the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Lord Chamberlain spoke both on the Occasion. We are beholden to Mr. Rushworth for the Heads of a Speech made by William Earl of Pembroke, then Lord Great Chamberlain of England, to a Committee of the Commons at this Conference."

This noble Lord represented the State of Chriflendom to them, how it ftood before the Breach of the Treaties with Spain, and how fince; he faid, . That the Condition of the Palatinate was nothing bettered; that Count Mansfield's Army was raifed, in order to make a Diversion of the Catholic League in Germany; that the King of Denmark had thereupon engaged himfelf to ftand or fall in this Quarrel, provided Supplies might be had from hence; that the Swedes were forward in it; and that his Majesty had made a strict Alliance with the Hollanders, upon these Terms, That they should bear a fourth Part of the Expence of our Navy, and only have a fourth Part of the Spoils; the Lands and Cities conquered to be the King's. Lastly, That the Fruits of all these rich Advantages would be loft, if a fpeedy Affiftance was not refolved on.'

go on, as before, and give no Anfwer at all to them. An. 2. Charles I. On this, the Queffion being put, Whether to anfwer or Not? the Houfe divided, and it was carried in the Affirmative 226 againft 166; and a Committee was appointed to confider of and draw up an Anfwer to that Purpofe. But we cannot find, by either Journals, that ever any Anfwer was returned to the Lords about this Bufinefs; the Commons feeming more intent on redreffing Grievances at home, than troubling themfelves about Affairs abroad.

The Lords, notwithstanding, went on with their Committee for the Defence of the Realm, &z. and, on the 24th of March, the Lord Treasurer, reported to the House, That the faid Committee had made several Agreements with Merchants for importing and making of Salt-Petre and Gun-Powder; also, with the Armourers and Gun-Makers, in and about London, for providing a sufficient Quantity of those warlike Stores.—But their Care in these Things was soon interrupted by Affairs of a different Nature, which took up all the Attention of the House of Lords.

Digby Earl of Briffel, fo much concerned in The Cafe of Digthe late Negotiations in Spain, about the Match, &c. by Earl of Briffel. on his Return from thence, had been committed Prifoner to the Tower. This Earl had been alfo examined by a Committee of Lords, appointed by the King, touching those Affairs; and certain Propositions were made to him in order to his Release, and composing the Differences between the Duke and him. On his Refusal, in fome Measure, to comply with the Terms, the Lord Conway, Secretary of State, wrote to him the following Letter, and received his Anfwer to it.

The LORD CONWAY, to the EARL of BRISTOL.

An. 2. Charles I. Majefty's Commandment. This last Letter, according to my Duty, I have shewed unto his Majesty, who bath perused it, and hath commanded me to write back to you again, that he finds himself nothing sa-tisfied therewith. The Question propounded to your Lordship, from bis Majesty, was plain and clear, Whether you did rather chufe to fit still without being questioned for any Errors pass'd in your Negotiations in Spain, and enjoy the Benefit of the late gracious Pardon granted in Parliament, whereof you may have the Benefit : Or whether, for the clearing of your Innocency, (whereof your felf, and your Friends and Followers, are 'so confident) you will be content to wave the Advantage of that Pardon, and put yourfelf into a legal Way of Examination for the Trial thereof. His Majefly's Purpofe thereby, is not to prevent you of any Favours the Law hath given you; but if your Assurance be such as your Words and Letters import, he conceives it stands not with that pub-lic and refolute Profession of your Integrity to decline your Trial. His Majesty leaves the Choice to yourfelf, and requires from you a direct Anfwer, without Circumlacution or Bargaining with him for future Favours before hand; but if you have a Defire to make use of that Pardon which cannot be denied you, nor is any way defired to be taken from you, his Majesty expects you should at the least forbear to magnify your Service, and, out of an Opinion of your Innocency, cast an Aspersion upon bis Majesty's Justice, in not affording you that prejent Fulness of Liberty and Favour which cannot be drawn from him, but in his good Time, and according to his good Pleasure.

Thus much I have in Commandment to write to your Lordfnip, and to require your Anfaver clearly and plainly by this Messenger, sent on purpose for it, and lo remain,

OF ENGLAND. 473

The EARL of BRISTOL to the LORD CONWAY. An. 2. Chatles I.

My Lord,

I Have received your Letter of the 24th of March, The Earl's An-the 28th, and I am infinitely grieved to under-fwer.

fland, that my former Anjwer to yours of, the 4th of March bath not fatisfied his Majesty, which I will endeavour to do to the best of my Understanding; and, to that End, Shall answer to the particular Points of your prefent Letter with the greatest Clearness I am able.

First, Whereas you fay in your Letter, That the Question propounded to me was plain and clear, viz. Whether 1 would chufe to fit still without being. questioned for any Errors pass'd in my Negotiations in Spain, and enjoy the Benefit of the late gracious Pardon, whereof I may take the Benefit? Or whether, being content to wave the Advantage of that Pardon, I should put myself into a legal Way of Examination for the Trial thereof? &c.

First, Your Lordship may be pleased to remember your last Proposition was, Whether I desired to rest in the Security I was in? which you now express, Whether I will chuse to sit still?

Secondly, Your Proposition was, Whether I would acknowledge the gracious Favour of his Majesty that, now is, who had been pleased not to question my Actions? When it is best known to your Lordship, That, by a Commission of the Lords, I was questioned upon twenty Articles, divers involving Felony and Treason: Altho' it be true. That when I had fo answered (as I am confident their Lordships would have cleared me) I was fo unhappy as their Lordships never met more about that Business.

· But now your Proposition is, Whether I will now · chufe to fit fill without being further questioned for Errors pals'd? Whereas before it was required I should acknowledge that I have not been questioned at all; which is a different Thing. But conferring both your Letters together, and gathering the Senfe and Meaning, by making the latter an Explanation of the former,

An. 2 Charles I. mer, which I could have wifhed your Lord/hip would 1626. have more clearly explained, I return unto your Lordfhip this plain and direct Anfwer.

> That I understand, by the Security I am in, and fitting fill, and not being further questioned, that I am restored to the bare Freedom and Liberty of a Subject and Peer: For if a Man be called in question by his Majefty, yet afterwards his Majefty (hall be pleafed, out of his Goodness, that he rest quiet and secure, and that he shall not be further questioned; I conceive that it is not apparent that his Liberty naturally revolveth unto him, when by his Majesty's Grace he is pleased to declare he shall not be further questioned, but may live in further Security. So that, understanding your Letter in this fort, (for no direct Answer can be made, untill the Sense of the Question be truly stated) I do most humbly acknowledge and accept his Majesty's Grace and Favour, and thall not wave any thing that shall come to me by the Pardon of the 21. Jacobi Regis, nor by the Pardon of his Majefty's Coronation. And am fo far from Bargaining, as you are pleased to express it, for future Favour (though I hope my bumble and submissive Courses of petitioning his Majesty, neither hath nor shall deferve so hard an Expression) that I shall not presume so much as to press for any Favour, untill my dutiful and loyal Behaviour may move his Majefly's Royal and Gracious Heart thereunto; but receive, with all Humblenes. this my Freedom and Liberty, the which I shall only make use of in such fort, as I shall judge may be most. agreeable to bis Majefty's Pleafure.

As for the fecond Part of your Letter, whereinyou fay, That if I defire to make use of that Pardon, his Majesty expects that I should at least forbear tomagnify my Services; or, out of an Opinion of my own Innocency, cast an Aspersion upon his Majesty's Justice: To this Point I answer, That as I hope I shall never err in that fort of Immodesty, of valuing my Services, which I acknowledge to have been accompanied with infinite Weakness and Disabilities; so I trust it shall not displease, that I make use, to mine own Comfort, and

and the Honour of my Posterity, of those many writ- An. 2. Charles 1. ten Testimonies, which my late most Blessed Master bath left me, of his gracious Acceptance of my Services for the Space of twenty Years: And likewife I hope the modest avowing of mine Innocency will not be thought to cast any Apersion upon his Majesty's Honour or Juflice. I must freely confess unto your Lordship, I am much afflicted to see Inferences of this Nature made, both in your Lordship's last Letter and in this. For . if it shall be inferred, as a Thing reflecting upon the King's Honour, that a Man questioned shall not endeavour to defend his own Innocency before he be convicted, it will be impossible for any Man to be fafe; for the Honour of his Majefty is too facred a Thing for any Subject, how innocent foever, to contest against. So likewise, God forbid that it should be brought into Confequences, (as in your former Letter) as a Tax upon the Government and Justice of his late Majefty, and Majefty that now is, that I should have Juffered so long Time, not being guilty. For as I never have been heard so much as to repine of Injustice in their Majesties, in all my Sufferings, so I well know, that the long Continuance of my Troubles may well be attributed unto other Caufes; as to my own Errors of Paffion, or other Accidents: For your Lordship may well remember, that my Affairs were, almost two Years fince, upon the Point of a happy Accommodation, had it not been interrupted by the unfortunate mislaking of the Speeches I used to Mr. Clark.

I shall conclude by intreating your Lordship's Favour, that I may understand from you, as I hope for my Comfort, that this Letter hath given his Majesty Satisfaction; or if there should yet remain any Scruple, that I may have a clear and plain Signification of the King's Pleasure; which I shall obey with all Humility.

Your Lordship's humble Servant,

There is no Anfwer to this Letter in the four-nals; but, inftead of it, we find another Petition from the Earl, addreffed to the Lords, on his receiving his Writ of Summons; to which he annexed the Lord Keeper's Letter and his Anfwer, and defired to be heard in Accufation of the Duke.

The HUMBLE PETITION of JOHN Earl of BRISTOL.

Humbly shewing unto your Lordships,

Hat he hath lately received his Writ of Sum-His fecond Petimons to Parliament, for which he returned tion to the Lords, unto your Lordships most humble Thanks; but, upon receiving · jointly with it, a Letter from my Lord Keeper, Summons, · commanding him, in his Majefty's Name, to for-· bear his perfonal Attendance; and altho' he fhall · ever obey the leaft Intimation of his Majefty's Pleafure, yet he most humbly offereth unto your Lord-· fhips wife Confiderations, as too high a Point for ' him, how far this may trench upon the Liberty and · Safety of the Peers, and the Authority of their · Letters Patents; to be in this Sort difcharged by .a Letter Millive of any Subject, without the King's Hand; and, for your Lordfhips due Information, he hath annexed a Copy of the faid Lord Keeper's Letter, and his Anfwer there-· unto.

" He further humbly petitioneth your Lordfhips, That having been, for the Space of two Years, 6 highly wronged in point of his Liberty and of his Honour, by many finister Aspersions which have been caft upon him, without being permitted to 6 anfwer for himfelf; which hath been done by the 6 Power and Industry of the Duke of Buckingham, to keep him from the Prefence of his Majefty and the Parliament, left he should discover many Crimes concerning the faid Duke:

· He therefore most humbly befeecheth, That he may be heard, both in the point of his Wrong, and of his Acculation of the faid Duke : Wherein he will make it appear, how infinitely the faid Duke hath abused their Majesties, the State, and both the Houfes of Parliament. And this, he is most confident, will not be denied, fince the Court of Parliament never refuseth to hear the pooreft Subject feeking for Redrefs of Wrongs, nor the 6 Acculation against any, be he never fo powerful. · And herein he befeecheth your Lordships to mediate to his Majefty, for your Suppliant's coming ' to the Houfe, in fuch Sort as you shall think ' fitting; affuring his Majefty, that all he shall fay, fhall not only tend to the Service of his Ma-· jefty, and the State, but highly to the Honour of his Majefty's Royal Perfon, and of his princely · Virtues: And your Suppliant shall ever pray for ' your Lordships Prosperity.'

My very good Lord,

The Lord Keep- DY his Majesty's Commandment, I herewith fend D unto your Lordship your Writ of Summons for the Parliament; but withall fignify his Majefly's Pleasure herein further, That how foever he gives way to the awarding of the Writ, yet his Meaning is thereby not to discharge any former. And herein I doubt not but your Lordship will readily give his Majesty Satisfaction: And fo I commend my Service very heartily unto your Lordship, and remain,

The Earl of BRISTOL'S Answer to the LORD KEEPER.

May it pleafe your Lordship,

T Have received your Lord/hip's Letter of the 31/t And the Earl's' of March, and, with it, his Majely's Writ of Answer. Summons for the Parliament. In the one his Majesty commandeth me, that, all Excuses set aside, upon my Faith and Allegiance I fail not to come and attend his Majesty; and this under the Great Seal of England. In the other, as in a Letter Millive, his Majefty's Pleasure is intimated by your Lordship, that my perfonal Attendance should be forborn. I must crave Leave ingenuoully to confess unto your Lordhip. that I want Judgment righting to direct myfelf in this Cafe; as likewife, that I am ignorant how far this may trench upon the Privileges of the Peers of this Land, and upon mine and their Safety hereafter : For if the Writ be not obeyed, the Law calleth it a Mifprision, and highly fineable, whereof we have had late Examples; and a Missive Letter being avowed or not, it is to be doubted would not be adjudged a sufficient discharge against the Great Seal of England : On the other Side, if the Letter be not obeyed, a Peer may, de facto, be committed upon a Contempt in the interim, and the Question cleared afterwards ; fo that in this Cafe it is above mine Abilities. I can only anfiver your Lordship, that I will most exactly obey; and to the End I may understand which Obedience will be, in all Kinds, most fuitable to my Duty, I will prefently repair to my private Lodging at London, and there

An. 2. Charles I there remain, untill, in this and other Caufes, I fall have petitioned his Majefty, and underfland his further Pleasure. For the fecond Part of your Lord-Ship's Letter, where your Lordship faith, That his Majefty's Meaning is not thereby to difcharge any former Directions for Restraint of your Lordship's coming hither, but that you continue under the fame Reftriction as before ; fo that your Lordfhip's perfonal Attendance here is to be forborn. 1 conceive your Lordship intendeth this touching my coming to Parliament only; for as touching my coming to London, I never had at any Time one Word of Prohibition, or colourable Pretence of Restraint; but, on the contrary, having his late Majesty's express Leave to come to London to follow my Affairs, out of my a. Respect to his Majesty, then Prince, and to the Duke of Buckingham, I forbore to come, untill I might know whether my coming would not be difagreeable unto them. Whereunto his Majesty was pleased to answer, both under the Hand of the Duke, and of Mr. Secretary Conway, That he took my Respect unto him berein in very good Part, and would with me to make Use of the Leave the King had given me. Since which Time I never received any Letter or Message of Restraint, only his Majefly, by his Letter, bearing Date in June last, commandeth me to remain as I was in the Time of the King his Father ; which was with Liberty to come to London to follow my own Affairs as I pleased, as will appear unto your Lordsbip, if you will afford me fo much Favour as to peruje it. I have writ thus much unto-your Lordship, because I would not, thro' Mifunderstanding, fall into Difpleafure by my coming up, and to intreat your Lord/hip to inform his Majefty thereof : And that my Lord Conway, by whole Warrant I was only restrained in the. late King's Time, of famous Memory, may produce any one Word, that may have fuch as any colourable Pretence of debarring my coming up to London. I befeech your Lordship to pardon my Defire to have Things clearly understood ; for the Want of that formerly hath caufed all my Troubles; and when any Thing is mifinformed concerning me, I have little or no Means to clear it; fo that my chief Lobour is to An. 2. Charles I. avoid Misunderstanding. I shall conclude with befeech-1626. ing your Lordship to do me this Favour, To let his Majesty understand, that my coming up is only rightly to understand his Pleasure, whereunto I Shall, in all Things, most dutifully and humbly conform myself. And fo, with my humble Service to your Lord/hip, I recommend you to God's holy Protection, and remain, Sherborn, April 12. Your Lordfhip's

Moft humble Servant, BRISTOL.

After the Reading of these, the Lord Keeper delivered this Meffage from the King to the Houle of Lords.

The Lords appointed a Committee to attend the An. 2. Charles I. King, and to prefent their humble Thanks to his Majefty, for the Truft and Confidence he had placed in the Honour and Justice of their House.

During the Receis of Parliament the Duke of Buckingham was taking great Pains to ward off the Blow intended against him by the Commons, in which the King was his principal Agent; but in vain, for that Houfe was refolved to carry on the Profecution against him. Rusbworth informs us. ' That it was intimated to the Duke, in a written Paper fent him, that he fhould get the King to fignify to a certain Number of Lords, that he had endeavoured to divert the Charge against the Duke, becaufe his Majefty had found Knowledge and Experience of his Service and Fidelity; at the fame Time to reveal fome Mysteries of State to them. there mentioned, in which the Duke might feem culpable, but was not; and thefe were to be dictated to the King, for him to speak to the Lords.'-But fince this private Intimation hath no other public Authority than the Collector's to fupport it, we . fhall wave the Matter, and proceed to Things of more certain Proof.

April 13. The two Houses met again, pursuant The first Matters of Moment to Adjournment. the Commons went upon, was to order the Committee, appointed to prepare a Petition with the Names of Recufants, &c. in Authority, to meet and proceed in that Bufinefs: Alfo the Report concerning Dr. Montagu's Books, to be made to the Houfe on the 17th Inftant.

Nothing happening in the Interval, worth Notice; on the Day aforefaid Mr. Pymme reported the Bufinefs concerning the faid Books, and the Opinion of the Committee on these three Cases:

I. ' That Montagu had diffurbed the Peace of the Church, contrary to the Doctrine thereof, publifhed in the 39 Articles, in 1582, and to the Book of Homilies; confirmed by Parliament?

2. 'That

Refolution of the Commons against Dr. Montagu ;

2. 'That in these Books were divers Matters An. 2. Charles I. tending to Sedition, by setting the King against the 1626. People, and the People one against another.'

3. 'That the whole Scope of the Books were to difcountenance the true Profession of Religion here established, and so to draw the People to Popery, and reconcile them to the Church of Rome.'

'That the Committee were fully of Opinion,' Montagu flood convicted of all the three Heads of the Charge; and that, as a public Offender against the Peace of the Church, he flould, by this House, be presented to the Lords, there to receive Punishment according to his Demerits.'

The further Debate and Refolution about this Affair was deferred to another Day, and the Com-fented to the mittee were ordered to deliver their Opinions to the King. Houfe what was beft to be done, for preventing the Danger which may happen by other Books of this Kind. Some Days after it was agreed to petition his Majefty on this laft Article, and the Anfwer returned was, ' That the King did not flight-His Majefty's ' ly pafs over the Meffage; but queftioned whe-Anfwer. But we fhall leave this Affair for the prefent, to go upon much greater Matters, which engrofied the Attention of both Lords and Commons; and which will very properly begin our next Volume.
